Editorial Notes & Comments.

Kendallville boasts of a Cleveland and Hendricks club of 125 first voters.

The Baltimore & Ohio have extended its lines from New York to Oswego by contract with the New York, Ontario & Western.

Committeeman L. D. Britton, of Richland, assisted by Jack Carens, auxiliary committeeman, are doing efficient work in the campaign. The organization of a Cleveland and Hendricks club is mainly due to their zeal in this direction.

Many republicans do not know the origin of candidate Logan's nick-name, "Black Jack." It was given him while he was a member of the Illinois Legislature, because he originated and advocated the "black laws" of Illinois, which, under severe penalties, prohibited all colored persons from entering the state.

Freeman Kelly is able to take care of himself as against Grub-street writers of the Bob Lockhart kind. But inasmuch as some of the more shrewd and far-seeing republicans have intimated that Bob is making an ass of the business as usual, we charitably venture the hint that Robert be put on ice through the dog-days.

The Detroit Journal sent one of its staff to Buffalo, N. Y., to ascertain the truth or falsity of the infamous scandal reported recently against Governor Cleveland by the Baptist minister, author of the letter so industriously circulated broadcast throughout the country. The minister is an ex-ward worker who it seems was not pleased at the way he was dropped from the list of beneficiaries after Cleveland was elected Governor, and took this mode of "getting even" with him. All in all, the scandal is likely to do the Governor good instead of harm.

The democracy of this section have opened the campaign in dead earnest. On Saturday, August 2, the democratic voters of Richland and Fairfield met at the band hall in Corunna and organized a Cleveland and Hendricks club. A large number were present from both townships. The organization was effected so far as the adoption of a constitution and by-laws and the election of executive officers. Over fifty enrolled themselves for Cleveland, Hendricks and Reform, which is certainly an encouraging beginning. Keep the ball rolling as the membership can be increased to at least two hundred. The democrats of Richland and Fairfield are wide awake and will render a good account of themselves at the polls next fall.

The New York Tribune, now supporting Blaine, said at the time the Blaine letters were published that they convicted him of taking a bribe. The Cincinnati Commercial, now supporting him, said that these letters prove every charge that had been made against Blaine. The Chicago Tribune said Blaine was a corrupt man who, if nominated, would certainly be defeated. All these are republican papers and Blaine papers. What do the republicans think of the character of their candidate as exposed by their own papers?

Harry Reynolds, a lawyer of Ligonier, has declared himself for Blaine and Logan, and in an "open letter to the people" published in the Leader of that place gives several fishy reasons for deserting the Greenback party. Harry might have kindly spared the public this infliction by simply confessing that he is a "backslider" from the republican party. Coveting the Circuit Prosecutorship and seeing a gleam of hope of reaching the goal by the Greenback route, he joined that party for the spoils of office. It will be remembered that his nomination for Prosecutor on the greenback ticket two years ago was ratified by the democratic 35th Judicial convention, and his name placed on the democratic ticket, but he didn't get there. As Mr. Reynolds is not a democrat, we presume the radical press will not howl over the Reynolds apostasy to republicanism as a democratic loss? We are loth to understand what powerful argument was used to bring the lost lamb back into the republican fold

VOTING BONDS.

A town up in New Hampshire which wanted to build a highway bridge had heard so much of issuing bonds to pay for such improvements that a representative was sent to Boston to inquire how it could be done, and to arrange for it. He visited a broker and stated the case, and the broker rubbed his hands and replied:

"You did quite right to come to me. In the first place you must vote to bond the township or county. If you think there is any danger of the project being defeated I can run in 150 or 200 railroad laborers to help carry it."

"Is it possible?"

"If you want a $3,000 bridge, vote bonds to the amount of $6,000. You and I can manage to gobble up anything left over."

"Well, I declare!"

"I'll place the bonds for you for a commission. Then I'll recommend a bridge-builder, and make him come down. Then he will sub-let for a bonus, and by dodging specifications, and working in odds and ends, and using putty to hide the cracks, I think—"

"I swan! but I won't listen—I won't—I won't—I won't!" shouted the representative, as he rushed out and took the train for home to report that they had better patch up the old bridge and make it do for a year or two more.—Wall Street News.

The famous iron mountain of Durango is said to contain from 50 to 60 per cent. of pure metal. In the surrounding plain slag and lumps of iron have been found assaying 62 per cent. A New York organization will erect there smelting works and a rolling-mill for the manufacture of rails.

The Indians in British Columbia make excellent farm laborers. They are friendly, reliable, strong and industrious. Having been fairly treated by the Government, they are on the best of terms with the white settlers.

A RIVAL OF QUININE.

German medical journals discuss a new medical agent lately discovered by Prof. Fischer, of Munich. In the course of a long series of investigations concerning the nature and action of quinine, he found that by means of a series of chemical transformations a substance can be obtained, in the form of a white crystaline powder, from coal tar, which greatly resembles quinine in its action on the human organism. Fischer has given it the name of "kairin." The chief effect produced by it, as yet observed, is the rapid diminution of fever heat, and its efficiency in this respect is described as remarkable. It is believed that it will render the use of ice in fever cases unnecessary, and that its skillful employment will enable the physician to moderate the temperature of the patient. Kairin is also reported to have less inconvenience for the stomach than quinine. But observation does not show—as yet, at least—that it possesses that tonic and restorative influence for which quinine is so frequently administered. Perhaps, from a chemical and physiological point of view, the most valuable thing about the new discovery is that it seems to bring us nearer to finding out the chemical nature of quinine itself and the true character of its agency. The discovery has been patented and a manufactory of kairin established, under the direction of Prof. Lanbenheimer, of Giessen. But, as it is said that the cost of producing a kilogramme (about 35½ ounces) of the new agent is £15, it will be some time before its patrons can hope to see it take the place of quinine in practical pharmacy.

"MAY I see you home, Matilda?" asked a verdant of his lady-love at a prayer-meeting. "I guess so, Joshua, but can't you see me now?"

The Nominees.

Under the above caption the Butler Review has the following personal sketch of the candidates composing the democratic county ticket, which we transfer to our columns without comment, believing that we could not improve upon the matter:

As promised last week we shall have something to say of the candidates nominated by the democracy of this county in this article, and believe as we stated before the convention, that the Democrats of DeKalb county can be trusted to furnish the officials of the county.

The ticket is headed by D. D. Moody, a native of this county, we believe, and a Democrat born and bred. That in his third nomination he has been complimented by his friends, there is no question, and that he has been watchful of DeKalb's interests can not be denied. He has his enemies and may have created them in his efforts while representing our people, but his aim has been to serve the party electing him only when that act would not result in dishonor or hardship to the state and people, and his enemies therefore are only political, and the differences of these enemies are the differences of the political parties. The officer in the halls of our legislature who can please all has never been found and he who fails to represent the people is rarely returned, and now that Mr. Moody has been twice elected and thrice nominated he cannot but feel, as do also his friends, that his course has been just and commendable.

Silas Brandon, of Jackson township, the banner Democratic township in the county, is the nominee for the responsible office of Treasurer. He is not widely known in the county, but where he is acquainted he is trusted and respected and has been honored by his township by electing him trustee, which office he filled acceptably, though he was so unfortunate as to be robbed at one time of five hundred dollars of the township funds, every dollar of which has been paid by himself. He will conduct his campaign honorably and will make the acquaintance of our people before November.

Of Sheriff John W. Boyle our people are already acquainted, and he appears before the people again for their sufferage, trusting that his efforts to fill the trust already imposed in him, may be such as to commend him for the second term. He has just been fairly initiated into its duties, and is now competent to transact the business with a clear knowledge of its demands. He has proven a genial, accommodating officer, and whatever may be the claim of his opponent, there is no reason to make a change either.

O. H. Widney, who was renominated for the office of Commissioner in the south-east district, has proven himself the right man in the right place. With Mr. Widney on the board there will be no efforts at crookedness or jobbery. Mr. Widney is an old soldier as well as a thorough Democrat, and having established himself in the confidence of our people, will be re-elected by a rousing majority.

Of Henry Probst, of Kiser township, we know but little personally, but we learn that he is one of the solid farmers of that township, whose competency and integrity is vouched for by the people recomending him to the board as the proper person to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Thomas.

The worst that can be said of Surveyor Van Auken, who for the fifth or sixth time has been nominated to fill the office, is that he works so hard and does his work so well that an opponent is hardly recognized. It is a slight that few will consent to take, but as there are many people who like to see their name in print some one is usually found to run against him.

Frances Picker is the nominee for Coroner, who, in the event of the death of the Sheriff will, if elected, fill the sheriff's office until the vacancy is filled by election. There is one thing sure, if Judge Picker, who is a resident of Auburn and has only one arm, is elected, he will perform the duties of his office acceptably.

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

Gov. Kirkwood is said to have quit the use of tobacco altogether, and says it was one of the wisest things he ever did, and that he has found the change very beneficial to his health. There can be no doubt of the good sense of his conclusion in every respect. Aside from the unavoidable indelicacy of the tobacco habit, its offensiveness to those who do not use it, and its apparent inevitable effect of taking the fine edge off the manners of those who use it to the extent of making them regardless of the rights and feelings of those who do not, it is one of the surest means for sapping the strength of those who use it inordinately. We know of a dozen of the ablest and most useful public men in Iowa who will probably be killed by their reckless use of tobacco before they are 50 years old. The physicians of several of these men say that it is a matter of short time at the longest when a man of nervous temperament, who smokes fifteen or twenty strong cigars a day and chews tobacco between times, will die of nervous apoplexy. Such men are surely killing themselves before their time, and as surely transmitting the nervous disease so engendered to their children.—Des Moines (Iowa) Register.

THE FIRST TELEGRAM.

The first telegraphic message ever sent by one instrument and recorded by another was over a short line erected in New York by Prof. Morse in 1837. It reads: "Attention, the Universal By Kingdoms, Right Wheel!" This was five years after he had begun work on it, and seven years before the line between Washington and Baltimore was erected. The latter was completed on the first day of the convention in Baltimore at which James K. Polk was nominated for the Presidency. The first message was: "What hath God wrought," signed by Fanny Ellsworth, a daughter of one of the men who was pointed out as "being as crazy as old Morse."

HE WILL NOT SPEAK HIS FATHER'S NAME.

There is a boy 8 years old whose parents live in White county, Ark. They are highly-esteemed citizens and people of decided culture and refinement. The boy has never been heard, nor can he be induced by any means, to utter his father's name, or address him even indirectly. His strategy is more than equal to both his parents and the other members of the family, who have laid all manner of plans to force him into a single utterance of his father's name. Upon one occasion they planned not to get him any boots until he asked for them like the others, but this was a failure also, for he went on through the snow with his bare feet just as though he were in calfskin to his knees. He has a profound respect for his father, and will follow him about the farm for a whole day at a time.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE HEN AND THE FARMER.

A Hen having laid an Egg, set up such a Cackle that presently the whole Barn-yard was in Confusion and the Farmer came running out to see what was going on.

"What is it?" he demanded, as the Hen cackled louder than ever.

"Why, I've laid an Egg!"

"An Egg? Why, a single egg isn't worth but 2 cents at the present market price."

"Yes, I know; but if I didn't do 2 shillings' worth of cackling over every 2 cents' worth of egg, the world would soon forget me."

Moral: Send a bundle of old clothes to an orphan asylum and then interview a reporter.

Ir is not enough to have reason; it is spoiled, it is dishonored, by sustaining a brusque and haughty manner.—Fenelon.

The desertions from the British army in 1882 were 6,942, against 7,530 in 1881, and 9,209 in 1880.

BLAINE, THE BRIBE-TAKER.

A Revelation of the Cincinnati Convention—Why He Got Left.

It now turns out that Blaine was defeated for the Presidential nomination in the Cincinnati Convention of 1876 on the grounds of selling his influence while speaker of the House—the disclosure being made by one of the Pennsylvania delegation who produced the proof. The following incident, revealing the secret of Blaine's defeat, is disclosed by a representative republican who got the facts from the lips of the principal actor in the drama, a Mr. Kemble. The sixth ballot had been completed and it became evident that the issue would be decided on the next. Mr. Bergner, the narrator, goes on to say that William H. Kemble, a delegate from Pennsylvania, arose just as the vote was about to be taken:

He asked and gave his opinion that the nomination of Blaine would bring defeat to the party. He referred to the damaging stories that would be told and to the doubtful record Mr. Blaine had made during his public life. He drew from his pocket two canceled checks, and continued: 'I never had any legitimate business transactions with Mr. Blaine. The only relations we have ever had are represented by these two checks. They are signed by me made payable to his order and endorsed and returned to me through the ordinary channels of such things. When Mr. Blaine was speaker of the house of congress, I was interested in some pending legislation. I asked his assistance in the way of a favorable ruling. He agreed to rule as I asked for $5,000. I paid him the money with this check, exhibiting the $5,000 check. Subsequently Blaine came to me and demanded $2,500 more, and I was obliged to yield and make the second payment with this check, exhibiting the $2,500 check. Now, said Mr. Kemble, I defy any man to say that I ever had any other business transaction with Blaine, and I defy any man to dispute the genuiness of this endorsement in Blaine's hand writing. If he is nominated by this convention I will give these facts to the public, and his defeat is certain to follow. I have no objection to a man being bought, if he will stay bought, but I protest against him demanding the pay twice.' "The effect of this speech was electrical," continued Mr. Bergner. "When Kemble sat down he handed the canceled checks around among the delegates and they were examined carefully and critically. I had them in my hand and am satisfied that they were genuine. Immediately after the vote was taken and the delegation decided to cast its vote for Hayes. That vote decided the issue against Blaine."

The New York World suggests that if Butler is so much interested in the labor problem he might devote his energies to finding out what is to be done with 150,000 republican office holders who will have to look about for a living next year.

The republican newspapers keep up their dirty fight against Governor Cleveland by maligning his private life and character. They have been warned to stop that sort of work, but still keep it up. They will get enough of it before the campaign closes.

There is no doubt about the democratic majority in New York. It may not be quite as large as when Cleveland ran for Governor, but something less than that will do quite as well

That James G. Blaine took a bribe when speaker of the House of Representatives is admitted by republicans. That he acted as the agent of the Pacific Railroad lobby is testified to by a distinguished republican Senator. Is such a man fit to be President?

The Steuben Republican was "most too previous" when it posted conductor George Mogford, of the Lake Shore road, who is a democrat, as having pronounced for Blaine. Conductor Mogford has taken pains to deny the statement and says it is purely an invention of the editor. Another radical lie nailed.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

In a card to the New York Sun Butler announces his purpose to stand by the nominations of the Greenback and Aniti-Monopolist conventions.

Blaine sold his influence as speaker of Congress for money. Will Blaine deny the charge of bribe-taking and official jobbery? Let us hear from his henchmen.

The boys of Toledo have unearthed an interesting escapade of John A. Logan's that occurred at the Island House a few years ago, which they say is too good to keep.

It is Blaine's public record as a public man that is under discussion. What his relations have been with the gentler sex does not, so far as we know, in any wise concern the question of his fitness or unfitness to fill the office of President.

T. P. Keator, of Fort Wayne, a republican editor, is being talked up for the republican candidacy for Congress in this district. Mr. Keator is a glib-tongued chap but if nominated he will find it hard sledding in the race against the invincible Lowry whose triumphant election is a certainty.

The Blaine managers have made every possible effort to array the Catholics against Cleveland and publish as their great proof that Cleveland is their enemy, the story that Cleveland as Governor of New York vetoed a bill allowing Catholic priests to visit Blackwell's Island. The New York World in commenting upon this says: "Gov. Cleveland never vetoed such a measure. No such bill was ever presented to him. Gov. Corneli, Republican, did, however, veto a bill giving Catholic priests the right to enter the State institutions and hold religious services. It was known as "The Freedom of Religon Bill." This charge against Gov. Cleveland is one of the five hundred lies already set on foot by the desperate Blaine managers. These lies will be collared and thrown in due time."

Congressman-Lowry was royally received upon his return home Saturday, August 2. Three thousand people in charge of the chairman of the democratic central committee, headed by the city band and a torchlight procession, met Mr. Lowry at the Fort Wayne depot on the arrival of the train. Mr. Lowry's appearance was the signal for deafening cheers. It was a grand ovation in honor of the distinguished reprepsentative of the Twelfth district tendered by his fellow citizens. After a ringing address in response to the hearty welcome, Mr. Lowry was escorted to his residence where another ovation was tendered him. Judge Lowry has made a record in the late Congress that places him the front rank of eminent statesmen, and he will be re-elected by an overwhelming majority.

Governor Cleveland, according to the New York Sun, visited Samuel J. Tilden. This shows that the old Governor is in sympathy with the young Governor, and that is a big point for democrats to know.

Alabama elected a Democratic Governor and state officers last week almost unanimously. In Kentucky the Democrats were successful by more than the usual majority.

One thing is certain: the Irishmen are not likely to forget that Blaine was a fierce Know Nothing, when that fanatical organization arrayed itself so viciously against foreign born citizens in general and Irish Catholics in particular.

Indianapolis Sentinel: The Richmond speech of Candidate Calkins justifies the opinion already published as coming from Judge Gresham, viz: That Calkins had practiced in his court and "he never could grasp an idea." The Richmond effort reads like old Journal editorials strung together by Rhody Shiel. Colonel Gray will settle him long before frost.

ALL IS NOT GOLD THAT GLITTERS.

Gus De Smith was seen on the streets looking as if there had been several deaths in the family.

"What's the matter, Gus?" asked a friend.

"I have lost my big diamond breast-pin, and I am afraid somebody will find it."

"I don't understand you. I should think you would want it found. You ought to offer a large reward for it."

"I'd be willing—now this is confidential—I'd be willing to offer a reward to the man who wouldn't find it, for if it is found, it will be taken to a jewelry store and have it analyzed, and then the world will know that all is not gold that glitters, and that I only paid a dollar and a half for it."—Texas Siftings.

A QUESTION OF DEDUCKTION.

The Blakely (Ga.) News springs this combination of news and arithmetic upon its readers: Query: Some gentlemen went duck hunting. The party consisted of a man from up the river, a physician, a dentist, a Georgian, Mr. Porter, a sailor, the guide and the owner of the boat in which they went. They carried one dog to each two men. They shot some ducks, but for want of dogs only secured half as many as there were men. They then shot and killed others, and, on dividing them equally when the party disbanded, each man had twice as many ducks as there were dogs. The dentist lost half he had, whereupon the sailor gave him all he had. The dentist then had three times as many ducks as any one else of the party, and lacked only one of having four times as many as there were dogs. How many ducks were taken.

WHICH ONE.

Johnnie was in the street car with his mother, and next to him set a very nice looking young man. After some talk with his mother Johnnie turned to the young man and said, so everybody could hear him:

"Am I a dude?"

"Well," replied the young man, "you don't look like one."

"And is that gentleman on the other side of you a dude?"

"I suppose not; but why do you want to know, my little fellow?"

Nothin', only mamma said you was the next thing to a dude, and I wanted to know if it was me or the other gentleman she meant."—Cincinnati Merchant and Traveler.

Isn't it about time that the republicans in this section were getting up a little enthusiasm? Or is the dear old party dead?

The democratic club has secured Williamson's hall for campaign purposes, and will meet there hereafter every other Saturday evening until further notice.

As Lon Fisher says, "the republicans now have a baby to look after with a Jim Blaine brand upon it." But they still pursue Governor Cleveland with their vile slanders.

D. D. Moody, democratic candidate for Representative, addressed a large audience at the democratic club room Saturday evening last.

Chairman T. H. Sprott, Silas Brandon, candidate for treasurer, Auditor Tomlinson and Treasurer Miller attended the democratic meeting Saturday evening.

The republican candidate for Governor is billed for a meeting at Auburn today. We presume Major Calkins will "whoop 'em up" and repeat his Richmond key note speech, slightly revised to suit the locality. What with carrying a cold water tank on one shoulder and a beer keg on the other, the major is having a tough time in his pilgrimage over the State trying to strike a balance.

A Chicago Times representative has been down in the Bluegrass region of Kentucky to investigate the rumored Blaine scandal, which is said to have been located in the vicinity of a Kentucky town named Millersburg. Well, the Times man saw and heard enough to satisfy his mind that old Blaine is guilty of the charge. It is a plain case of seduction and heartless desertion, the victim being a beautiful and accomplished young lady pupil of a Female Seminary whom Jim met and courted while he was engaged as a teacher in a Military school of the same place. Blaine ruined this girl and jumped the country in order to save his hide. This all happened long before the "cruel war," but the facts are backed by iron clad affidavits and the truth of the story cannot be denied. How do our republican friends like their own medicine? We suggest to the pious branch of the republican family who seem to be all torn up over the alleged youthful indiscretions of Governor Cleveland, that they wrestle in prayer for awhile with the Blaine nastiness and give our man a rest.

C. K. Baxter will probably receive the republican nomination for State Senator, of the district composing the counties of Steuben and DeKalb As the prospect of electing a democrat in this stronghold is a hope forlorn, we know of no one of the other fellows we would rather see carry off the honors than our friend Baxter.

A telegram received here last Friday announced the death of Mrs. George Buchanan at her home in Tennessee. Mr. B. removed to that state over a year ago in the hope that the change of climate would prove beneficial to his wife, who had been an invalid, but the inevitable to which all must sooner or later surrender came. The remains were sent to Corunna for interment.

On last Sunday afternoon a couple of tramps broke into the house of John Fry, who lives about three miles northeast of Kendallville, and stole a silver watch and about $27 in money. A posse of Noble county regulators, one of whom owned the ticker, when the burglary was discovered started in pursuit and traced the thieves to a point near this place, where they were last seen. A descriptive telegram was sent to the marshal of Waterloo, and shortly afterward the regulators started for that place and upon their arrival found the men in charge of the officer The money and watch were recovered and the prisoners taken to K., where they will be turned over to the proper authorities for trial The tramp nuisance is unbearable, not a day passes but they appear upon the streets of every town begging and rubbing.

Mr. A. J. Little, of Auburn, died suddenly one day last week from what is supposed accidental poisonium He sent his wife to a drug store to get some quinine and extract of ginger, a medicine that Mr. Little had been in the habit of taking when feeling indisposed Mrs. Little procured the articles as requested and leaving them with her husband with directions how to use, returned up town to transact some business Mr. Little took a dose of the medicine and soon thereafter was taken violently sick, and by the time a physician arrived he was past aid and soon expired. A post mortem was held and resulted in a verdict of "accidental poisoning." We understand the stomach of the deceased has been removed and will be sent to a chemist for analysis, when further facts connected with this sad affair will be developed Mr. Little was about sixty five years of age and had resided in Auburn for nearly a quarter of a century, and was much respected He was a lawyer by profession and had always taken an active part in politics, being a life long democrat

Prof. Hogan the eminent Æronaut, who made the perilous ascent from Jackson in a lumber wagon last spring, will make two ascensions in his monster balloon at the Waterloo Fair, on Wednesday and Friday of fair week. Don't fail to see him.

—H. M. Bicknell was at Fort Wayne Monday, attending the funeral of his grandfather.

—Mrs. A. H. Phillips and family returned home from visiting friends at Warsaw.

—Dr. Stewart has about recovered from his injuries sustained by a fall out of a wagon.

—Sullivan, the picture man, is quite successful in taking views of town residences.

—Wm. E. Sargent offers a bargain in village property. Real estate investors would do well by calling on F. M. Bacon, agent.

—Tish Stamberry and wife have lost by death their little child. It was buried Monday last. Funeral service conducted by Dr Stewart —Garrett takes the cake for twins. Some enterprising census taker has discovered eleven pairs. Great Scott! It's all in the climate.

—Country people would find it to their interest to do their trading in Garrett. No better market for produce in the county.

—Bicknell, our enterprising druggist, is doing a thriving business. So much for keeping the best goods in the market.

—For enterprising grocery men Garrett will compare with Fort Wayne, as all kinds of provisions of the best quality are kept.

—Pike & Gunnett have put in a new device for making the best flour, by what is called the roller process. Farmers, make a note of this.

—C. B. Jones is running his saw mill day and night to supply the hard wood trade, and he also keeps pine lumber for sale.

—The Odd Fellows are now quartered in their new hall. For size and convenience the hall will rank with any in Northern Indiana.

—Lockey is stocking up with a large line of fall goods.

—Frederick has an immense stock of lumber on hand, and those contemplating building should bear this in mind.

—We will give this as a pointer: Garrett will have no more booms, but from this on will take a substantial and healthy growth, as is most surely indicated by the quiet and steady improvements of our town for the past few years, both in streets and buildings.

—The republicans had a rally here last week. Judge Taylor was the principal speaker. The Judge may be a very good lawyer and a loyal republican but as an exponent of the tariff question he is a failure, as several so expressed themselves. Bring on another liar.

Gen. Horatio C. King, of Brooklyn, the bosom friend of Henry Ward Beecher, has arrived home after a personal and thorough investigation of the Buffalo scandal about Gov. Cleveland. Mr. King makes the following report:

"I felt confident that those stories about the Governor were false, because the whole character and life of the man repudiated the cowardly and unworthy actions attributed to him. I learned enough to convince me that he had been wrongfully accused. I went everywhere and did quite a little bit of detective work on my own account. I questioned many men in Buffalo who have known the Governor for years, and I find that he was admired and respected by those who disliked him personally."

A SLANDER SQUELCHED.

The Buffalo Express, the republican Blaine organ, published at Buffalo, the home of Gov. Cleveland, a few days since published the following editorially:

"1. The Express adheres to every good word it then (when he was nominated) said with respect to the candidate's life and record.

2. What we can say, based upon our information and judgment, is this: We do not believe that the charges are, in any just sense of the word, true.

3. The Telegraph, (the little paper printing the slander,) has had bitter cause ere this to regret its publication of slanderous matter which it could not prove, and we think that its editor has learned heretofore how hard it is in this city even to get bail in a prosecution for criminal libel.

4. We did advise everybody who could to vote for Mr Cleveland for mayor of Buffalo and for governor of New York. We have never regretted doing so, and do not now regret his election to those places."

This is a squelcher. The slander so industriously circulated by the republican press is thus completely refuted by the republican papers published at Governor Cleveland's home. It is no wonder that respectable republican journals are beginning to deprecate such assaults upon the private character of candidates. The editors of such journals know that the charge against Governor Cleveland is false and they also know that Blaine is amenable to similar charges

Isaac P. Gray and Major Calkins, the two opposing candidates for Governor, will hold several political discussions in joint debate during the canvass, due notice of which will be given by the State Central Committee

The State Central Committee present a fine array of talent selected for speakers, and among the noted orators is Senator Dan Voorhees, who will open the campaign

The democrats of Kendallville on last Saturday raised a hickory pole 153 feet in length to the honor of Cleveland and Hendricks, the democratic national standard-bearers. People from the surrounding country flocked to town to participate in the exercises. It was the hardest demonstration of the campaign and made the Blaineites sick. At night a large meeting was addressed by Mr. Stambaugh, of Fort Wayne, at which 200 young men, "First Voters" uniformed and equipped for the democratic campaign, headed by a brass band, paraded with torchlights the principal streets of the city.

This Year

If never before, you want a DAILY paper. It is the year of the Presidential contest. Never before have the two great parties apparently been so evenly matched for the struggle. You want to know what is going on, and you want to know it without delay. You want a DAILY paper; but you DON'T want an "organ"—that is, if you want ALL the news and want it honestly and impartially presented. You don't want your political intelligence discolored and perverted to suit the requirements of an organ of either political party. You want FACTS—ALL the facts—just as they are, favorable or unfavorable. With these honestly presented from day to day you are in position to intelligently form your own opinions; they will serve you better than the ready-made opinions of the "organ." The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself as meeting your need at this time. It is a complete newspaper in all the requirements of American journalism. It is a member of the Western Associated Press. It prints all the news, completely but concisely. It is not a "blanket-sheet."

READ WHAT THEY SAY OF IT.

"IS AS GOOD A NEWSPAPER AS OUR GREAT [illegible]"—Paul G. Hubert, Galena, Ill.

"IT IS A FIRST-CLASS NEWSPAPER IN EVERY respect."—Standard Car and Machine Company, Lyndon, Ill.

"YOUR COLUMN OF 'SHARPS AND FLATS' IS worth the price of the paper."—S. D. Marsh, New Oregon, Ill.

"I THINK IT SHOULD BE IN THE HOUSE OF every voter of good morals in the State of Illinois."—Philip Pfeffer, Girard, Ill.

"I CONSIDER IT THE BEST PAPER OF ITS class in the United States, not excepting the New York Sun, which I have also read for many years."—Dana Wallace, P. M., Hampton, Ill.

"I LIKE YOUR PAPER. BREVITY IS SAID to be the soul of wit. You give all the news and in such form that a very busy man may get on important events and lose no time from his business."—A. B. Avery, Maywood, Ill.

"HAVE I ONCE KNOWN THAT THE DAILY News is constituted the best daily published in the United States. The baby boy of New York, in my opinion, to the pound is made."—Jas. F. Stream, Ipava, Ill.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is an INDEPENDENT newspaper. It presents political news free from partisan coloring, without fear or favor as to any party's interests. It has its own opinions upon all the questions of the day, and is accustomed to express them without reserve. If you are a partisan extremist and tender about adverse criticism of your pet political theories, perhaps you had better let it alone. It may not agree with you—sometimes. But to the fair-minded reader, who demands impartial, honest, pure, and enterprising journalism, the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself, confident of meeting every reasonable requirement.

Sold by newsdealers everywhere. Price 2 cents. Mailed, postpaid, at Six Dollars per year. Fractions of a year at proportional rate.

VOLUME VI. No. 121.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, AUG. 30, 1884.

PUBLIC OPINION.

—Christian Union:—Mr. Cleveland, as Governor, has fulfilled the promises made by his earlier career. He has conducted the State administration on strictly business principles.

—Chicago News; If some one does not succeed Butler with "a woman scrape" pretty soon he will go out into the hedges and byways and rake up a stale scandal to outsmell anything yet published in this sweet-scented campaign.

—Harper's Weekly: There is, indeed, no public man in the country whose official action has proved that he can be trusted by the friends of civil service reform so completely and satisfactorily as Grover Cleveland. Certainly no such claim can be asserted for Mr. Blaine.

—New York Evening Post: Tariffs from the manufacturer's point of view. Sir—There are only three things that make the price of goods, viz: 1st, raw material; 2d, labor; 3d, power.

I don't care whether it is a needle or an anchor, gold, silver, iron, steel, copper, wool, silk, cotton, jute, etc., etc., all come under these three items.

Now whatever interferes with the natural values of these primary necessities for successful manufacturing must be removed. Therefore, all duties on raw materials, for manufacturing purposes, must be taken off.

Then hands off; let trade take care of itself, as it will and can, under such circumstances, but under no other. This done, our manufacturing industries will be put on a natural basis and their growth and success provided for all time.

Give us raw materials free for manufacturing purposes, beginning with coal, and our manufacturers will make cheaper and better classes of goods, and in those crowding and closely competing among ourselves in our A. B C of manufacturing, we will spread over the whole alphabet of goods possible for us to make, and by diversifying our manufacturing industries in the higher branches, have increased employment for our people, and open new channels for labor in all branches of industry.

Raw materials for manufacturing purposes will not only give us the control of our home market (which is our sheet anchor), but in which we are closely competed with, and in many things undersold today by importations, but will enable us to enter the markets of the world with our surplus

If you tax the raw materials of which your goods are made, how can you make cheap goods? It is impossible.

How are we to enter markets near to us, and which we say are ours naturally, under our present system?

—Indiana State Sentinel: Mr. Calkins, is this true? If so, it looks like a very crooked piece of work. Our authority for it is the LaPorte Argus. The charges are damaging and are summarized briefly in the following: Ten years ago next fall it is alleged that William H. Calkins secured a loan from the common school fund on land that is practically a worthless swamp. With the assistance of intimate, personal and party friends, who probably never saw the land, he obtained money from the school fund to full twice the amount of the value of the swamp. He has failed to pay the interest on the debt, and for eight years the taxpayers have been obliged by law to pay it for him. He has failed to pay this honest debt to the school fund, although repeatedly urged to do so.

He is a lawyer and knows that the money can not be collected on his note by suit until the land is sold, and he has the best of reasons for believing that the land cannot be sold at the appraised value, which is only two thirds of the amount he received from the school fund. He knows that the people who pay the taxes have for nearly eight years been paying the interest that was due from him to the school fund. Is this an honest transaction, or is it a swindle on the school fund, that should be sacred to every citizen of Indiana? Is such a man worthy to be chief executive of the State? Is he the right kind of a man to guard the interests of the children of the State, and to look after the welfare of the taxpayers? We leave the voters to answer these timely questions at the ballot box in November.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

William H. Calkins knows how to raise a heedle on a swamp lot that a mosquito would hesitate to quarter himself for fear of starvation, if he don't know how to make an argumentative speech.

When the story of the Rape of the School Fund first leaked out, Calkins was making Rome howl with his eloquence in one of the best counties of the State. The fellow did not deny the charge, but assuming an air of dignity said he would straighten that matter as soon as he could get at his "private papers." The people anxiously await the Major's explanation.

It is pretty evident that this Calkins, all the way from Laporte, is a very small souled specimen of a man to say the least. The very fact that he assessed a poor war widow for campaign purposes, whose only support was the income from a government postoffice, is enough to condemn him in the eyes of decent republicans. But this Calkins is the republican candidate for Governor, which may cause some to overlook the Major's eccentricities.

The charge that Calkins is guilty of fraudulently getting possession of a portion of the school fund, is not an idle tale told for campaign effect. That he borrowed $300 of the school fund giving as security a mortgage on a piece of swamp land that he knew to be almost worthless is true, and the facts cannot be successfully controverted, as the records of Laporte county bear witness to the rotten transaction. Thus isn't it fair to presume that the republican candidate for Governor is a man whose honesty may be seriously questioned?

The publication of the Kentucky Blaine scandal has been the means of bringing to the surface another and more recent scrape, involving the honor of candidate Blaine, and which appeared originally in the Indianapolis Sentinel. This has aroused the untamed lion in the breast of candidate Blaine and he forthwith fires off a suit for big damages, making the Sentinel the defendant for a libellous publication. As long as the democratic candidate was made the victim of a venomous lying scandal the Blainelites were feasting high, and Blaine himself winked and encouraged these assaults on the private character of Governor Cleveland. At this period of the republican viciousness, when the honor of Gov. Cleveland is fully vindicated, naturally retaliation in kind follows and the aggressors howl for quarter. Referring to the libel suit the Sentinel shows up Blaine and his methods as follows:

"The truth is, Mr. Blaine, under the mask of inviting, is fighting investigation. He invokes the tardy processes of civil law by an action intended to deter the press from discussing his private life. He calls electricity to his aid to hurry the suit, for frightening other papers from exposing him. It is a proceeding worthy of the man who stole the Mulligan letters."

Sixty or seventy cents a day is all that any workingman should ask.—J. G. Blaine.

The publication of those letters will ruin me and disgrace my family.—J. G. Blaine.

Foreigners should not be allowed to vote until they have lived twenty one years in this country.—J. G. Blaine.

"Nothing but the triumph of the Democratic party, in my opinion, can give assurance that our free institutions will endure fifty years."—Benjamin F. Butler, at Chicago.

All over the country there is a feeling of dissatisfaction with the party in power and a desire for a change. "It is time for a change" is an expression heard every day and every hour from men who have voted the Republican ticket in past campaigns. It is evident that the party has lost its old-time grip. It has become a party of spoils, having no principles to fight for and no rallying cries that command attention or respect.

"Many a veteran of the late war," says the New York Truth, "will hear with regret that the Long Bridge at Washington is doomed soon to be a thing of the past. No other structure of the kind has so many historical associations. Washington crossing the Delaware is not a picture more dramatic than the modern painter could depict should he show it as it was almost any day during the time the life of the nation was at stake."

BIOGRAPHICAL ANECDOTAGE.

The value of anecdotes in biography has been disputed by the severe, and yet there can be no doubt that biography is chiefly valued for its anecdotes. These stories are the only parts of history that all the world knows, and to be ignorant of them is, practically, to be ignorant of history. Alfred's adventure with the cakes is remembered where the treaty of Wedmore is forgotten, and Oliver Cromwell is best known for his practical jokes, the ominous drops of blood on his untidy linen collar, and his desire to be painted with his wart and his wrinkles. Anecdotes are to biography what early legends are to national history. Johnson's love of tea is more famous than all his essays, as Horatius Cocles is a better-known character than Tiberius Gracchus, and Egeria more noted than Aggripina. We are so made that we like to hear of Montaigne's taste in wine better than of the policy of Louis XI., and care more for Villon's burglaries than for his ballades. This is an extremely illiterate, uncritical and unrefined habit of human nature; but, people being constituted as they are, they read Bishop Wilberforce's reminiscences eagerly. They will turn with more attention to the anecdotage about M. Gambetta and Prince Bismarck which has lately filled the papers than to discussions about the future of parties in France, or about the probabilities of a European war.

In Sicily, while most of the sulphur mines are in high districts and free from malaria, a few are at a low level, where intermittent fever prevails; in the latter districts, it seems, while the population of the neighboring villages is attacked by fever in the proportion of 90 per cent., the workingmen in the sulphur mines suffer much less, not more than 9 or 10 per cent. being attacked.

The temperance people are flooding Indiana with literature.

HIS STRIKE WAS VERY BRIEF.

"Johnny, hurry up and get ready to go to school, or you'll be too late."

"I ain't goin' mother."

"Not going! And why not?"

"I've struck."

"Struck! What do you mean by that?"

"Why, didn't pa read in the paper last night about persons strikin' and said that it was right for the oppressed to strike?"

"And I hope you don't call yourself oppressed, do you?"

"Of course I am. If a feller doesn't want to go to school and his mother makes him go, isn't he oppressed?"

"So you have struck, have you? Well, I'll see if I can strike, too."

And just as soon as Johnny saw his mother reaching for the strap his first strike came to an end, for he darted out of the house and was down at the school-house in a twinkling.—Newport (Ky.) Journal.

LUCK.

"My dear man," said the doctor, as he sat by the bedside of a Wall street speculator, "your case is a very serious one."

"In other words I have sold short," replied the patient.

"That's it, exactly. It is my duty to inform you that you may not live three days."

"In other words, if the market falls another peg my broker will sell me out."

"That's it."

"Well, it's best to look the situation square in the face, doctor. I'm going to put up more margin and hope for a reaction. Bet you $100 that my undertaker is scooped if he has booked me for May delivery!"—Wall Street News.

The League of Iniquity.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The republican leaders, having nominated a corrupt, unscrupulous politician, self convicted of taking bribes, for the presidency, are now busy arraying all that is corrupt and reckless and dangerous in the politics of the country in his support.

Having nominated one of the worst men in the country for President, they hope to elect him by forming an alliance of all the baser elements of modern politics. This is the league of iniquity, the confederation of evil by means of which it is proposed to make a man President who will, if elected, inaugurate a shameful era of corruption and profligacy.

In this league, holding the place of honor, are the star route thieves. The principal manager of Blaine's campaign is a star route thief named Elkins, and Dorsey and all the other thieves support him with enthusiasm. They look forward to rich stealings if Blaine is elected. The man who took a bribe when Speaker of the House and has got rich in politics will deal gently with them and they can steal boldly and with no fear of prosecution.

The Wall street gamblers and speculators in grain, the bucket shop men, the dealers in margins, the men who prey upon the earnings of the poor, the men who make food dear, the men who want business unsettled so that stocks and prices will fluctuate wildly, the men who break banks and cause panics, are all for Blaine. Jay Gould at the head of the gamblers, pours his blood money into the coffers of the Blaine gang and hopes to see Blaine President. He is the man the gamblers want at the head of affairs, and they are all in the league that is expected to elect him.

The dynamiters, the crack-brained socialists, the professional agitators, the apostles of disorder, the anarchists and all the rampant "reformers" who want the social system torn up and made over again, the people who want war, who want turbulence, who want disorder, excitement, bloodshed, riot and a general upheaval, are being rallied under the lead of O'Dynamite Rossa to enter the campaign for Blaine.

Greenbackers, social reformers, disturbers of the peace, cranks, and all the motley odds and ends of modern politics, the general ragtag rabble who are always ready to follow any adventurer, or any unscrupulous demagogue upon any sort of an insane mission, are being rallied by Ben Butler for the iniquitous confederation that hopes to elect Blaine.

The rascals, the corrupt, the evil minded, the unscrupulous, the reckless, the adventurers, the thieves, the cranks, the lawless, the law hating, the dishonest, the schemers, the plunderers, and all the sediment and the scum of national politics, are being arrayed by the Blaine leaders for the defeat of Cleveland and the election of Blaine.

Against this league of iniquity stand the quiet, orderly, law abiding, law loving, intelligent, patriotic people of this country, the people who are its strength and in whom it prospered and will prosper. They stand for an administration that promises stability, honesty, prosperity and reform.

Let the voters choose.

The Rev. Sylvester Cowels, of Brooklyn, New York, a life-long Republican, announces his purpose to vote for Cleveland. Fifty Republicans in Watertown, New York, have signed the roll of Independents and will vote for Cleveland and Hendricks. The first man to sign the roll of the Cleveland Democratic Club of Rockville, Maryland, was Lieutenant A. H. Fletcher, U. S. N., always a Republican heretofore. Judge Bynum, for years a leading Republican of North Carolina, says: "The Republican party has dropped all principles and has abandoned itself to a fight for spoils." So the judge drops the party.

Beecher says he will stump the country for Cleveland and brand the men who have slandered him as black mailers and liars, and that he shall enter the Cleveland campaign with an enthusiasm second only to that with which he entered the war.

Chicago News: We have been keeping a very careful watch upon Mr. S. Grover Cleveland, but we see no indication that he contemplates bringing a libel suit for anything against anybody. Mr. Cleveland has a singularly long head.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

We take pleasure in laying before our readers this week Governor Cleveland's letter of acceptance. The address proves to be a brief but comprehensive and statesmanlike paper, eminently worthy of the distinguished gentleman chosen as the standard-bearer of the great democratic party. While it possesses the merit of brevity nothing is omitted in presentation of the issues before the country and the mission of the democratic party.

Down East the republicans are whistling through the graveyards to keep up their courage. A ratification meeting at Belmont, N. Y., was reported in a column newspaper article with large headlines telling of the assembled thousands and the glowing enthusiasm for Blaine and Logan, when by actual count there were only sixteen persons present. A leading Lewis county republican said to a Chicago Daily News correspondent: "I will be d—d if I will vote for Blaine and I know hundreds of republicans who say the same thing." The result is a dead political canvass in the Empire State.

Candidate Benjamin F. Butler has fired off his anticipated address accepting the nomination for President of the Greenback-Anti-Monopoly-Labor consolidated circus, and now the country will breathe easier. The Chicago convention, having declined to accept Butler as the only true and unadulterated exponent of democratic principles, this erratic and conceited politician purposes to fight the democratic party in 1884 by forming an alliance with the republican party. It is not the first time that Butler has appeared in the democratic camp as a disturbing element, and this is an old trick revamped for the occasion.

The address contains several columns of closely printed matter reciting the toilers' wrongs and arraigns both political parties, and advises the organization of a third, but the most noticeable feature of this voluminous insipidity consists in self-laudation, telling what a great man Butler is. However, few will care to struggle through Butler's tiresome yawp, and the knowledge that he has made a corrupt bargain with Blaine for the purpose of drawing off the democratic vote will destroy whatever of influence he might have wielded had he undertaken an independent and honorable canvass.

The Chicago Daily News, an intense Blaine organ, concludes an editorial on the Butler address as follows:

"The whole address is animated by a spirit of pure cussedness. It finds fault with everything, and offers no remedy except the one universal panacea: "I myself, Ben Butler and me." Ben is a dear old quack, and Charles A. Dana is his prophet."

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Investigation seems to have established the essential truth of the hideous story of cannibalism among the members of the ill-fated Greely party.

There was a good deal of circumstantial evidence to begin with, but when the body of one of the victims is disinterred and the flesh found to have been cut from the bones, the substantial truth of the ghastly story may be considered as very well established.

That the starving men did actually eat the dead bodies of their comrades who died, or at least some of them, may therefore be set down as a fact.

It would have been better for all concerned if this had never been known. Now that it is partially known it is better that the whole truth should come out.

But the worst feature of this sickening story is in the fact that the awful sufferings of the Greely party that led to the horrid deed were due to the blundering incapacity of the government in not sending them relief. Almost within sight of these men was plenty of food, but impassable to be reached because of the open water. This food was placed in the wrong place instead of the right place, because of stupidity on the part of Secretary Chandler and General Hazen. At their doors lies the responsibility for the terrible deed of the Greely party.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The republicans of DeKalb county held their nominating convention on Friday, 15th inst., and now the campaign is fairly on. Running a campaign in DeKalb is rather uphill business for the republicans, but by energetic work, with Major Calkins on the programme for an afternoon rally, the boys succeeded in getting out a fair crowd, although much smaller than the democratic convention.

It was a great day for oratorical display and every patriot got off his gun, particularly chairman Bob Lockhart, who improved the occasion to air his opinions and exhibit his political scars.

The convention was organized by electing lawyer P. V. Hoffman permanent chairman and the republican editors secretaries. Following is the ticket placed in nomination:

Representative—John S. Jackman.
Treasurer—John L. Davis.
Sheriff—L. Lockwood
Commissioner, Southeast District—Otis Blood.
Commissioner, Southwest Dist.—E. Farrington.
Surveyor—Henry Coe.
Coroner—Dr. R. Elson.

The ticket is composed of men of average worth, who will command the support of their party, but nothing more; and the prospect of succeeding in a county with 200 democratic majority does not look promising to the republican candidate. But there is perhaps a grain of satisfaction in submitting to martyrdom for the sake of the cause.

The professed love of the average radical for the soldier is all a sham, as was shown at the late republican convention. The names of two veterans, M. B. Willis and L. J. Diehl, were announced for treasurer, but they were cast aside and the place given to a civilian.

Roscoe Conkling was elected an honorary member of a Blaine and Logan club at Utica, N. Y., but he declined to recognize the honor. A correspondent of the Chicago Daily News writing from Rochester, says that Mr. Conkling is taking no part in the canvass, openly, but privately his influence is against Blaine.

CLEVELAND'S LETTER.

He Accepts the Situation with Commendable Brevity.

ALBANY, N. Y., August 19.—Governor Cleveland's letter of acceptance is as follows:

Gentlemen: I have received your communication, dated July 28, 1884, informing me of my nomination to the office of President of the United States, by the National Democratic Convention, lately assembled at Chicago. I accept the nomination with grateful appreciation of the supreme honor conferred, and a solemn sense of the responsibility which, in its acceptance, I assume. I have carefully considered the platform adopted by the convention and cordially approve the same. So plain a statement of Democratic faith and the principles upon which that party appeals to the suffrages of the people needs no supplement or explanation. It should be remembered that the office of President is essentially executive in its nature. Laws are enacted by the legislative branch of the Government. The Chief Executive is bound faithfully to enforce, and when the wisdom of a political party, which selects one of its members as the nominee for that office, has outlined its policy, and declared its principles, it seems to me that nothing in the character of the office or the necessities of the case requires more from a candidate accepting such a nomination, than a suggestion of well-known truths so vital to the safety and welfare of a nation, that they cannot be too often recalled or too seriously enforced.

We proudly call ours a government by the people. It is not such when a class is tolerated which arrogates to itself the management of public affairs, seeking to control the people instead of representing them. Parties are a necessary outgrowth of our institutions, but a government is not by the people when one party fastens its control upon the country and perpetuates its power by cajoling and betraying the people, instead of serving them. The Government is not by the people when the result, which should represent the intelligent will of free and thinking men, is or can be, determined by the shameless divesting them of their suffrages. When an election to office shall be a selection by the voters of one of their number to assume for a time a public trust instead of his dedication to the profession of politics, when the holders of the ballot, quickened by a sense of duty shall avenge truth betrayed, and pledges broken, and when suffrage shall be altogether free and uncorrupted, a full realization of a government by the people will be at hand, and of the means to this end, not one would in my judgment, be more effective than an amendment to the con-situation, disqualifying Presidents from re-election.

When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain a public place once gained, and more than all, availability a party finds in an incumbent, whom a horde of officeholders with real born of benefits received, and fostered by a hope of favors to get, to come and stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of a President for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate, and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people. A true American sentiment recognizes the dignity of labor, and the fact that honor lies in honest toil. Contented labor is a sign of national prosperity. The ability to work constitutes the capital and wages of labor, the income of a vast number of our population; and this interest should be jealously protected. Our workingmen are not asking unreasonable indulgence, but as intelligent and manly citizens they seek the same consideration which those demand, who have other interests at stake. They should receive their full share of the care and attention of those who make and execute laws, to the end that the wants and needs of employers and employed shall alike be subserved and the prosperity of the country, the common heritage of both, be advanced. As related to this subject, while we should not discourage the emigration of those who come to acknowledge allegiance to our government and add to our citizen population, yet, as a means of protection to our workingmen, a different rule should prevail concerning those who, if they come or are brought to our land, who don't intend to become Americans, but will injuriously compete with those justly entitled to our field of labor.

In my letter accepting the nomination of the office of Governor nearly two years ago, I made the following statement, to which I have adhered. "The laboring classes constitute the main part of our population. They should be protected in efforts peaceably to assert their rights when endangered by aggregated capital, and all statutes on this subject should recognize the care of the State for honest toil and be framed with a view to improving the condition of the workingman."

A proper regard for the welfare of the workingman being inseparably connected with the integrity of our institutions; none of our citizens are more interested than they in guarding against any corrupting influences which seek to pervert the beneficent purposes of our government, and none should be more watchful of the artful machinations of those who allure them to self inflicted injury. In a free country, the curtailment of the absolute rights of the individual should only be such as is essential to the peace and good order of the community. The limit between proper subjects of government control and those which can be more fittingly to the moral sense and the self-imposed restraint of citizens, should be carefully kept in view. Thus, laws unnecessarily interfering with the habits and customs of any of our people, which are not offensive to the moral sentiments of the civilized world, and which are inconsistent with government, citizenship and the public welfare, are unwise and vexatious.

The commerce of a nation to a great extent determines its supremacy. Cheap and easy transportation should, therefore, be liberally fostered, within the limits of the constitution. The general government should so improve and protect the natural water ways as will enable the producers of the country to reach a profitable market. The people pay the wages of public employes and they are entitled to the fair and honest work which the money thus paid should command. It is the duty of those entrusted with the management of their affairs, to see that such public service is forthcoming. The selection and retention of subordinates in the government employment should depend upon their ascertained fitness and the value of their work, and they should be neither expected nor allowed to do questionable party service. The interests of the people will be better protected, and the estimate of public labor and duty be immensly improved. Public employment will be open to all who demonstrate their fitness to enter it. The unseemly scramble for place under government, with the consequent importunity which embitters official life, will cease, and the public departments will not be filled with those who conceive it to be their first duty to aid the party to which they owe their places, instead of rendering patient and honest return to the people. I believe that the public temper is such that the voters of the land are prepared to support the party which gives the best promises of administering the government in an honest, simple and plain manner, which is consistent with its character and purposes. They have learned that mystery and concealment in the management of their affairs cover the tricks and betrayal. The statesmanship they require consists in honesty and frugality, a prompt response to the needs of the people, as they arise, and a vigilant protection of all their varied interests. If I should be called to the chief magistracy of the nation, by the suffrages of my fellow citizens, I will assume the duties of that high office with a solemn determination to dedicate every effort to the country's good, and with a humble reliance upon the favor and the support of the Supreme Being, who, I believe, will always bless honest human endeavor in the conscientious discharge of public duty.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The democrats of Kansas renominated George W. Glick for Governor. There is some talk of the republicans and democrats uniting in that state.

At Detroit, Mich., the other day the democracy renominated Begole for Governor, and the nomination was endorsed by the greenbackers. A fusion ticket has been agreed upon, and the combination will result in giving part of the electors to Cleveland.

Senator Voorhees opened the democratic campaign at Terre Haute on the 19th by addressing 2,000 people on the plank in the republican state platform favoring a constitutional amendment convention. The demonstration was enthusiastic, and many Germans were present.

At the republican Congressional and Judicial conventions, held at Rome City on the 14th, Theron P. Keator, of Fort Wayne, was nominated for Congress on the first ballot over J. W. Baker, of Whitley county. Henry C. Peterson, of Auburn, was re-nominated for Prosecutor by acclamation.

Chicago News: What is the matter with the second volume of Mr. Blaine's book that it fails to materialize? Is the eminent statesman waiting for Mrs. Maria Hairpin's affidavit, to publish in the appendix, or hasn't the engraver completed his fac-simile of the Mulligan letters?

The democratic congressional convention for the Lucas-Erie district, of Ohio, renominated Frank Hurd, the noted tariff reformer, by acclamation at Oak Harbor on the 20th. This is Mr. Hurd's seventh race in which he has been successful alternately three times out of six. The opposition to his renomination, by a certain faction of Toledo democrats, was quite formidable, but the "Little Giant" outgeneraled his foes and sailed in at the head of the triumphant procession in a blaze of glory.

Ex-Senator Joseph E. McDonald, of Indianapolis, says the Chicago News, arrived at the Palmer House last night. On the political outlook in Indiana he said: "The democratic party in our state was never in better shape. We have no defections there. At Indiandianapolis the largest delegations in attendance at our ratification meeting were from the Irish wards. The prohibition vote will not be large, nor will Butler get more than 12,000 votes in the state. The republicans will be weakened by both the prohibitionists and the greenbackers. As in Indiana, so it seems to be in the nation. The democrats have now the best chance of success."

Editorial Notes & Comments.

In Massachusetts the outlook is cheering. The independents are fighting every inch of ground and in conjunction with the straightout democrats heroic work is being done for Cleveland. Butler's candidacy does not materially change the situation.

Blaine harps a great deal about protection to American labor. He pays the men who work his mines only 60 cents a day and says this is enough for a day's labor. O, Jim Blaine is the friend of the laboring man, in all that tends to increase his individual bank account.

Storm signals are up in the state of Vermont. At a convention of republicans held at Brattleboro on the 21st, resolutions were adopted denouncing Blaine in vigorous and outspoken language and pledging him "their hearty and inflexible opposition."

Chicago News: If Blaine editors think Cleveland's letter such a weak "give-away" let them republish it every day from now until November, with a fresh, stinging editorial on it each day. If the letter does not come out ahead in the long run we are no judges of the effect of clear, simple truths earnestly told.

Massachusetts independents have a perfect organization and they are working the campaign for all that is in it. They look beyond the boundaries of their state for surprising results, and even entertain the hope of carrying Connecticut and New Hampshire for Cleveland.

Evidence is daily accumulating convicting Blaine of complicity in the Little Rock and Union Pacific railroad swindling operations as alleged while speaker of congress, and out of which he made himself immensely rich. This evidence is of such a damaging nature that it stamps him as a man wholly unfit to occupy the Presidential chair.

Samuel J. Tilden is a gentleman who is averse to interviewers in general. But he opened his lips the other day and told no less a person than Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, that the Democrats could not have nominated, so far as New York State is concerned, a stronger man for President than Grover Cleveland. He had watched the career of Gov. Cleveland closely, and he believed that no Democrat who had the best interest of the government at heart would vote against his election. "I knew Mr. Cleveland before he was ever spoken of for Governor," said Mr. Tilden, "and I believe he will make as good a President of the United States as he has made a faithful Chief Executive of this State. I have no doubt of his election."

The Michigan democracy evidently like the straightforwardness of Grover Cleveland. Their excellent organ, the Detroit Free Press, declares that the letter of acceptance "is a model in its brevity; yet it covers the ground admirably. From beginning to end the earnestness and sincerity of the man are apparent. It shows his thorough appreciation of the responsibilities of the Presidential office and betokens the business like manner in which, if elected, he will address himself to the work of administering the laws."

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Another human monstrosity comes to the front from San Angelo, Tex., said to be a little girl of natural form but completely covered with large scales like those of a fish.

At Delphi, Ind., the remains of Private William Whistler, one of the Arctic dead, were disinterred and examined in the presence of about forty persons. Four doctors made the evidences of embalming as were found in the case of Khedingbury.

The remains of the eminent war correspondent McGahan, arrived at New York from Constantinople Thursday morning. After lying in state in the Governor's room in the City Hall, they will be forwarded to his Ohio home.

Gen. Leroy Pope Walker, the great secretary of war in Jefferson Davis Confederate cabinet, and who gave the order for firing on Fort Sumter, died at his home in Huntsville, Ala., after a brief illness.

According to the Catholic Directory for 1884, the whole number of Catholics in the United States is 6,682,170.

On Sunday the French fleet opened a bombardment on the Chinese defenses at Pac-Chow. The engagement lasted only about seven minutes and the Chinese were defeated with terrible slaughter.

Acting upon the hint recently thrown out by the HEADLIGHT, the Richland republicans are making a feeble show of fight, and on Wednesday evening held a meeting to organize a Blaine and Logan club.

The democratic executive committee is busy sending out documents and getting into line of battle. The outlook in all parts of the Union is promising.

Jonas Engel, for seventeen years the leading clothier of Kendallville, has a new advertisement in this paper calling attention to his full stock of goods.

Ex Mayor Reemis, of Toledo, was nominated for Congress in the Lucas-Erie district by the republican convention at Fremont on the 22. The race lies between Hurd and Reemis with the chances in favor of the former.

We noticed Treasurer Miller's arrival into town the other day on a load of wheat, the product of his 200 acre farm near Corunna.

The democracy in this campaign have one hundred thousand office holders, and the immense patronage they control to contend against. Yet with honesty and right on our side, with proper effort we can surely win.

The lady announced to lecture at this place week before last failed to put in an appearance. It is just as well perhaps, as Calkins denounces the temperance people a set of cranks, and the republicans care more about party success in this campaign than temperance.

Albert Bochsten, at present a resident of Hillsdale, Mich., whither he removed a year ago for the purpose of giving his only son the benefit of the educational institutions of that place, who has been stopping here for several days looking after his real estate and other interests, returned home Wednesday. Mr. Bochsten expresses himself as well pleased with the surroundings at his new home.

A general order has been issued from the headquarters of the Lake Shore road, requiring all employes of the road who do business with the traveling public to procure for themselves a uniform, and states that a special train will leave New York September 1st to take measures of all employes for their new clothes. Some of the boys are justly indignant at the dictation by their superiors of what they shall wear, especially as the suits cost twenty seven dollars, and there is no choice in the matter but to purchase them of the company's tailor.

Oliver H. Widney, the democratic nominee for Commissioner of the southeast district, has been a prominent factor in the busy sessions of the Board for nearly two years past. As president of the Board his mature judgment in passing upon financial matters of interest to the taxpayers of DeKalb, Mr. Widney has evinced executive ability that must commend him to the people as a faithful and efficient public servant. Under his administration 200 miles of ditch has been constructed and the county indebtedness reduced $17,000. What more convincing argument could be presented in favor of Mr. Widney's re-election as Commissioner?

THE SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES.

The Century Magazine, published by the Century Company, New York, at 35 cents a number or $4 a year. In its contents the September Century aims to rival the August "Midsummer Holiday Number" in entertaining summer reading, as well as in articles of unusual importance. Pictorially, it is also of a popular character.

St. Nicholas, a magazine for Boys and Girls, published by the same firm, price $3 a year, 25 cents a number. St. Nicholas for September is an especially attractive number, containing a happy combination of those features which go to make up a successful child's magazine. In stories, verse and profuse illustrations, there is enough to amuse and instruct the readers.

Godey's Lady's Book for September contains the usual variety of entertaining matter, of that high standard found only in magazines of the first-class.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

THE OLD CAMP GROUND.

Memorable Reunion of the Army of West Virginia amid the Scenes of the Past. what Cumberland is doing to make it Pleasant for the Boys.

Next month, the first week, the Army of West Virginia assembles in annual reunion at Cumberland—a veritable meeting again on the old camp ground. "My Maryland's" second city in commercial rank, but otherwise by many claimed the first, is getting into gala attire for the momentous event with a heartiness and an enthusiasm which cannot but make this year's meeting one of the happiest and most thoroughly enjoyable known since the organization of the Society. Each and every one habitant appears to look upon it as a boundless and at the same time, joyous duty to make the gallant soldier boys believe there can be no place like "the Queen City." If more than one of the whilom lads to blue leaves not his heart with the girl he left behind him in the lovely town, it will not be the fault of the famed belles of Cumberland. Big, open-hearted and hospitable people, there will be such an opening of doors and so great the multiplicity of latch-strings hanging on the outside, that the boys will wonder if they have not fallen upon a town where the entire population is as a single family.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is one of Cumberland's greatest institutions, the leader, in fact, for about the solid old corporation cluster many of the foremost enterprises of the city. No wonder then that the B. & O. should enter heartily into the spirit pervading the place, and threw open its entire great system to a rate of but half the regular fare.

The reunion commences on September 2d and continues to and including the 4th. The round trip railroad tickets go on sale August 30th, and will be sold good for the trip to and including September 4th. For the return trip they will be accepted for passage up to and including September 9th. This affords a limit of ten full days, certainly a liberal opportunity to enjoy the benefits of the exceedingly low rates and the strikingly entertaining series of events on the card for the week. This will be an old-time located camp, located conveniently to the central point of interest, and it will be most comfortably arranged and thoroughly and managed. Sheridan will be of the distinguished generals present, and Hancock, McClellan, Rosecrans, Sigel, Kelley, Hunter Schenck, Emory, Crook, Carroll, McMillan, Carlin, and a host of others, with all the several commanders of the army of West Virginia—Hayes (ex-President) Duval, Averill, Goff, Powell and great names until they would fill a column of space. Every detail will be looked after to insure the comfort and convenience of all. No extra charge of any character will be made at the hotels or elsewhere, and at "Camp Thoburn" meals will be furnished at the nominal price of 25 cents and no charge for lodging.

Following the close of the Society exercises on the 4th there will be a grand parade of military (present Army posts, veterans, etc., etc. Then will come visits to the most memorable of battle-grounds, the B. & O. having arranged for throwing open its Valley division to exceptionally low rates in order that all may again behold the scenes of the struggles that years ago "tried men's souls." No such opportunity has hitherto been vouchsafed for a jaunt to the historic ground, and an especially interesting feature will be the return via the wonderful (new of Luray.

We learn that arrangements have been made for a fine bicycle race during the Fair on the race track. This is one of the most beautiful and exciting of contests.

This Year

If never before, you want a DAILY paper. It is the year of the Presidential contest. Never before have the two great parties apparently been so evenly matched for the struggle. You want to know what is going on, and you want to know it without delay. You want a DAILY paper; but you DON'T want an "organ"—that is, if you want ALL the news and want it honestly and impartially presented. You don't want your political intelligence discolored and perverted to suit the requirements of an organ of either political party. You want FACTS—ALL the facts—just as they are, favorable or unfavorable. With these honestly presented from day to day you are in position to intelligently form your own opinions; they will serve you better than the ready-made "opinions" of the "organ." The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself as meeting your need at this time. It is a complete newspaper in all the requirements of American journalism. It is a member of the Western Associated Press. It prints all the news, completely but concisely. It is not a "blanket-sheet."

READ WHAT THEY SAY OF IT.

"IS AS GOOD A NEWSPAPER AS OUR GREAT weekly represent."—PAUL O. STEVENS, Galva, Ill.

"IT IS A FIRST-CLASS NEWSPAPER IN EVERY respect."—Litchfield Car and Machine Company, Litchfield, Ill.

"YOUR COLUMN OF 'SHARPS AND FLATS' IS worth the price of the paper."—M. D. MASSIE, New Canton, Ill.

"THINK IT SHOULD BE IN THE HOUSE OF every lover of good morals in the State of Illinois."—PHILIP WOOD, Girard, Ill.

"I CONSIDER IT THE BEST PAPER OF ITS class in the United States, not excepting the New York Sun, which I have also read for many years."—DAVID WALKER, P. M., Moulton, Ill.

"I LIKE YOUR PAPER. BREVITY IS SAID to be the soul of wit. You give all the news and in such form that a very busy man can keep posted on current events and lose no time from his business."—A. B. AVERY, Neponset, Ill.

"HAVE LONG KNOWN THAT THE DAILY News is considered the best daily published in the United States. The Daily Sun of New York, in my opinion, is the second in rank."—DR. K. P. HOWARD, Ipava, Ill.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is an INDEPENDENT newspaper. It presents political news free from partisan coloring, without fear or favor as to any party's interests. It has its own opinions upon all the questions of the day, and is accustomed to express them without reserve. If you are a partisan extremist and tender about adverse criticism of your pet political theories, perhaps you had better let it alone. It may not agree with you—sometimes. But to the fair-minded reader, who demands impartial, honest, pure, and enterprising journalism, the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself, confident of meeting every reasonable requirement.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, SEPT. 15, 1884

PUBLIC OPINION.

Chicago News: "After much earnest and solicitous deliberation I deem it to be my duty, while abating naught of loyalty to the republican party, but rather to promote its true purpose and strengthen it for future good work, to support the democratic nominee, Gov. Cleveland." Thus writes the Hon. Theddeus C. Pound, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Not since the first revolt of leading republicans in the east against Blaine's nomination has there been such an important independent utterance. For years Mr. Pound has been an unwavering leader in the republican party. He was a prominent member of the legislature in 1864, 1866, 1867, and 1869. In 1869 he was elected lieutenant-governor of Wisconsin, and in 1876 to congress from the 8th district, then embracing over half the area of the state. He served three terms in congress, taking a leading position. At the end of his third term he declined a renomination, in order to attend to his private business.

But it is not because of what Mr. Pound has been that his repudiation of Blaine is noteworthy. It is the manner and the cause that are significant. He refers to the singularly pure and progressive administration of Gen. Arthur as having deserved a continuance of "the faithful servant," and not the nomination of a man whose life "most in American politics that is menacing to public morals and integrity in government." When a man like Mr. Pound asserts that in a long public career Mr. Blaine has not been "the inspiration of a single valuable policy or the author of an important statute," some good people may give themselves the trouble to reflect what they are supporting Blaine for, anyhow. Mr. Pound charges Blaine with having invaded "the administration of the lamented Garfield with demands of personal vengeance so virulent as to inflame the spirit of assassination," and declares that "reference to Blaine's congressional record relating to subsidies, class legislation, corporate exactions, etc., will readily satisfy the honest inquirer of his uniform support of monopolies and indifference to the common weal." Further, Mr. Pound says: "Mr. Blaine is objectionable for the friends he has made. Will the chief promoters of his nomination be his chief advisers if elected?" And then he concludes? "While Mr. Blaine is known to be unworthy, Gov. Cleveland has demonstrated his fitness and worthiness for the position by his fidelity, ability, and integrity in the discharge of his executive duties" It would be interesting to see Mr. Pound's letter reproduced in the Chicago Tribune, which he includes among the least objectionable of Blaine's pet supporters, who in 1876 and 1880 were his accusers, and charged him "with bribery and other penitentiary crimes."

—The monster mass meeting of Irish men and women at the Academy of Music in New York on the evening of the 27th rather plastered Blaine's record by passing the following, among other resolutions, viz.:

"That James G. Blaine, during twenty years of official life, never interested himself in the welfare of American citizens, who, while abroad, were deprived of their liberties and rights without authority of law, and, while Secretary of State, not only failed but refused to interfere and exert the influence of the United States government in behalf of such citizens."

And at the same assembly, by unanimous action, they resolved:

"That the official record which Gov. Cleveland has made is ample guarantee that as President of the United States he will not fail in his duty to support the principles enunciated in the platform of the National Democratic Convention and in the protection of the rights of all citizens."

Our impression is that the doomed Knight" will be liable to another sun stroke by November 4.—Toledo Bee

—Kansas City Star: St. John is the only presidential candidate who was ever indicted, and, singularly enough, he is proud of it. The indictment was brought against him in Illinois in 1862, and it was for a violation of the black laws of which John A. Logan was the author.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The democratic press of the United States, reviewing the past twenty-three years of republican rule, piles up the following formidable array of mischiefs and frauds and scandals against successive republican administrations:

The Credit Mobilier swindle.
The Boss Shepherd ring frauds.
The safe burglary iniquity.
The whisky frauds.
The Freedmen's bank swindle.
The Belknap impeachment.
The Robeson naval frauds.
The Sanborn frauds.
The Indian bureau frauds.
The pension bureau frauds
The Black Friday rascality.
The theft of the presidency in 1876.
The Indian bribery in 1880.
The Blaine Speakership Jobbery.
The star-route frauds.

Evidently editor O. J. Powell did not know that he was fooling with a live hornet when he picked up J. Wm. Wagner.

Chicago News: Perhaps Ben Butler has gone to the northwest to meet Sitting Bull and negotiate a swap of his presidential nomination for a string of beads.

The callow youth with a gimblet propensity, who officiates o'nights as servant at the restaurant counter of the B. & O. dining hall, had better put a padlock on his mouth until he is dry behind the ears.

We hear many complaints of the stench from the alleys and outhouses. Marshal, attention.

The democrats of Keyser were never in better shape than at this time. No danger of any scratching this fall: the candidates give complete satisfaction, and look out for Keyser.

Powell says that the democrats show very little zeal in the present canvass. True enough if "wind" is the kind he means. We don't wish to rob the republicans of their trade mark.

Mrs. W. J. Frederick is visiting friends in the Buckeye state.

Our lumber merchants are doing a flourishing business.

Mrs. Parnell has been interviewed, and whatever others of her race may think of Mr. Blaine, she does not regard him as the friend of the Irish in this country. She says: "If I had a vote I certainly should not cast it for Mr. Blaine. His record certainly shows him never to have been the champion of Irishmen, and I fail to see on what the claim rests that is now put forward by him. I am dreadfully afraid of Blaine."

The Garrett Cleveland and Hendricks club organized by electing the following officers: President, N. W. Blackburn. Secretary, F. M. Bacon. First and Second Vice-Presidents, G. W. Franzein and A. Ballert. Corresponding Secretary, L. J. Gengler. The club meets every Friday night.

The Odd Fellows gave a festival Friday night, and as usual it was a pleasant affair.

The pole raising by the German democrats, of East Keyser, on Monday evening, was a grand success. Candidate Moody gave the boys one of his best speeches.

The Sheriff of Allen county passed through Garrett recently with two prisoners for Michigan City.

The attention of the village Marshal is called to the great number of cur dogs that infest our streets. Kill every last mother's son of them.

The Garrett brass band has re-organized and is now in good shape to furnish music for all political meetings. The boys make good music. For further information and terms, address F. M. Bacon manager.

COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE.

New York Mail and Express: The Boston correspondent of the Hartford Courant calls attention to a fact that must have been noticed by every one who reads the Boston papers—the immense advertising done by certain dry-goods firms. He says: "R. H. White & Co. often occupy a whole page of two or three of the morning papers, and Jordan, Marsh & Co. take two pages. This latter firm drive the Herald, Journal and Globe out of their editorial page altogether. They probably pay the Herald as much as $1,500 for a single one of these insertions, and they are repeated several days, and extend from one week into another. This is a part of the expense which it is assumed that shoppers have to pay, but they appear to find bargains to their satisfaction notwithstanding."

The same thing is true in Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and other cities. In the Quaker City, Wanamaker and Strawbridge & Clothier frequently occupy a page, and sometimes several pages, in the Press and Times, and in the Illinois metropolis there are several firms who habitually advertise in the same magnificent way in the leading journals.

The late A. T. Stewart, who was probably the best known merchant in the United States while he lived, and could have done without advertising better than any other man, was probably in this respect the most liberal in his policy of any of the New York business men. And Mr. Stewart was not the sort of a man to pursue that policy unless he found that it paid.

NUMBER THREE.

On Brady street a boy about 13 years old stood outside the fence and received a hatful of cherries from a boy 9 or 10 on the inside. There was something so sweetly friendly and charitable in the action that a pedestrian crossed over and said to the small boy after the big one had moved on:

"Sonny, did you sell him the cherries?"

"No, sir."

"Gave them of your own free will, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, he looks like a poor boy who can't buy fruit, and it was a noble act of yours."

"That's what I think, too, sir. He's been licking me all summer, and—"

"And you heaped coals of fire on his head?"

"No, sir. I fixed to heap a quart of half-ripe cherries into his stomach, and if he doesn't howl and twist and yell and tie up into hard knots before night then he's too mean for the colic to tackle! He's the third one I've paid off that way this week."—Detroit Free Press.

SOCIETY NOTE.

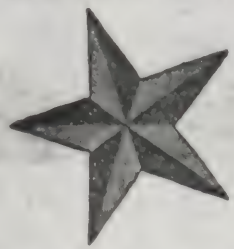

At a fashionable gathering on Austin avenue, among other things that were discussed at the supper table was the exceedingly high price of beef. Mrs. ———, who has more money than manners, ventured the explanation that the high price of beef was in some way connected with scarcity of cattle. This explanation seemed to satisfy everybody except her nearly grown son, who, to talk plain, is little better than a fool.

"But, mother," said the bright youth, "if cattle are scarce, there are plenty of dogs and cats. Why don't we eat them as well as beef and mutton?"

"Foolish boy," retorted his mother, toying with her diamond ring, "why do we wash our hands and faces, but never our feet?"—Texas Siftings.

The Maine Election.

The Chicago Daily News, an independent republican paper, in its issue of the 9th has the following report of Monday's election in Maine:

The news from Maine so far as received at this writing indicates that the figures given by the DAILY NEWS yesterday of 81,000 for the republican and 65,000 for the democratic candidate will not be very far out. This must be considered as a stand-off. The total vote will probably not rise above that of September, 1880, when it reached 147,845. As the natural increase for four years would be about 8,000, it is evident that the whole vote of Maine has not been cast this time. When it is considered what a desperate effort was made to make a great showing for Blaine in his own state, how voters were brought home from the Boston wharves, the Washington departments, and even from Arraway Minnesota, it is apparent that the victory of yesterday is nothing to brag about. Garfield carried Maine by a plurality of 8,558 in 1880; Hayes by 16,557 in 1876, Grant by 32,235 in 1872, and by 28,083 in 1868; and Lincoln by 17,592 in 1864, and it is probable that Blaine's plurality next November will be close up to the average. It would be a surprise if it were less.

The republicans of New Hampshire have just nominated for governor a man who is 78 years old. This is certainly a pretty ancient candidate, but the chances are that he will live as long as his party.

The republicans carried Vermont by a large majority, of course, but the decreased vote shows that they didn't "sweep the state like a whirlwind," by a good deal, and perhaps that pleasing figure of speech will not be so incautiously used during the rest of the campaign.

A communication to the Baltimore Herald is signed by "a man with thirteen wounds." A wondering world would like to have this man explain whether he has been in consultation with a threshing machine or shaking hands with the wrong terminus of a government mule.

Gov. St. John is the only candidate who has dyed for his country.

To Workingmen.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Has not the Republican party controlled the national administration for almost twenty-four years?

Has it not enacted all the laws during that time?

Has it not executed the laws by men of its choice?

Has the party brought prosperity to you and your families?

Are you working for good wages all the time?

Are there no mills closed?

Are wages not cut down?

Do you find living cheap, rents low, provisions aboundant and low priced clothing and other supplies down to the cut in pay?

How many days have you been idle since last New Years? Can you tell when work will be abundant and wages good?

Are business affairs satisfactory to you?

Did not the Republican party make business affairs what they are and as bad as they are?

How much more are your wages today than they were four years ago, when this same Republican party promised you more pay and more work if you would support its ticket?

Who has grown richer in the last four years of Republican policy, you or the men who were rich then and who seek to allure you with the same sort of argument now?

Don't you remember that you were told that if you would vote for Garfield you would have prosperity; for Hancock; adversity? What have you now?

Arkansas has gone democratic by the usual big majority. The Arkansas voters exhibit an ungrateful disregard of the man in Maine who has done so much to foster the railroad interests of their state.

It is hoped that the decrease of the republican vote in Vermont will not be followed by the painful statement that Mr. Blaine's health is about 30 per cent. worse than it was before.

PARLIAMENTARY RULES.

Nicklos Smith arose to a question of order. At a late meeting he had offered a resolution, and the same had been amended by Shhidig Watkins. The President had stated the question to be on the amendment and called for a vote. Was he right? Brother Smith had hunted up and carefully read the proceedings of Congress for several weeks, but had secured no light on the subject. Two different tinsmiths had informed him that the President was wrong and he would like a decision in the club.

"I presume I can decide dat queshun," said the Rev. Penstock as he arose.

"I presume you had better sot down!" firmly replied the President as he brought his gavel down on the desk. "In parliamentary tactics dis club am generally guided by Shakspeare, but in an occashuns when even Shakspeare fails to hit de case in pint. Whenever Brudder Smith am dissatisfied wid any of de rulings of dis club he knows de peg on which his ole white hat hangs, an' he knows de way down dere!"

Brother Smith explained in a very humble manner that he did not intend to question the wisdom and statesmanship of the President, and but for the fact that he had been using hot cider and cayenne pepper all day as a remedy for neuralgia he would probably not have adverted to the matter at all.—Detroit Free Press.

The London Fire Brigade has but fifty steam engines and 500 firemen. The estimated value of the property to be protected is $6,000,000,000, and Londoners pay an insurance premium of 120th part of 1 per cent. Ten years ago Capt. Shaw asked in vain for an annual appropriation of $800,000, which is only $100,000 more than he gets today.

SMALL FEET, OR BIG SHOES.

There was another poor fellow, a very small man, who had received a very large pair of shoes, and had not yet been able to effect any exchange. One day the sergeant was drilling the company on the facings—Right face, Left face, Right-about face—and, of course, watched his men's feet closely to see that they went through the movements promptly. Noticing one pair of feet down the line that never budged at the command, the Sergeant rushed up to the possessor of them, with drawn sword, and in menacing tones demanded:

"What do you mean by not facing about when I tell you? I'll have you put in the guard-house."

"Why, I did, sergeant!" said the trembling recruit.

"You did not, sir! Didn't I watch your feet? They never moved an inch."

"Why, you see," said the poor fellow, "my shoes are so big that they don't turn when I do. I go though the motions on the inside of them."—St. Nicholas.

LITTLE TROUBLES IN BILL ARP'S FAMILY.

Carl has mashed the nail off of his big toe and it is just awful, and the girls have been gone three weeks and Ralph is away with the traveling thrasher and Jessie has lost her new thimble and we are mighty lonesome and the sun shines mighty hot and the corn is curling in the blades, but still we are hopeful and trying to be calm and serene. Jessie says it takes about half her time to find her mother's spectacles. I shall have to get a new pair I know, for when I was brushing down the dead flies off the wall yesterday Mrs. Arp went round after me and thought the nail-heads I wore flies and made me brush at 'em all again before she was satisfied. You can't brush nail-heads off with a broom, but it's always best to try to do so the second time.—Bill Arp, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Mr. Blaine, it seems, dodged the prohibitory amendment Monday. This was to be expected. It was entirely consistent with his record.

Utica Observer: "The iron heel of monopoly is on the neck of labor," remarked Ben, as he showed the conductor his pass.

The New York Sun pays Gov. Cleveland the compliment of reprinting a detailed report of the hanging of the two cold-blooded murders a dozen years ago by Sheriff Cleveland. The report shows that Sheriff Cleveland did his sworn duty, obnoxious to him though it was.

Now that Mrs. Lockwood has accepted the nomination of the equal-rights party for president of this land of the free and home of the brave, we believe the antes are all up. Let the game proceed.

—Cleveland Plaindealer; There is great alarm at Columbus amongst the Republicans. Yesterday the State Republican Committee, John Sherman and Foster, had a meeting. It was determined to make an appeal to the East for $150,000 in money to carry the state. Foster is to be made Postmaster General in case of Blaine's election which means that the "Dutch shall go"

The Democrats are willing to concede Maine to Blaine next Tuesday. He has had about 100 orators stumping the state for him during the past six weeks, and has tapped his "barl" in a lively manner. The Democrats have had no one from abroad, and are making their fight with but few speakers from out of the state. If Blaine's people do not carry the state by 15,000 majority, it will be a wonder.

The democrats of this Joint Representative district, comprising the counties of DeKalb, Noble and Elkhart, met in convention at Kendallville last Tuesday and nominated Captain Barney, of Elkhart. A good nomination and one that will win.

The Cleveland and Hendricks Club, in command of Captain Jack, were out on parade for the first time, last Tuesday night, in full uniform with lamps trimmed and burning.

The Greenbackers of DeKalb met in convention at Waterloo last Tuesday and nominated the following county ticket: For Representative, Wm. Wallace; Treasurer, Chas. Imus; Sheriff, George Loutzenhiser; Surveyor, Wm. Francis; Coroner, Enos Vian; Commissioners, Miles Chatman and John A. Walker.

The democrats of Richland and Fairfield raised three fine hickory poles at this village on Tuesday, and hoisted a handsome banner on the north side of the bridge bearing the names of Cleveland and Hendricks, the next President and Vice-President of the United States. W. H. Dills, candidate for presidential elector, made one of his characteristic argumentative speeches in the evening to a large and attentive audience. Quite a number of democrats were present from Auburn and elsewhere.

SMALL FEET OR BIG SHOES.

There was another poor fellow, a very small man, who had received a very large pair of shoes, and had not yet been able to effect any exchange. One day the sergeant was drilling the company on the facings—Right face, Left face, Right-about face—and, of course, watched his men's feet closely to see that they went through the movements promptly. Noticing one pair of feet down the line that never budged at the command, the Sergeant rushed up to the possessor of them, with drawn sword, and in menacing tones demanded:

"What do you mean by not facing about when I tell you? I'll have you put in the guard-house."

"Why, I did, sergeant!" said the trembling recruit.

"You did not, sir! Didn't I watch your feet? They never moved an inch."

"Why, you see," said the poor fellow, "my shoes are so big that they don't turn when I do. I go though the motions on the inside of them."—St. Nicholas.

LITTLE TROUBLES IN BILL ARP'S FAMILY.

Carl has mashed the nail off of his big toe and it is just awful, and the girls have been gone three weeks and Ralph is away with the traveling thrasher and Jessie has lost her new thimble and we are mighty lonesome and the sun shines mighty hot and the corn is curling in the blades, but still we are hopeful and trying to be calm and serene. Jessie says it takes about half her time to find her mother's spectacles, I shall have to get a new pair I know, for when I was brushing down the dead flies off the wall yesterday Mrs. Arp went round after me and thought the naidhes I were flies and made me brush 'em all again before she was satisfied. You can't brush nailheads off with a broom, but it's always best to try to do so the second time.—Bill Arp, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Mr. Blaine, it seems, dodged the prohibitory amendment Monday. This was to be expected. It was entirely consistent with his record.

Utica Observer: "The iron heel of monopoly is on the neck of labor," remarked Ben, as he showed the conductor his pass.

The New York Sun pays Gov. Cleveland the compliment of reprinting a detailed report of the hanging of the two cold-blooded murders a dozen years ago by Sheriff Cleveland. The report shows that Sheriff Cleveland did his sworn duty, obnoxious to him though it was.

Now that Mrs. Lockwood has accepted the nomination of the equal-rights party for president of this land of the free and home of the brave, we believe the antes are all up. Let the game proceed.

—Cleveland Plaindealer; There is great alarm at Columbus amongst the Republicans. Yesterday the State Republican Committee, John Sherman and Foster, had a meeting. It was determined to make an appeal to the East for $150,000 in money to carry the state. Foster is to be made Postmaster General in case of Blaine's election, which means that the "Dutch shall go"

The Democrats are willing to concede Maine to Blaine next Tuesday. He has had about 100 orators stumping the state for him during the past six weeks, and has tapped his "barl" in a lively manner. The Democrats have had no one from abroad, and are making their fight with but few speakers from out of the state. If Blaine's people do not carry the state by 15,000 majority, it will be a wonder.

The democrats of this Joint Representative district, comprising the counties of DeKalb, Noble and Elkhart, met in convention at Kendallville last Tuesday and nominated Captain Harvey, of Elkhart. A good nomination and one that will win.

The Cleveland and Hendricks Club, in command of Captain Jack, were out on parade for the first time, last Tuesday night, in full uniform with lamps trimmed and burning.

The Greenbackers of DeKalb met in convention at Waterloo last Tuesday and nominated the following county ticket: For Representative, Wm. Wallace; Treasurer, Chas. Imus; Sheriff, George Lontzenhiser; Surveyor, Wm. Francis; Coroner, Enos Vian; Commissioners, Miles Chatman and John A. Walker.

The democrats of Richland and Fairfield raised three fine hickory poles at this village on Tuesday, and hoisted a handsome banner on the north side of the bridge bearing the names of Cleveland and Hendricks, the next President and Vice-President of the United States. W. H. Dills, candidate for presidential elector, made one of his characteristic argumentative speeches in the evening to a large and attentive audience. Quite a number of democrats were present from Auburn and elsewhere.

TRIPS THE FAST CLIPPERS MADE.

About the year 1844 began the most important era in the history American ship-building. Our Liverpool packets had already demonstrated the capabilities of our builders and mariners. The clipper-ship Canada, for example, under the command of Capt. Macy, made her trips almost with the regularity of a steamer. From fourteen to sixteen days was the average length of her voyages between the two ports. This may have been an extreme case, perhaps, but the fact remains that these liners made a remarkable record. Without discussing the question concerning the respective merits of our clipper and foreign ships, it is not too strong a statement to say that for the period of perhaps fifteen years, during which our vessels circled the globe in their voyages, and spread their vast expanse of canvas in every sea, the runs made by American vessels have never been surpassed by sail and rarely equaled by steam. Donald McKay, about the year 1844, commenced to win his world-wide reputation for building clipper-ships of a size and speed hitherto unequaled. The clipper-ship James Baines, built by McKay, ran 420 miles in twenty-five hours. The Red Jacket, built by Thomas, at Rockland, Me., in 1853, became celebrated after her first trip, when she made the remarkable run from New York to Liverpool in thirteen days one hour and twenty-five minutes, then the fastest time on record for a sailing ship, and it has not been beaten since, I believe, except in one instance. The Flying Cloud, McKay's most celebrated ship, once made 374 knots, or 433 miles, in twenty-four hours and twenty-five minutes, equal to 17.17 miles an hour.—Providence Journal.

In the past four years 198 French boys and 40 French girls have taken their own lives. Of these 200 were over 12 years of age, twenty-one between 12 and 10, four under 10 years, six below 9 and one only 7.

HOW A MOSQUITO BITES.

The bill is a complex institution. It has a blunt fork at the head, and is apparently grooved. Working through the groove, and projecting from the angle of the fork, is a lance of perfect form, sharpened with a fine bevel. Beside it the most perfect lance looks like a handsaw. On either side of this lance two saws are arranged, with the points fine and sharp and the teeth well-defined and keen. The backs of these saws play against the lance. When the mosquito alights with his peculiar hum, it thrusts its keen lance, and then enlarges the aperture with the two saws, which play beside the lance until the forked bill with its capillary arrangement for pumping blood can be inserted. The sawing process is what grates upon the nerves of the victim, and causes him to strike wildly at the sawer. Dr. Bushnell tried, in his essay on "The Moral Uses of Dark Things," to account for the existence of the mosquito by regarding it as a sort of "object lesson" intended to teach pestered humanity the exceeding hatefulness of "little sins." There is no doubt but a mosquito can bring out the little sins of humanity.

AN INGREDIENT OF JOURNALISM.

Boston Post: It is one of the contingencies of journalism that its very existence depends on its truthfulness. It dare not swerve one hair's breadth from the line of veracity, without being called in question. The antiquated fiction that truth lay at the bottom of a well is almost forgotten. It was promulgated before newspapers came into existence; and is now, by common consent, relegated to the limbo of exploded errors. In these days of grace, the truth-seeker goes to the columns of his newspaper, and his faith meets its just reward.

THE TOOTH-PICK SHOE.

It must have taken a very narrow-minded man to invent the tooth-pick shoe. It is very incisive in its manner toward long-winded beaux when wielded by the extemporaneous head of the house. The tooth-pick shoe has not that open countenance and winning way so characteristic of the brogan. It is less subdued and tractable. In the giddy maze it is more wild and delirious than the stega, which for decades has pelted the Irish shin and made the jig rattle with its levity. As a thing of comfort it is not the howling success that it might be if it were filled with sad corn and water and nature given a chance to take her course. The bunion, so dear to our heart, is not madly gone on the tooth-pick shoes, although the shoe has often made a "crush" upon it. As much as we think of the bunion, especially when hurt, we would just as soon part with it as we would with this narrow-minded shoe. The tooth-pick shoe was originally intended for mulattoes, who wanted them so tight that snakes could not play "pussy wants a corner" in them. They are not, as many have supposed, to be used in digging chunks of pie out of the dark caverns of our store teeth, but to encase our feet and join our toes into an interrogation point, and thrust our mind into sore distress and the mud-hole of perdition. They are fashionable and perhaps this is the worst stigma we can thrust upon them without quoting Ben Butler. They are having their run, and first thing you know they will be run down at the heel of fashionable folly, and then, poor wasp-waisted tooth pick shoe, you will have to hobble down the back alley of the past and stumble over the high board fence of oblivion and bake in the hot sun of neglect on the frog pond environed wood-pile of discarded popularity. We would that the day of tooth-pick shoes was yesterday a year ago. Blazes, how my corns do kick. Low-necked tooth-pick shoes you are a bully thing a long ways off.—The Eye.

HOW THE STREETS OF NAPLES WERE LIGHTED.

In the many narrow and intersecting streets of Naples the darkness was favorable to robbery and murder. The peaceful citizens hardly dared to cross his street even when the moon was at the full. At the ardent request of Gregorio Matteo, a popular monk, Charles III., by a former order, required that the banks, hospitals, the dwellings of the ministers, the ambassadors, and of the nobles, should have lamps placed in the doorways. But the monk did more than the King. Through his influence copies of the picture and crucifix, which adorned his cell, were put up at regular distances in the old quarters of the city. Then the Pope, at his request, granted special indulgences to any who should set up a lamp before those pictures and crucifixes; and this fact the monk announced in his sermons. Very soon every one was wishing for the privilege of supplying oil for the lamps which were to hang before the Madonna's image and the Saviour's cross. In order to satisfy all, it was at first necessary to restrict the permission to one or two days, and then to increase the number of the picture and crosses. Thus was Naples lighted for the first time.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

If Mr. Blaine now fails to bring a third libel suit against the Eastern Argus, Portland, Me., we shall believe he has a reason for his failure. Hear it:

The Massachusetts Independents appreciate just the kind of juggler they have to deal with and have been looking up his Washington social record, with abundant results in the scandal line. It confirms the statement of Mr. Gifford's letter that Mr. Blaine was refused association with Senator Morrill's family, and it reveals the sad tale of his seduction of a married Washington lady, who was put under his "protection" for the voyage to Europe by her devoted husband. The lady's father was a native of Maine of high standing and national reputation.

Chicago News: Considerable stress is being laid on the fact that Mr. Blaine was once a poor man. Then there is no room for question that once he was the poor man's friend. However, perhaps the least said about his poverty the better for Mr. Blaine, since some inquisitive stranger may want to know how a poor man can become ten times a millionaire on twenty years in congress at $5,000 a year.

Mr. Blaine should lose no time in answering the questions put to him by the Indianapolis Sentinel. If the charges made against him and his family are untrue he should hasten to prove that he is indeed a plumed knight by visiting destruction on the traducer of his household.

Ben's nephew, George H. Butler, announces his intention to vote for Blaine. This leads the Brooklyn Eagle to observe that he is not sober enough to vote for Cleveland and not drunk enough to vote for Ben.

As the republican vote of Vermont shows a decrease of over 20 per cent., it would seem that the hope of the party is in "spot cash" and imported "niggers" rather than in personal magnetism and "spontaneity."

The Chicago News in an article headed "Cleveland at Folger's Grave" draws the following striking pen picture:

No sorrow for the dead secretary of the treasury could close the eyes of those around his grave yesterday to the strong, quiet figure of Grover Cleveland standing in the midst of them paying his last tribute of respect to his late opponent. No solemn rites could banish thoughts of the relative positions of the dead and the living. The one was at last at rest. The other was engaged in the strife for the only office in this nation higher than the one for which they had been rivals two years ago. It is generally believed, upon well-grounded facts, that the defeat of 1882, when he was running for Governor of New York, hastened if it did not cause the death of Judge Folger. Cleveland's success in that election and his honorable conduct since unquestionably made him a presidential nominee to-day. What must have been Cleveland's unuttered emotions as he looked upon the coffin of his rival lowered into the peaceful earth and thought that his advancement probably cost that honorable life? What must have been the feelings of the representatives of those two New York political factions as they stood by the grave their fierce quarrel had dug? Cleveland, the man their bitter animosity had elevated, stood before them. Did the one faction regret its unwarranted defection from Folger? Did the other see in Cleveland the man to avenge the wrong done Judge Folger? November will an-

This Year

If never before, you want a DAILY paper. It is the year of the Presidential contest. Never before have the two great parties apparently been so evenly matched for the struggle. You want to know what is going on, and you want to know it without delay. You want a DAILY paper; but you DON'T want an "organ"—that is, if you want ALL the news and want it honestly and impartially presented. You don't want your political intelligence discolored and perverted to suit the requirements of an organ of either political party. You want FACTS—ALL the facts—just as they are, favorable or unfavorable. With these honestly presented from day to day you are in position to intelligently form your own opinions; they will serve you better than the ready-made "opinions" of the "organ." The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself as meeting your need at this time. It is a complete newspaper in all the requirements of American journalism. It is a member of the Western Associated Press. It prints all the news, completely but concisely. It is not a "blanket-sheet."

READ WHAT THEY SAY OF IT.

"I CONSIDER IT THE BEST PAPER OF ITS class in the United States, and excepting the New York Sun, which I have also read for many years."—Daniel Hazeltine, M. Hoopeston, Ill.

"I LIKE YOUR PAPER. BREVITY IS SAID to be the soul of wit. You give us the news and in such terse form that a very busy man can keep posted on current events and time from his business."—J. Avery, Newspaper, Ill.

"HAVE LONG KNOWN THAT THE DAILY News is pronounced the best daily published in the United States. The Daily News of New York, is my opinion, is the nearest to it."—M. F. Mecum, Clare, Ill.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is an INDEPENDENT newspaper. It presents political news free from partisan coloring, without fear or favor as to any party's interests. It has its own opinions upon all the questions of the day, and is accustomed to express them without reserve. If you are a partisan extremist and tender about adverse criticism of your pet political theories, perhaps you had better let it alone. It may not agree with you—sometimes. But to the fair-minded reader, who demands impartial, honest, pure, and enterprising journalism, the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself, confident of meeting every reasonable requirement.

VOLUME VI. No. 124.

GARRETT, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, OCT. 15, 1884.

PUBLIC OPINION.

—New Orleans Times-Democrat: There has never been the shadow of a cause, however, why any voter who cherishes the time-honored principles of democracy should forswear his political faith and abandon the political practices of a lifetime.

—Chicago News: It is believed that Mr. Blaine will hire himself out to the dime museums after next November. We submit that such a course would be quite as dignified as the much cheaper exhibition he is making of himself at the present time.

—Chicago News: The Rev. E. P. Cleveland, presiding elder of the Freeport district of the methodist church, is well known throughout northern Illinois as a man whose words come from honest convictions and whose convictions are not rashly jumped at. When he says he has known his cousin, Gov. Cleveland, intimately all his life, and is willing to risk his reputation on his unbelief in the scandalous stories relating to the governor, it means something. And when he says he knows that Gov. Cleveland will soon come forward with a complete refutation of these scandals it means much —New York Herald: There has been an offensive and defensive treaty concluded between Blaine and Don Cameron in person with locked doors. The account is very suggestive of those alliances for plunder, ambition and revenge which stain the history of ancient Rome. Cameron has been Blaine's foe. His influence on the Pennsylvania delegation defeated Blaine for nomination at Cincinnati in 1876 [and aided in his defeat in 1880]. What Blaine promises him in the way of plunder, ambition, and revenge in return for this political activity at this "crisis" in the presidential canvass cannot long be kept secret.

That Blaine deems his situation to be "critical" appears in the dispatch. He appeals to Cameron for money, influence, and manipulation to help him in Ohio, and Cameron responds favorably—for a consideration.

—Chicago News: Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23. To the Editor: 1. Has James G. Blaine given the name of the person who performed the secret marriage of him to his wife in Millersburg in 1850? 2. Does he tell why he or they kept it a secret after they knew their and especially his wife's honor had been assailed? I am told he has, but I can't find it in print. EX-CAPT. DOBB, 81st O. V. R.

ANSWER.—1. Mr. Blaine has not told the public, nor has any one else, who performed the secret Kentucky marriage. 2. Mr. Blaine was charged with the seduction of his wife by the Portland (Me.) Argus in 1867, by the True Kentuckian in 1869, by the Nashville Banner and Chicago Times in 1876. He first disclosed his secret Kentucky marriage in his letter to Phelps on the 6th of the present month.

—Pomeroy's U. S. Democrat: Today we present several important letters to and from Blaine, and ask the attention of voters to those unimpeachable evidences of the venality, sordid avarice, and disposition to plunder on the part of James Gillespie Blaine, the republican candidate of the defeat that is already bearing him down to infamy.

Posing as a statesman!

In reality a thief!

Elected to legislate for the welfare of the people.

Using all his power of brain and of party machinery to rob, plunder, and add to the dishonor that of late years has sprung almost spontaneously from the seat of Government in Washington, working only with speculators who live by their sharpened wits; taking every advantage of position to work the Congressional racket for all it could be made to yield, urging those he was with to keep quiet while he proceeded with his stealing!

The same old story. Rob, rob, rob!

The same old republican gang.

The same old Yankee-ed smartness.

The Credit Mobilier; the whisky ring frauds; the Little Rock swindle, with a half million bank attachment. Fraudulent army contracts, Indian Agency swindles, Navy Department swindles, robberies, robberies, robberies!

The whirligig of time is showing who he is so plain that even a bloody shirt cannot hide the tattooed life of Blaine, one of the noted corruptionists of the country. From the head to the tail; from honest old Abe to bribing, blathering Blaine, the distance is indeed great. No wonder that honest republicans, independent republicans, honest democrats, honest greenback men, reformers, all, are uniting their strength and efforts to elect Cleveland and Hendricks, two men who have never used their talents, their influence, their positions, for purposes of plunder.

Cleveland's the Man.

"BONNIE DUNDEE."

Away with the robbers! let us boldly proclaim;
They have fooled us too often, be it said to our shame;
Away with such leaders, we'll find them no loss,
If each man is determined to be his own boss.

Then rally our forces the battle to fight,
The victory's certain when Right goes with Might,
With Labor and Honesty leading the van,
We'll prove to the Nation that Cleveland's the Man.

Then work well together and we shall see soon
That Logan will find he's a badly "pine coon,"
And Ben will go home, with the "Widow" to sob;
The tattooed Knight look for a different job.

Then shoulder to shoulder, with honor at stake,
The thieves we will rout, the machine we will break
And while peans of victory, exulting roll,
We'll place Cleveland and Hendricks at the head of the poll.

—[Pomeroy's U. S. Democrat.

"Burn this letter."—J. G. Blaine.

"Tell the truth."—Gov. Cleveland.

If Blaine is anxious to get that $50,000 from the Indianapolis Sentinel to use this campaign, he should not begin his libel suit in a court that can't reach it till he is as dead as Hayes; but should he wish the case to go before arburators he can get it there p. d. q.

"If Jackson were alive to-day, he would vote for me," says Butler. How is it with Mumfod, whom Butler hung in New Orleans, not for crime or an offense against law, but merely to prove himself a brute? Or, he might get Jefferson Davis to vote for him fifty-seven times, except that Jefferson Davis doesn't vote for hogs and spoon thieves.—[Pomeroy's U. S. Democrat.

The New York Herald suggests these transparency inscriptions for Blaine processions:

"Burn this letter;" "Cast an anchor to windward;" "I want you to send me a letter such as the enclosed draft;" "Would your friends in Maine be satisfied if they knew the facts?" "It will be a matter of conviction as to who gets the Banks;" "I do not feel that I shall prove a deadhead in the enterprise;" "Blaine is an important man" and—"Burn this letter."

Washington Post: Is the president of the United States aware that the public money is being drawn from the treasury in considerable sums for the direct purpose of helping Mr. Blaine along in the hard work of an uphill campaign?

Has the head of the executive department taken notes of the fact that salaries are being regularly paid to men who are engaged in Ohio and other states as Blaine managers and stumpers?

Are not the people as effectually plundered by such misapplication of their money as they would be if that money were stolen by an enterprising burglar or a vulgar thief.

Is not this kind of public plundering worse in its effects than direct stealing, in that it demoralizes and corrupts the public service and debauches public sentiment?

If the chiefs of the three or four important bureaus are permitted to transfer their services to Mr. Blaine while drawing pay for public duties, are not all of their subordinates instructed by their example that it is the proper thing to defraud the government when the party needs help?

Ligonier Banner,

In a frenzy of rage because Mrs. Morrill, widow of Ex-Senator Morrill, of Maine, dared to proclaim James G. Blaine a dishonest man and unworthy of support for the Presidency, some misguided republicans have had the brazen effrontery to declare that the letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Morrill to Chairman Brown, at Columbus, Ohio, was a forgery. This declaration has brought Mrs. Morrill to the front again in the following letter to the Boston Globe:

To the Editor of the Globe:

In reply to your inquiry as to the correctness of the report of my letter as published in the New York Herald, I will simply say that it is correct in every respect. The knowledge of Mr. Blaine's wicked and vicious life, and of his treachery to those now dead, two pure and honest statesmen like Pitt Fessenden and Mr. Morrill, prompted me to make the reply I did. CHARLOTTE M. MORRILL.

It will now be in order, we suppose, to accuse the Globe of forgery. In fact the republican campaign for the ensuing three weeks will be an audacious scheme of downright villification and falsehood unequaled by anything in our political history. The leaders are desperate. They see defeat staring in their faces, and will resort to any and every device that may promise to keep alive their failing fortunes.

A THOUGHTFUL BROTHER.

"Well, my little man, you seem to be in quite a brown study. What are you thinking about?" gayly said a youth to the small brother of his sweetheart, as he sat coiled up in the easiest chair in the parlor, while the would-be brother-in-law impatiently awaited the arrival of the young lady.

"O, I'm thinkin' 'bout what Sis said just before you came in," replied the young friend.

"And what was that?" eagerly inquired the lover, evidently expecting to hear a compliment.

"Well, she said she thought that old duffer who was comin' here to-night would have sense enough to bring her more caramels than he did last time, and not eat 'em all up himself, just like a hog."

The "duffer" departed without a murmur.—The Rap.

HOG-RAISING IN THE SOUTH.

Hog-raising in the South differs very much from hog-raising in the North. In the South hogs are either raised in the woods or in an inclosed pasture, but more generally in the woods, and receive but little attention, the most being fed corn at night if they come up. In the North hogs are kept in a lot and fed all they will eat till they are sold. When the Southern plan is pursued, and sows are left to take care of themselves when they farrow, then the best hog to have in the native scrub, crossed with a thoroughbred boar. The reason for this is that the native scrubs can and will take better care of their pigs—they will hunt a good dry place to farrow, and seldom overlay their pigs, while the full-blooded sow gets very fat, consequently very often kills the young ones by overlaying them.

A PHILADELPHIA dude is reported to have died of congestion of the brain, caused by excessive exertion. His mother was sick one morning, and he had to button his shoes himself.

DENTISTRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

There are now, says the San Francisco Scientific California, about 17,000 dentists in the United States, and they pack into the teeth of the American people about a ton of pure gold, and five times that amount of less precious metals (tin, silver, platinum, etc.) annually. Now, these metals are worth $1,000,000, and it will take only about 350 years to bury all the coin in the United States in the graveyards (another feature in favor of cremation).

There are about 4,000,000 of artificial teeth made in the United States yearly, yet only one-third of the people avail themselves of this blessing.

Perfect teeth are to be found in the mouth of only one American in eighty, the dental organs of seventy-nine being more or less affected.

This state of affairs will never improve until mothers are to bear children with perfect teeth, and preserve them intact until the offspring is 20 years of age.

"PA, I wish you would buy me a little pony," said Johnny. "I haven't any money to buy you a pony, my son. You should go to school regularly, my son, study hard, and become a smart man, and some of these days when you grow up, you will have money of your own to buy ponies with." "Then I suppose, pa, you didn't study much when you were a little boy like me, or else you would have money to buy ponies with, wouldn't you, pa?"

SIGNOR TORNELLI has published a map showing the malarious districts of Italy and demonstrating that the chief causes of malaria there are the spreading of railways and the destruction of forests. The railway embankments interfere with natural drainage, and the absence of forests causes the earth to become so dry and porous that it absorbs large quantities of water, which gives rise to heavy and long-continued evaporation.

Grand Rally of the County Democracy at Corunna!

A Gala Torch and Banner Night Display—Over 200 in Line.

Over 1000 Persons Rally to Hear Kaler, Lowry, Moody and Harrison.

On Saturday evening, October 4th, there assembled in the village of Corunna the largest crowd of people that ever before met together here at a political meeting.

Unlike the republican rally preceeding this no effort to speak of had been made to get up a demonstration, and notwithstanding the fact that the weather was anything but propitious, a heavy rain having fallen during the day, the democratic meeting outshone that of the republican in point of numbers as well as brilliancy. It was a spontaneous outpouring of the democratic masses which forcibly demonstrates the fact that the party of the people and good government are wide-awake and zealous in the pending struggle for the triumph of those grand representatives of the national democracy, Cleveland and Hendricks.

At an early hour in the evening the village thoroughfares were thronged with people and the democratic clubs from Auburn, Garrett and elsewhere upon arrival immediately formed in line preceeded by the Corunna club, and joined by the lady clubs, each readily before mentioned having a representation of the same, took up the line of march about town and proceeded to the speakers' stand on the village commons. The fine demonstration elicited the admiration of every one, the ladies especially making a splendid appearance in their neat and attractive dress, and they deserve much praise for their zeal in behalf of the good cause.

Hon Jacob Kaler, of Soulbern Indiana, billed as the principal speaker, opened the meeting and entertained the vast multitude in a speech of considerable length which proved to be a masterly argument of the tariff and other pending issues of the campaign, and the speaker was listened to with the closest attention throughout. Mr. Kaler was followed by Judge Lowry, Moody and Harrison, (not little Benny, but another of that name whose coat-tails do not come so near striking his heels) until about ten o'clock when the meeting broke up with rousing cheers for the democratic nominees, national, state and district.

As before remarked, the democratic rally at Corunna on the night of the 4th will long be remembered as the great local event of the present campaign.

On hilltop, in valley, everywhere in this fair land of Washington today, the campfires of the democratic legion are brightly burning.

The bugles are sounding,
The hosts are gathering,
The march is onward to victory!

NOTES.

Even the little children take up the rallying cry of Cleveland and Reform and send it along the line with unfeigned enthusiasm.

As usual the old stereotyped yarn, that the democratic speakers got drunker'n Billy Bedam, was started the next day by some of the sweet scented radical henchmen.

Corunna village was set up in a perfect blaze of glory on this particular night, if never before, with democratic bunting spread out to the breeze indicating the current of public opinion.

But little if any boisterous conduct was noticable, a fact that goes far toward proving that democrats can behave at public meetings equally as well as republicans, their statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

Isn't it about time that 'Doctor' Buchsam paid us that $16.50?

The Porter blowout at Kendallville Wednesday evening, 1st instant, was a slim affair for such a big gun as the Governor of Indiana to tackle. The special (Republicans generally run special trains to their meetings because they've got the boodle to grease the wheels) which passed here at 5 p. m. carried only a few visitors. It is said that Governor P. is very much disgusted at the number and deportment of his audience.

We hold the HEADLIGHT back in order to give the result of the elections in Ohio and West Virginia, which take place today.

The Roll-Call.

The following account of Elizabeth Thompson Butler's wonderful painting, "The Roll-Call," is taken from the article written by the artist's sister:

In the spring of 1874 "The Roll-Call" was duly sent in to the Royal Academy, and was received with a cheer by the committee. By degrees tidings of its success were carried to the painter and her family. There were unmistakable signs of a sensation in the town; the clubs were full of rumors of a great picture by a woman; scraps of talk were overheard in railway trains. And yet this preparation hardly broke the shock of surprise when, on the morning after the Academy banquet, the speeches of both the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge were found to refer in terms of generous praise to the work of the unknown girl. Such a compliment had seldom or never been paid to a new name, and it was the prelude to a popular furore which can only be described as unexampled. The Private View had but one topic of talk, and the picture was preserved from destruction at the hands of a mob of friendly sightseers only by the efforts of a policeman. Not since the days of Wilkie's first great success had such a guard been necessary. But "The Roll-Call" officer had unquestionably a busy time of it. From morning till night the throng never loosened or relaxed from its hard knot in front of the picture, except, indeed, on one occasion, when a gap, as memorable as the crowd, occurred on the day when the Queen, who did not visit the Academy at that time, had the picture removed to Buckingham Palace for a few hours, that she might see a work of such special interest to a sovereign who has always loved her army. "The Roll-Call" was, as has been said, the result of a commission; but, when her Majesty expressed a wish to possess it herself, the owner loyally ceded his claim, on condition that the next year's picture should be his. The copyright was for fifteen times the amount of the original commission, and during the ensuing four years was either in the hands of the engraver (Mr. Stackpoole, who produced an admirable plate) or on view in the provincial towns, where it became even a greater lion than it had been in London. And if the picture was a lion, the painter was the heroine of the season, and so pursued with her celebrity that the preservation of serenity of mind was no slight achievement. The whisper of her name drew crowds about her in ball-rooms, at exhibitions, in the public ways; but she never relaxed work for a day. The next year's picture was her constant preoccupation, and neither the pleasure of celebrity nor the distraction of notoriety ever discomposed her. "Quatre Bras" was exhibited in 1875, and drew a crowd equal to that which thronged round its predecessor; it had also the honor of Mr. Ruskin's praise. "It is," he wrote, "the first fine pre-Raphaelite picture of battle we have had, profoundly interesting, and showing all manner of illustrative and realistic faculty. The sky is most tenderly painted, and with the truest outline of cloud of all in the exhibition; and the terrific piece of gallant wrath and ruin on the extreme left, where the cuirassier is catching round the neck of his horse as he falls, and the convulsed fallen horse, seen through the smoke below, is wrought through all the truth of its frantic passion with gradations of color and shade which I have not seen the like of since Turner's death." "The Return from Balaklava" followed in 1876, and "Inkermann"—a return of infantry in this case—in 1877.—St. Nicholas.

Ancient Wonders.

Nineveh was fourteen miles long, eight miles wide, and forty-six miles round, with a wall 100 feet high and thick enough for three chariots abreast. Babylon was fifty miles within the walls, which were seventy-five feet thick and 100 feet high, with 100 brazen gates. The temple at Diana, at Ephesus, was 420 feet to the support of the roof. It was 100 years in building. The largest of the pyramids is 481 feet in height, and 853 feet on the sides. The base covers eleven acres. The stones are about sixty feet in length, and the layers are 208. It employed 360,000 men in building. The labyrinth of Egypt contains 300 chambers and twelve halls. Thebes, in Egypt, presents ruins twenty-seven miles around, contained 350,000 citizens and 400,000 slaves. The temple of Delphos was so rich in donations that it was plundered of £10,000,000, and the Emperor Nero carried away from it 200 statues. The walls of Rome were thirteen miles around.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

...to article on the subject of temperance, ...uestion quite prominent as an issue in the ...esent campaign, that very able and clear ...ited journal the Chicago News, in a late ...ue has some pertinent remarks under the ...ption of "Temperance by Natural Selec...n."

"In casting the horoscope of this country ...n the drink question"—says the News—"it ...s curious to observe how generally have ...been overlooked the existence of strong forces ...the direction of temperance, which were ...never so strong, so well organized, nor so ...generally operative as now. To mention the ...ng first among these forces will excite ...e surprise, for public opinion has some ...ow since passed the point where a clergy...an's normal influence could be expected in ...favor of drink. At present not only are the ...so-called evangelical clergy practically a unit ...in favor of abstinence, but the Roman catho...lic ranks contain some of the most devoted ...apostles of temperance that we have. The ...influence of such leaders is not lost upon ...their flocks. The methodist and presbyte...rian churches are almost to a man for total ...abstinence; the baptists and congregational...ists are but little behind. Teachers and pro...fessors, aggregating more than a quarter of ...a million, are nearly unanimous. Indul...gence in drink is the rare exception among ...them, and bondage to it is almost unknown. ...The journalistic profession, also, in its own ...practice is largely upon the side of absti...nence; not in consequence of crusades, not ...even by conscientious conviction, but sim...ply by expediency. Men work better and ...think more clearly when free from alcohol. ...The medical profession is much more cau...tious in prescribing alcohol than formerly, ...and one school of medicine, the homeopathic, ...is strong against drink. The life-insurance ...companies and medical examiners are upon the ...same side.

"Moreover, along with these influential ...classes of abstinence among the leaders in ...thought, there is an enormously large num...ber of laboring men who are practically ...total heads to abstinence. This is prac...tically true of railway employees. The situa...tion very well expressed by a locomotive en...gineer a few days ago when he said: 'Things have come to the pass that railway managers have no use for a man addicted to liquor.' This is true in exact proportion to the ability of the management. The Pennsylvania rules are extremely arbitrary upon this point. The Chicago & Northwestern general superintendent, when he hears that a man is indulging in drink, sends for him and talks to him like a father. If he reforms, well; if not, he is discharged. Drinking while off duty is forbidden on account of its after effects. The same thing is true of the Missouri Pacific, and in fact of about all the large roads. The various "brotherhoods," such as those of the locomotive engineers, firemen, and conductors, discourage drink by every means in their power. An engineer discharged from the brotherhood for intemperate habits cannot get a job upon any railway in the country. It is to be observed further that the restraint exercised by these forces is brought to bear upon a peculiarly restless and energetic class, who without it would be among the first to yield. These are but examples where an influence against drink is brought to bear so quietly that the crusader overlooks its operation. It amounts to an application of the principle of natural selection upon a pretty wide scale, and in the long run it will surely bear gratifying fruit."

The greenback meeting advertised at Corunna Tuesday evening, 7th instant, came off according to programme, only in that a change was made in respect to the orator of the occasion, Mr. Hartsuck, of Kendallville, being substituted for Mr. Loutzenhiser, of Butler. The former gentleman made the fur fly in denunciation of republican devilry, while the drooping eye of candidate Butler, that great champion of the laboring man, seemingly looked askance from his picture dangling from the rear of the platform as if in approval of the proceedings.

Jane Grey Swisshelm, the noted female agitator, was originator of the idea of pretty red lamps on the hind ends of trains, to keep them from being run into. The idea came to her one day when she was about to spank a child, and by the redness of the part exposed, she saw that her husband had already warmed the little cuss. So she let it go on without running into it, so to speak. At least we suppose this is where she got it.

How Gov. Andrew Did It.

Late one afternoon, after a busy day, when the executive office people were getting ready to go home, a poor old Irish woman was announced, the messenger remarking:

"It's only an old woman, Governor, who wants to get her husband pardoned out of the House of Correction. I'll get rid of her for you."

"No you won't," said Andrew; "I am here to see just such people, and the poorer they are the more necessary it is that they should see me."

It is also said that here the Governor used a mildly profane word. The discomfited official of the ante-chamber ushered the old woman into Andrew's presence. She told her story quickly, inspired by the sympathy of the Governor. Her husband had been injured on the railway, and, to support himself in his disabled condition, had begun selling a little rum in his shanty out at Revere. He had been arrested and sentenced to the House of Correction. When Andrew had heard Bridget through, he said:

"Don't worry, my good woman; I'll pardon your husband to-morrow."

She left the room, showering blessings on the Governor's head. When she had gone down stairs, Andrew said: "I'll pardon out every such case as long as I'm Governor of this State, and they continue to imprison poor men for doing what rich hotel-keepers do every day unmolested. There shall not be one sort of justice for the poor and another for the rich."—Boston Herald.

"A MAN breathes about eighteen times a minute, and uses about 3,000 cubic feet, or about 375 hogsheads, of air per hour," says a scientific exchange. Ah, that may be close and correct figures for a man under ordinary circumstances, but how about a man chasing and yelling after a fleeing street car. Under those circumstances it would seem as though a man ought to absorb about a million hogsheads of air a minute, and it is strange that any air is left in the neighborhood for the rest of humanity to breathe. There is invariably considerable room for debate in these heavyweight scientific questions.—Peck's Sun.

Literature in the Middle Ages.

The monasteries of the Middle Ages were the conservators of literature. Just as the frozen soil preserves in its bosom, through long, cheerless days of winter, seeds which shall afterward clothe the earth in beauty and fill the air with fragrance, so did the non-progressive institutions of the Dark Ages cherish the germs, already budded into form, which were ere long to burst the crust of superstitious ignorance, and come forth fresh and sweet in the springtime of intellectual awakening. We of modern times cannot be too grateful to the cowled ecclesiasts of those early days, who have bequeathed to us so rich a treasure. Nearly all that is valuable in revelation, in history, in theology, in science, art and government—in fact, the great bulk of literature of every kind belonging to the dawn of the Christian era, has come down to us through the medium of monks and anchorites of the early church. Nor has the crypt preserved for us sacred literature alone, but also a large portion of immortal writings of profane authors previous to the Christian era. The histories of Tacitus gathered dust in a monk's cell long before they were given to the world. Some of the most celebrated of Cicero's dissertations lay among the wine-casks of an ancient monastery till they were so discolored that only the keen-eyed medieval schoolmen could make them out. Livy's manuscripts were found in a monk's closet, so were Aristotle's. Truly, the strongholds of the venerable fathers were keeps of which the world may well be proud since they sheltered Aristotle and Cicero, and Tacitus and Lucullus, and scores of other immortal writers, from the devastating hand of barbarism.

IN a Chicago school the children were asked to give a sentence with the word "capillary." A little girl wrote: "I sailed across the ocean in a capillary." When asked what she meant by that, she turned to Webster's Dictionary and triumphantly pointed out the definition: "Capillary, a fine vessel." Further investigation showed that more than twenty scholars had made the same blunder.

TOO GREAT refinement is false delicacy, and true delicacy is solid refinement.—Rochefoucauld.

CONFESSED.

Now, Major Calkins, Here is Something that will Shut Your Mouth.

Here Is a Confession Over Your Own Signature Admitting Your Indebtedness to the School Fund.

[Laporte Argus.]

We have spoken from records and carefully avoided exaggeration and constantly kept well within the lines of the most explicit truth, but notwithstanding this temperate and honorable action, we have been accused from one end of the State to the other of lying and slandering the republican candidate for Governor. All the time we have had within easy reach positive evidence in Major Calkins' own writing that he owed the school fund debt. Owing to the private nature of the evidence, we determined, however, not to use it, unless Major Calkins personally denounced our statements as false and slanderous. This we are informed on the most unquestioned authority, he is now doing from the stump in all parts of the State, and it is for this reason that we publish his own words to refute his denial that he owes the debt to the school fund. The reason the debt was not paid as requested in the letters was because no purchaser could be found for the swamp at the price of $200. The following is a copy of the letters:

COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., February 20, 1864.

DEAR WILL—I appeal to you to fix up that school fund matter. No matter how you do it, please fix it. You know I feel like I could not allow it to hang over me, as a handle will be made of it in the coming campaign, and if our positions were reversed I would act promptly for you. Don't ask me how, but fix it and write me what I will have to pay. I leave the whole matter to you.

W. H. CALKINS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20, 1864.

DEAR WILL—Won't you please close up that school land matter? I want it closed up before the convention. Please do this for me, and write me what I have to pay, and I will send you a check for it. Don't delay. Your friend, W. H. CALKINS.

It will be seen that Major Calkins fully recognized six months ago that he alone owed the debt, and that he wanted it settled before the republican convention met, and before the campaign opened. No further comment seems necessary, but we ask the reader to judge for himself who has lied, and who has made slanderous statements.

Vote the straight democratic ticket. This is no time for monkey business.

The democracy of Northern Indiana will hold a monster barbacue and mass meeting on Thursday, Oct. 23, at Peru, Miami county.

A Mormon war is about to break out in Lewis county, Tennessee. The citizens have warned the Mormons to leave, and trouble is expected.

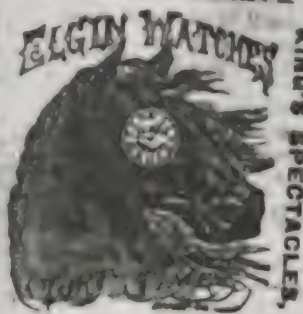

The distinguished honors tendered to Governor Cleveland, on the occasion of his recent visit to his old home in Buffalo, is conclusive evidence of his appreciative worth as a citizen and public officer. All along the route from Albany to Buffalo Mr. Cleveland was warmly greeted, and the grandeur of his reception at Buffalo was unprecedented. Thousands upon thousands of enthusiastic citizens, irrespective of party ties, turned out in a drizzling rain to welcome the next president of the United States.

The Indiana State Sentinel thus arraigns the republican presidential candidate as a common liar: Blaine denied that he ever held any Union Pacific stock. It is proved that he lied. He denied that he ever sold any Little Rock bonds to Tom Scott. It is proved that he lied. He denied that he had ever owned any coal or iron lands in the Hocking Valley. It is proved that he lied. He denied that there was any ground for the charges of irregularity in his marriage. It is proved that he lied. He declares that he had a secret marriage in Kentucky. It is proved that he lied. He declares that he will be elected. This, judging from his declarations on the foregoing, must also be proven a lie.

Election, Tuesday November 4th.

The Duty of Democrats.

One of the most memorable political campaigns in our national history is drawing to a close. In less than three weeks from today the work of the canvass will cease, and before another issue of this paper is distributed the people will rally at the polls for the purpose of expressing their opinions by the ballot.

Every recurring presidential election is clothed with more or less importance as involving the welfare of the people, but to the mind of the observing voter the struggle of 1884 is regarded as an election of the most solemn and profound consequences to the American Republic.

The republican party, with a record of having stolen one presidency and secured another by a corrupt use of money, are making a third, and we trust it may be the last, great effort for supremacy by the same damnable methods. Blaine's career of two weeks in Ohio will reveal its effects if, in the election which is in progress in that state today, the republican party shall triumph. The same rascally methods will be transferred to Indiana soil, which consist of colonizing voters and stuffing ballot boxes.

Blaine, the bribe-taker, the dishonest tick-mule of the republican circus ring, is the standard-bearer of a party that boasts of a great and glorious history, has been denounced by the best men of the party as a venal, unscrupulous demagogue, and unworthy to occupy the place dignified and honored by the immortal Washington.

The necessity of a change of administration must be patent to every intelligent and candid voter, and the only way to effect a radical and beneficent change is to elect Cleveland and Hendricks, the democratic standard bearers, against whom naught can be alleged for honesty, ability and patriotism.

The duty of the hour then is plain to every democrat and patriotic citizen who naturally favors a pure and honest administration.

The democracy are prepared for grand results if the lines remain unbroken. The democrats of DeKalb are in the noontide of victory and for this reason may show a lack of zeal, but we admonish them to be on the alert and that every man in the various voting precincts make it his special business to be on hand early at the polls November 4th and work diligently and unceasingly, thereby increasing the vote for Cleveland and Hendricks and the whole democratic ticket one hundred fold.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Charles Butler, the Pierceton wife-murderer, was hanged at Columbia City, Friday 10th instant.

John W. Kern, democratic candidate for Reporter of the Supreme Court, addressed quite a large meeting at Auburn Monday evening. A large delegation from this place, including the democratic club, attended.

The next time the catgut "doctor" and his pimp of the counter-jumping persuasion, undertake to put up a dirty job on a little boy out of revenge of the father, whom this pair of fly-blown stinkers are too pusillanimously cowardly to face, they will evidently turn the job over to smarter hands. By the way, this catgut "doctor," whose soul is so very small that it could dance on the point of a cambric needle, seems to have poor success in his warfare upon women and children.

Lockwood, another weak-backed brother of the radical fold, having positively declined the nomination for Sheriff, after knocking about all summer for a victim to step into his cast-off brogans, the party managers have bounced Capt. Cutter to squeeze the pressure. The Lone Section have a grievance and swear that Cutter shall be knifed. We predict that Boyles will distance his competitor at least three hundred majority.

WEDNESDAY.....OCT. 15, 1884.

The Ohio Election.

The latest reports from Ohio give the republicans a majority of 10,000. With all their money and frauds the radicals barely pull through. Foran, democratic, is re-elected to congress from the Cleveland district, a radical stronghold, by 1,300 majority. The result in Ohio will not add to republican prospects and the democracy will push the fight with renewed courage. West Virginia rolls up a democratic majority of 10,000, which is glory enough for one day.

Eastern democrats are satisfied. The Times says Ohio was but an outpost which the enemy have carried at a fearful cost, and that the result gives encouragement to Cleveland. It concludes by saying: "The republicans have well-nigh exhausted themselves before the beginning of the actual fight. New York is now the battle ground, and on that field the assurance of Cleveland's victory is already complete."

W. Y. Johnson and family left for their home in Nickerson, Kansas.

Dr. Thomson and wife went to Chicago on Monday night.

The Rev. King's new house is nearly completed.

Democrats say that Keyser township will give 100 majority for the democratic ticket.

The Cleveland and Hendricks clubs, ladies and gents, went to Auburn Monday to attend the rally.

Several of our Sunday school people attended the convention at the church north of town.

The democrats of Garrett and the township are well organized and enthusiastic. Let us so continue.

Farmers are complaining of the hog cholera, Mr. Imler having lost several.

The democrats of LaOtto will hold a rally next Saturday night. Judge O'Rourke will be the speaker.

Powell insinuates that the postoffice difficulty was a democratic conspiracy originating with and consumated by the democracy, solely for political purposes. Possibly it was for political purposes, if the action of the democrats in determining that the Germans should have their papers, was political. Then by a parity of reasoning the retention of them was political. That they were withheld none will deny, even the Herald does not, but by innuendo conveys the impression that if they were withheld Lewis J. Gengler, a democrat and mail carrier at that time, was the guilty party, and not A. M. Phillips, postmaster. The democrats of Garrett have felt disposed to look over the matter as a mistake and oversight of the postmaster, and wish him no harm. But there is one thing patent, that the Herald cannot make it out that Gengler or any other democrat did it. If Phillips ever is tried by a jury or a court the facts will not show that a democrat did it. No man, democrat or republican, dare say that Lewis J. Gengler put those papers in the waste-bag.

[From the Corunna Edition.]

Capt. W. R. Myers, candidate for Secretary of State, will speak at Kendallvill Friday night of this week.

Eli Zonker, living two miles from town, died last week of inflammation of the bowels. He leaves a wife and several children.

Conductor John W. Watson had charge of the special running east during Fair week. John is quite a favorite on this line, it being the neighborhood where he knocked about in his youthful days and learned the art of coon-catching and sich.

The managers of the Kendallville Fair are well pleased with the results of their second annual show. The sales of gate tickets were largely in excess of last year, the number sold on Thursday amounting to 18,000. The exhibit was very creditable.

Corunna republicans are somewhat jubilant over the election news from Ohio. Correspondingly democrats wear a placid countenance, as they had nothing to expect from a state so rock-ribbed republican as is Ohio. Democratic prospects are by no means disheartened by the results.

During the Kendallville Fair the hotel Smith was crowded with patrons. Capt. J. R. Smith, the builder of the magnificent hotel block which bears his name, is the manager and sole proprietor of the business. That he is a model landlord of most inviting manners, who will win golden opinions as well as golden eagles from the public, the increasing patronage of the house daily attests the fact.

The democratic meeting at Waterloo last week to hear Senator Voorhees drew an immense crowd, fully 7,000 persons being present. The Senator spoke for nearly two hours and his address was a complete arraignment of the republican party, the logic of which must have convinced the most doubtful voter present of the wickedness of radical rule.

With accustomed unblushing impudence, the Waterloo Press repeats the old and exploded lies charging Senator Voorhees with uttering disrespectful language against soldiers during the rebellion. These campaign lies are so completely worn threadbare we are surprised to see a concern even so verdant as the Press revive them.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

DeKalb county is pledged to roll up a majority of 300 on November 4th, Vote the whole democratic ticket.

Vote for D. D. Moody and thereby aid in sending a democrat to the United States Senate.

Samuel J. Tilden has written a letter in reply to the resolutions of the Chicago convention, in which he earnestly advocates the election of the national democratic candidates.

Dr. Forrest, a New York State Republican Elector, has resigned. In a letter to the Chairman of the State committee, giving his reasons for declining, he says: "I am sorry to say that I cannot conscientiously support the present nominee for President, James G. Blaine."

Hon. Robert Lowry, democratic candidate for congress, is making a brilliant and successful canvass regardless of the vindictive assaults of the republican press. The people of the twelfth district will endorse Mr. Lowry's course in congress at the polls on November 4th by a majority unprecedanted in this district.

The joint discussion at Fort Wayne last week between Isaac P. Gray and W. H. Calkins drew a crowd of 20,000 people, attracted thither to witness the windy duel. It is said that the slippery Major proved an unequal match for the gallant Colonel, and that he was knocked out in the first round.

Election November Fourth! The democratic ticket as given on another page is made up of true and tried men. Let democrats vote the whole ticket without a single name erased. They are all men worthy of your confidence and support. Go early to the polls, remain there all day and work! Work for the dethronement of jobbers and plunderers and the installment of honest government. A full vote on November 4th will be rewarded by a rousing democratic majority in DeKalb.

The Cleveland and Hendricks demonstration in New York City the other night, inspired chiefly by the business men of the city, was without a parallel in political history. The character of this meeting, composed as it was largely of independent republicans as an endorsement of the democratic national standard bearers, is decidedly significant and shows how New York will cast her electoral vote next month.

The promised address of the Stalwart wing of the republican party, in opposition to James G. Blaine's elevation to the presidency, has been published. The address, which is signed "Many Stalwarts," is a sweeping denunciation of Blaine and concludes as follows:

> If there are stalwarts who are willing to blind their eyes to his (Blaine's) moral defects, and who think that regular nominations are not binding on any but themselves, they may vote for him; but all who despise falsehood, corruption, and party treason will rejoice in the opportunity now afforded them to put an end for all time to home to the political aspirations of James G. Blaine. Some will contribute to this result by their action and some by their inaction, but there will be enough of both classes put together to spare New York from the disgrace of casting her electoral vote for this shameless, mercenary, and political apostate.

THE NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

Godey's Lady's Book (L. H. Huntsbeck & Co., Phila.) for November has made a sensation in literary circles, being by common consent the finest number of the book that has ever been published. The frontispiece, a fine steel engraving of "The Morning Call," represents a pretty little child asleep in bed while a saucy, inquisitive little dog peers into her face, wondering at her silence. The picture is a very striking one, well worth framing, and stands as an illustration of a poem by Dorothy Holroyd. The colored plates this month are unusually fine. In addition to the usual designs, there are some beautiful prints of silk applique work and a cut showing the interior of an elegant dining-room. Godey's has always been up to par, but this month it excels itself. The literary matter is excellent. A new story, in two parts, by Mary E. Bradley, is a strong feature of this number. There is a weird tale by Mrs. M. Shelley Peters, and a droll Thanksgiving story. All of the serials are carried forward with absorbing interest, and the whole tenor of the book is such as to show that the publishers are determined to combine the brightest luminaries in the literary constellation. They announce a $2000 prize story that will shortly appear, and also offer their subscribers full-size Cut Paper patterns of their own selection, without extra charge. Now is the time to subscribe, price $2.00, which entitles each one to a steel engraving for framing.

This Year

If never before, you want a DAILY paper. It is the year of the Presidential contest. Never before have the two great parties apparently been so evenly matched for the struggle. You want to know what is going on, and you want to know it without delay. You want a DAILY paper; but you DON'T want an "organ"—that is, if you want ALL the news and want it honestly and impartially presented. You don't want your political intelligence discolored and perverted to suit the requirements of an organ of either political party. You want FACTS—ALL the facts—just as they are, favorable or unfavorable. With these honestly presented from day to day you are in position to intelligently form your own opinions; they will serve you better than the ready-made "opinions" of the "organ." The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself as meeting your need at this time. It is a complete newspaper in all the requirements of American journalism. It is a member of the Western Associated Press. It prints all the news, completely but concisely. It is not a "blanket-sheet."

READ WHAT THEY SAY OF IT:

"IT IS A FIRST-CLASS NEWSPAPER IN EVERY respect."—Pullman Car and Machine Company, Chicago, Ill.

"YOUR COMBINE OF 'BRAINS AND FLATS' IS worth the price of the paper."—M. D. Madden, New Boston, Ill.

"I THINK IT SHOULD BE IN THE HOUSE OF every buyer of good morals in the State of Illinois."—Frank Floss, Otterd, Ill.

"I CONSIDER IT THE BEST PAPER OF ITS class in the United States, not excepting the New York papers which I have also read for many years."—Lewis W. Lacey, P. M., Hampton, Ill.

"WE LIKE YOUR PAPER. BREVITY IS SAID to be the soul of wit. You give us all the news and in such form that it may be read by busy people on current events and keep no time from his business."—A. B. Arant, Carpenter, Ala.

"I HAVE LONG KEPT IN THAT THE DAILY News is conducted by the most able journal in the United States. The Daily Sun of New York is my preference, is the second to read."—Dr. A. P. Hopkins, Quincy, Ill.

The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is an INDEPENDENT newspaper. It presents political news free from partisan coloring, without fear or favor as to any party's interests. It has its own opinions upon all the questions of the day, and is accustomed to express them without reserve. If you are a partisan extremist and tender about adverse criticism of your pet political theories, perhaps you had better let it alone. It may not agree with you—sometimes. But to the fair-minded reader, who demands impartial, honest, able, and enterprising journalism, the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS commends itself, confident of meeting every reasonable requirement.

VOLUME VI. No. 135.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, NOV. 15, 1884.

PUBLIC OPINION.

—New York Sun: Mrs. Belva Lockwood presents to the world the first instance of a presidential nomination made and used purely for advertising purposes. Nobody can vote for her, but she obtains a notoriety which must be profitable to her as a member of the Washington bar. Thus there are high tricks even in the legal profession.

—Brooklyn Union: The advancement of temperance by what may be called temperance methods is not generally appreciated. Every year more and more employers make intemperance a bar to employment. On all first-class railroads indulgence in strong drink is not only discouraged but is considered ground for dismissal. In other lines of business, also, the man who is known to drink liquor finds himself at a disadvantage when it is a question between him and one who does not. Such practical "temperance lectures" are having their effect —Brooklyn Eagle: John C. Fremont's eyes beheld the birth of the republican party. He is now marching in the Blaine procession to its grave. The light that illuminated the banners of Fremont was the morning light of republicanism. The light that falls upon the tattered plumes of Blaine is the light of its expiring day. When the path-finder rode into the field at the head of an enthusiastic host his coming was the harbinger of final victory. When the plumed cavalier of Maine entered the contest he entered it as the herald of certain defeat. Their junction now presents a striking historical tableau. After a quarter of a century the prophet and the undertaker of the republican party meet and plod on together. It is a mournful spectacle—a melancholy procession.

—Washington Special: The question is often asked here why it is that Col. Bob Ingersoll has nothing to say this year in favor of the "Plumed Knight." It is thus explained: "Mr. Ingersoll, who was a pillar of the Blaine movement in 1876 and 1880, and an enthusiastic Blaine man for some time afterward, gradually discovered that Blaine was a man who took all assistance he could get, but was very careful to avoid assuming debts and obligations. He also discovered that no amount of support for Blaine could secure for Ingersoll and his family any social considerations from the Blaines, who did not wish to introduce the western free-thinkers to the orthodox believers, who compose what is known as "best society" in Washington. So Ingersoll quietly dropped out of the procession.

—Chicago News: The "defense" in that Indianapolis libel suit seems to be doing all the urging. Let's see, it was Mr. Blaine who, like a plumed knight, telegraphed to Ben Harrison that he would defend the honor of his family with his life. That was very plumed-knightish indeed, but his manner of following up the promise has been very much after the manner of a jester in cap and bells.

"Oath," in a letter on the liquor question in the Cincinnati Enquirer, writes:

"This cheap and enlivening drink has probably done more to change the morals of the American people than anything, except the cotton gin. The chief of police of Baltimore, a very conservative and Democratic city, told me some ten years ago that he regarded lager beer as having done more harm to the boys in the United States than anything he had ever heard of. Said he: 'Boys were never seen in drinking places so long as whisky was the standard. But after larger beer was introduced the boys would go to saloons, where games were prepared for them, such as bagatelle and pool, and in a little while you found drunken boys.'" —Chicago News: It is said in New York journals that Jay Gould and other stock manipulators put $250,000 where it would do the most good in Ohio, and hoped to recoup themselves by a big boom in stocks after the anticipated republican triumph. But stocks didn't recoup worth a cent. On the contrary, Gould and his following are reported to have lost millions of money since the election. It is also said that the head-center of the Gould crowd was[illegible] previous to the election, struggling under the heaviest kind of a load, while he is at the same time represented to be in the tolls of the money-lenders. As for Mr. Vanderbilt, he, a few days since, confessed that he "had lost in proportion to his wealth." The last card of Mr. Gould was the Ohio election, but as that has proved a blank the street is now curiously asking what he will do next. Where will all this end, and when will the bottom be reached?

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Commissioner O. H. Widney, and Thomas, were in town one day week en route to some point north of the village to inspect a new county bridge.

Griffin Halstead, the aged father of editor Murat Halstead of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, while going home on Paddy's Run in Clermont county, Saturday night, 25th, fell over an embankment and broke his neck.

Robert Dykes is engaged in packing and shipping apples. Parties wishing to dispose of their apple crop can get top prices by calling upon Mr. Dykes at his packing-room south side of the railroad.

A fine example of Kentucky's vaunted chivalry was that displayed by a car-load of creatures with men's clothes on sitting by and letting a drunken ruffian slash a young man nearly to death, throw him from the fast-running train, and then walk deliberately through the train, defying the whole crowd to arrest him. These are fine fellows to talk of chivalry.

While a load of Richland democrats were returning from a political meeting at Kendallville at night, not long since, the driver tried to pass a team and the wagon was overturned dumping the load in the roadside ditch. Jack Lanning was badly bruised but the balance of the load escaped without any injuries to speak of.

The democracy of DeKalb closed the campaign of 1884 with a grand rally at Garrett on last Friday. Distinguished orators from abroad were present and addressed the assembled multitude in the afternoon, and in the evening there was a magnificent torchlight demonstration and speaking by Hon. D. D. Moody, General L. J. Blair and others.

Miss Matilda Frelinghuysen, who is to wed our president during the ethereal thaws of January, is described by the New York Times as a tall and slender blonde, with vivacious manners and great savoir faire. It is also intimated that the lady is old enough to vote. She has had a somewhat romantic life, a sad feature of her brief career having been the fact that she was courted once by an Iowa statesman who had to be banished to the fastnesses of Bingen on the Rhine before Miss Matilda could get rid of his importunities.

The editor of the HEADLIGHT has in a great measure kindly refrained from giving publicity to much of the unsavory and criminal doings of the village, and frequently suppressed the names of persons who had by their acts become legitimate subjects for newspaper comment. All this he has done in a spirit of charity for the erring unfortunates and to spare the good name of the place which is his home. And yet it seems there were several of a certain class, who for good cause had come under his editorial notice, to applaud the base act of an avowed enemy, the cowardly bully, Nusbaum, in the attempt to beat the life out of him for having exercised the privilege of the journalist. If such methods are to be tolerated, what of our boasted personal liberty? Shall we tender the sandbagger and midnight assassin the freedom of the land?

NICK OF TIME.

Political Results of the Past to Just the Shape Wanted for the Present.

In the way of a handy little book to carry about one's person these red-hot final days of the campaign, for instant reference, there is no publication to compare with the pocket edition of the B. and O. Red Book recently out. To receive a copy, the only requisite is the enclosing of a stamp with address to C. K. Lord, G. P. A. of the B. and O., Baltimore, and once in possession, it would be hazarding little if anything to express the belief it would not be parted with for a good many times the value of the stamp. The Red Book covers all the States in the Union, gives in terse but comprehensible form full details of the last Presidential State, Congressional and Legislative elections, answering almost every question one could ask. More than this, there is a statement with each State showing in brief the result of every presidential election since admission into the Union together with electoral vote and other data, all arranged in complete form, and with an eye to clean and artistic effect truly commendable.

Grand Holiday Excursion to the Valley of Virginia.

On Tuesday, November 11th, 1884, the B. & O. R. R. will sell round trip tickets to Harrisonburg Va., and return, from all Coupon stations on its Trans-Ohio Divisions, at extremely low rates, and make the tickets good returning on all regular trains for sixty days. This will be one of the most delightful excursions ever given. The far-famed mountain scenery now draped in its autumnal attire and the great Shenandoah Valley will fill all lovers of the beautiful with exquisite pleasure, whilst the long length of time given enables old Virginians to visit their friends and relatives, and hunters to enjoy their favorite sport. No one should miss this golden opportunity. Call on B. & O. ticket agents and get rates and time of excursion train from your station.

To Band Leaders.—At a meeting of brass bands and representatives from bands, held at Rome City, Ind., on Tuesday Sep., 25th 1884, an organization was formed, which will be known as the Tri-State Musicians Association. It is calculated to embrace in this organization, bands from Southern Michigan, Northern Indiana and Western Ohio, and the objects is to draw musicians together once each year for friendly reunion and social intercourse. There will be a meeting of delegates at Fort Wayne, Ind., on Tuesday, Dec. 9th 1884, to fix a time and place and make other arrangements for next years reunion.

Bands who have not yet received an invitation to send a representative to that meeting, will confer a favor by sending their names to C. K. Greene, Secretary, Wawaka, Ind., or to Gart Shober, President, Fort Wayne, Ind., either of whom will gladly furnish circulars and such other information as may be desired.

General Beauregard, in his article on the battle of Bull Run, in the November Century, gives the reasons why the Confederate victory at Bull Run was not followed up by an attack on Washington. He also discusses his personal relations with Mr. Davis, and criticises, with much plainness of speech, the subsequent conduct of the war on the Confederate side.

Baconian Philosophy.

Discretion in speech is more than eloquence.

That is half granted which is denied graciously.

Without good-nature man is but a better kind of varmin.

New things, like strangers, are more admired and less favored.

He that studieth revenge keepeth his own wounds green.

Great riches have sold more men than ever they have bought out.

Base natures, if they find themselves once suspected, will never be true.

You had better take for business a man somewhat absurd, than over formal.

Excusations, cessions, modesty itself well governed, are but marks of ostentation.

The master of superstition is the people. And in all superstition, wise men follow fools.

Fame is like a river, that beareth up things light and swollen, and drowns things weighty and solid.

If a man look sharp and attentively he shall see fortune; for, though she is blind, she is not invisible.

He that defers his charity till he is dead is, if a man weighs it rightly, rather liberal of another man's than of his own.

To desire in discourse to hold all arguments is ridiculous, wanting true judgment; for in all things no man can be exquisite.

The best governments are always subject to be like the fairest crystals, when every icicle or grain is seen, which in a fouler stone is never perceived.

As in nature things move more violently to their place and calmly in their place, so virtue in ambition is violent; in authority, settled and calm.

The Ohio Reserve.

The "Reserve," so called because it was reserved as the rightful share of the State of Connecticut, in the final adjustment of colonial land claims made by Congress, between the States, soon after the close of the Revolutionary war, embraces a territory of nearly three and a half millions of acres, situated in the northeastern part of Ohio.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Eighty thousand people attended the northern Indiana democratic barbecue at Peru on the 23d ult.

Sir Moses Montefiore, a high priest in the Hebrew church and a great philanthropist among his own people, recently celebrated his one hundredth birthday.

Wilber F. Storey, editor and proprietor of the Chicago Times, the most distinguished journalist West of the Alleghenies, died at his residence in that city on the evening of the 27th ult., aged 65 years.

Recently we were shown a diploma from the C. L. S. C., (Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle) located at Chautauqua, N. Y., awarded to our townsman M. A. Baughman, who has just completed a four year's reading course. Mr. Baughman is a close student of literature and an occasional contributor to the press whose essays are always good reading.

Some night when Buffalo's city scavenger has his close wagon handy he should load that very unreverend Rev. Mr Ball into it, throw a bushel or two of chloride of lime over him, and cart him off to some secluded place where the green flies and the not over particular worms would have a fair show for a first-class barbecue.

Chicago News: We do not believe Mr. Frank Hurd will be able to establish a clear title to a seat in congress. The fact that he ran 2,000 votes behind the state democratic ticket in his district would seem to dispel very efficiently the suspicion that his defeat was secured entirely by republican repeaters and corruptionists.

The Santa Rosa Republican is authority for the statement that a rosewood tree, cut in its county, furnished all the timber for the Baptist Church in Santa Rosa, one of the largest church edifices in the county. The interior of the building is finished in wood, there being no plastered wall. Sixty thousand shingles were made from the tree after enough was taken for the church.

Mr. Samuel Lauferty, well-known to DeKalb people as one of the pioneer merchants of the county-seat, after an absence of several years has returned to Auburn and resumed business in the room lately vacated by Isaac Ochs, where he will deal in clothing and gentlemen's furnishing goods. The former patrons of "Sam," and their name is legion, will welcome his return to the business circles of Auburn.

KNOW YE THE STATE?

Well, If You Would. This is the Way, and None other.

The special edition of the R. and O. Red Book for this State could not cover the political past of the commonwealth more completely if its author had spent years upon it. That so brief time was expended is plainly evident from its remarkably comprehensive scope, and those who go to the little trouble of enclosing stamp, with address to C. K. Lord, Baltimore, and thus secure a copy, will not regret such action. Nothing like the Red Book series in the line of political text-books was ever given the public until the R. and O. inaugurated the scheme of affording information in such shape just when the demand was greater for it. In general make up, typographical excellence and neatness throughout, the Red Book is simply incomparable, while in the extent of data given, is almost inexhaustible. The returns of Presidential, State and Congressional elections, are shown in full by counties and districts, and the comparisons figured out cover every possible point which could be raised. The remarks embrace statistics of the State culled from past results almost without end; such for instance, as the name and term of every Governor from the first, the variation of State Verdict at presidential elections since admission in the Union, the electoral vote, majorities, presidential and cabinet positions held by State representatives, and thus to the end of chapters which constitute a very epitome of political history. In writing for this invaluable little work, it should be definitely indicated what State is desired, as special editions have been issued for a dozen or more States.

About five thousand Tennesseeans went to see a ball game at Nashville, but the game not being played, the crowd carried the treasurer off on the woods and helped to refund the admission money. While this was going on a house was had in which [illegible] shooting many persons. [illegible] Tennessee [illegible] little fun.

The New England Fathers.

The character of the New England fathers was well defined in a poem by Allen G. Spooner, delivered before the New England Club thirty-seven years ago. Herewith is an extract relative to Sabbaths and the Quakers:

On Sunday his house was still as a mouse—
The highways almost as quiet;
The Church-warden stout caught the boy who was out,
And gave him the stocks and low diet.

The duty then, for beast, wife and men,
Was to labor six days out of seven;
On the seventh, in the best of their toggery drest,
To work harder to get into Heaven.

Foul weather or fair, they were constant in prayer,
But to thrift all the time kept a squint;
And in matters of trade, when a bargain was made,
Their faces were set like a flint.

Innovations in faith they opposed unto death:
At the cart's tail they drawred the poor Quaker;
With derision and jeers, they cropped heretics' ears,
And felt they were serving their Maker.

A Strange Deformity.

Probably one of the greatest deformities in the world is that of Mr. Gaultney, now living in Taylor county, Ga. There seems to be an accumulation of adipose matter about every joint in his body, and the nearer the joints, of course, the greater amount of this fatty matter. Consequently his feet and hands are enormous; each of his hands weighing over sixteen pounds, and being several times larger than his head. He is 23 years old and only thirty-six inches in height. The joints seem to have taken away all flesh from the other parts of his body, and the limbs look like threads supporting enormous weights, and so great is the weight of his hands that they hang helpless at his sides, he being unable to lift them of his own accord. This fatty matter continues to increase and his hands and feet get larger every year. This man is a great curiosity and there are crowds always at his home to see him.

An Idiot.

An idiot is a man who approaches a Georgia mule from the rear without notifying and pacifying the front end first. The wise man is he who never goes near the mule at all, but is simply a looker on in Vienna while the mule is making gestures with his hind feet. This statement is true in moral as well as in natural history.—Oriffin (Ga.) News.

ST. NICHOLAS
FOR

Attractions for 1884–5.

No printed periodical can take the place of parent, pastor, or school-teacher; but a good magazine can supplement their work and influence to a wonderful degree. In view of this, it is not extravagant to say that instead of "Can we afford to take ST. NICHOLAS?"—the question of every earnest household in English-speaking countries, today, should be "Can we afford not to take ST. NICHOLAS?"

MARY MAPES DODGE

has grown familiar to hundreds of thousands of young readers; and their interest and intelligent enjoyment have constantly inspired the editor and publishers to fresh effort. Today, its strength is in its wholesome growth, its sympathy with young life, its hearty recognition of the movement of events, and its steadily increasing literary and pictorial resources. The following are some of the good things already secured for future numbers of ST. NICHOLAS:

'His One Fault,' a serial story for boys, by the popular author, J. T. Trowbridge.

'Personally Conducted' illustrated papers on famous places in Europe, by Frank R. Stockton.

'Historic Girls,' a companion series to 'Historic Boys,' by E. S. Brooks.

'Ready for Business,' suggestions to boys about to assume an occupation, based on personal interviews with prominent representatives of various trades and professions, by C. C. Hazewell.

'Driven Back to Eden,' a serial by E. P. Roe.

'Talks for Young Folks,' a series of popular papers, by H. H. (Helen Jackson).

'Among the Law-makers': recollections of a boy-page in the U. S. Senate, containing much political information, both instructive and amusing, by Edward Lucas.

'Davy and the Goblin,' a very funny serial story, by a new writer, Charles Carryl.

Short Stories by Louisa Alcott.

'The Progress of Invention': "From Palanquin to Parlor-car," "From Crane-bow to 100-ton Gun," Descriptive papers, by Charles F. Dowse.

'Art Work for Young Folks': papers on decorative handiwork, by Charles G. Leland.

'Sheep or Silver?' a story of Texan life. By the Rev. Wm. M. Baker.

'A Garden of Girls,' being six short stories for girls, by Mrs. Lucretia Watrous.

'Tales of Two Continents,' stories of adventure, by H. H. Boyesen.

'Cartoons for Boys and Girls,' funny pictures, by St. Nicholas Artists.

'From Bach to Wagner': brief, pointed biographies of great musicians, by Arabella Tuttle.

SPECIAL PAPERS by classic writers, including Mary Mapes Dodge, Joaquin Miller, Alice Wellington Rollins, C. B. Bertlett, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Rev. Washington Gladden, Julia Schayer, Anne Lee Merritt, W. O. Stoddard D. Lo, Ernest Ingersoll, Clara B. Clement, Lieutenant Schwatka.

THE CENTURY CO.,
NEW-YORK, N. Y.

Corunna Headlight

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

Entered at the Postoffice in Corunna, Indiana, as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY.....NOV. 15, 1884.

A Coward's Dastardly Deed.

On the morning of the 16th ult., as the editor of this paper was going to the postoffice to get his morning mail matter, W. H. Nusbaum, a physician of the town, sneaked up from behind and without any warning knocked him down and proceeded to beat and kick him in a brutal manner. The timely interference of a citizen prevented what might have proved to be serious if not fatal to us. Having been outgeneraled and vanquished on every field in a contest of long standing, our opponent goaded by desperation undertertook to make up in muscle what he lacked in brains, and hence the cowardly and brutal attack upon a physically weak and defenseless man. That Nusbaum meant mischief, and possibly murder, is self evident from the fact that he has since by implication threatened our life. We do not envy Dr. Nusbaum's conscience, if he has such a thing. In the language of a contemporary, speaking of the burning of a printing office and the pursuit of the editor to the death: These are the fellows who dance in glee as they pile fagots around a writhing victim whose crime is that he does not believe in dishonesty and will not publicly recommend its reward.

On the 30th ult. a hero died at Chicago. James Carr, the foreman of a cigar box factory, in a five story building on fire, got all his employes together and marched them safely to the ground. Then he returned to the fifth story to be certain that all had been saved, when his escape was cut off by the flames, and while descending a rope that had been thrown him he fell receiving fatal injuries. He deserves a monument.

Last Monday Mr. John Rutt, County Recorder elect, took charge of the Recorder's office by virtue of his election two years ago. That "Uncle John" will make a most excellent officer everybody, democrats and republicans alike, freely acknowledge the fact, and all join in wishing him prosperity. The retiring Recorder, M. Boland, has made a good officer in every respect.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION.

Blaine Probably Beaten, But the Rusult is Very Close

And the Returns Are Not Yet In.

Indiana, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut Democratic.

DeKalb County Rolls Up a Democratic Maj. of 400,

And Bob Lowry Snows Hester Under By At Least 2000 Majority.

New York, November 5.—5 A. M.—Herald, World, Times claim Cleveland has carried the state by 5,000 to 7,000 majority. Tribune claims 5,000 for Blaine. Democratic National Committee claim that Cleveland is elected, having carried New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana, Wisconsin and probably Nevada and Michigan. There is some doubt about Indiana. The Republicans admit that the result is in doubt. Chairman Barnum says Cleveland is undoubtedly elected.

New York, November 5—1 150 p. m.—The Democrats are wild with excitement. Cleveland is elected beyond a doubt. Republicans concede it. It has been a regular cyclone. Cleveland has carried New York by 5,000 to 10,000 majority. His majority south of the Harlem River is 65000. Blaine will not have 60,000 at the river. New Jersey is Democratic by 5,000 to 8,000, Connecticut by 1,5000 to 2,000. Indiana has gone Democratic by 5,000 to 7,000, Wisconsin is probably Democratic. Massachusetts is close and in doubt, Illinois is doubtful, Michigan probably elects the Fusion ticket, Republicans do not, however, entirely give up New York. Some say Blaine will pull through by 5,000 to 8,000. There appears to be no break in the solid South.

The World claims New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana, and probably Michigan and Wisconsin and says Cleveland has 219 electoral votes.

Indiana.

Indiana is still claimed by both parties, but with more reasonable assurance by the democrats who are confident that the official count will give Cleveland a plurality of from 3000 to 5000. The vote is very close and it will require the official count to determine the result.

Twelfth District.

Latest advices from the Twelfth Congressional District place Mr. Lowry's majority at about 2000.

The County.

The democrats of DeKalb covered themselves with glory on Tuesday by achieving a great victory at the polls, the majority reaching the unprecedented figures of 400. Well done, democrats of DeKalb. Following are the majorities:

President, Cleveland 400; Governor, Gray 400; Secretary of State, Myers, 400; Congressman, Lowry, 350; State Senator, Miller, 466; Prosecutor, Powers, 540; Representative, Moody, 254; Sheriff, Boyles, 310; Treasurer, Brandon, 300; Surveyor, VanAuken, 418; Commissioners, Widney, 378; Probst, 360. The official count will not materially change these figures.

Richland.

In Richland township the day passed off quietly, and despite the inclement weather a full vote was out. Whole number of votes cast, 349; increase of 46 over 1882, democratic majority, 16.

Cleveland, D.	191
Blaine, R.	175
Butler, G.	3
St. John, P.	4
Gray, D.	3

Sir John Mcdonald, the present Premier of Canada, began life as a boot-black. He persuaded a wealthy Canadian girl to elope with him when he was only eighteen, and the influence of her forgiving father ushered him into his career.

CLEVELAND!

Late Returns Show that New York's Honest Governor is Elected.

The latest information received at this office, 10 a. m., just before going to press, places Cleveland's election beyond a doubt. Senator Gorman, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, says there is a small but safe plurality for Cleveland in New York. Governor Hendricks in a special says returns to the State Committee show Indiana to be from 6000 to 9000 democratic. As the republicans control the telegraph it is impossible to get figures from democratic headquarters and there are suspicions of republican rascality. An honest count will place an honest man at the head of this nation, and his name is Grover Cleveland.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

J. M. Carens was chosen Supervisor of election for this precinct.

An attempt was made a few days since to assassinate King Leopold of Belgium.

Keyser township came to the front with an increased democratic malority on Tuesday. All honor to little Keyser.

The sensational deaths of the two young Philadelphia boys a couple of days ago, was due to reading dime novels.

The Lake Shore boys have donned their regulation suits consisting of blue and brass buttons with caps to correspond. The boys in their flashy attire look as sweet as young hunks at a country apple-pearing.

The Fort Wayne Gazette, and its echo, the Auburn Republican, two radical sheets that excelled in methods of Billingsgate and mud in the late sweet-scented campaign, are each knowing a file about these days.

Before the battle THE HEADLIGHT predicted a majority of three hundred in DeKalb. The democracy came up gallantly to the scratch, and went one hundred better.

Harry Weamer has sold the Butler Review to Messrs. Loutzenheiser & Calkins; the former was the greenback candidate for Sheriff, and we presume the paper will be conducted hereafter on the greenback or don't care a continental plan.

It will not now be necessary to call in a special accountant to audit Sheriff Boyles' fees. The people have decreed by a majority of 300 that Mr. Boyles is an honorable man and rebuked the Auburn Republican for false and malicious accusations.

On election night while a party were discussing the returns at the Lake Shore passenger depot in Kendallville, Al. Ringle became angry at some remark made in a joking manner by Henry Ritter, the night operator, whereupon the former struck the latter with a sling-shot, or some deadly instrument, the blow being aimed at his head but it came in contact with the metal badge on his regulation cap and glanced off striking the wall and making a deep indenture. But for this fortunate circumstance the blow would undoubtedly have killed Mr. Ritter. We understand that the railroad officials have caused Ringle's arrest and will prosecute him.

No two men on the county democratic ticket which has just emerged from the field flushed with victory, had to undergo a contest so bitter and vindictive as Treasurer Brandon and Sheriff Boyles, unless we include Representative Moody, although the veteran experience of two successive campaigns gave him a decided advantage and thus he was the better prepared to take care of himself; but the former were confronted with formidable opponents, who spared no means to down them. They were constantly under the sweeping fire of the enemy from the opening gun of the campaign. The result, in majorities of over 300, shows that they should be crowned heroes of the day, and we therefore propose three cheers and a tiger for Brandon and Boyles.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

There is a rumor that General Gordon has been killed.

Mrs. Virginia Loyall Farragut, widow of Admiral Farragut, was buried in New York Monday.

Jones, the man who attempted to shoot Gibson while riding in the jail van, was acquitted at Washington Monday.

A little three years old girl, Lizzie Engleman, has been found in the Lutheran Cemetery at New York, where she had been left by parents to die. Around her neck was a handkerchief drawn tight.

The United States Supreme Court has decided that the fourteenth amendment does not confer citizenship on an Indian, a member of a tribe, who has not been naturalized or taxed or recognized as a citizen either by the United States or by the state.

THE NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

THE CENTURY for November has a fine assortment of valuable papers which will be well received with the readers. "The Rise of Silas Lapham" is a new serial story by W. D. Howell. The reputation of this writer is sufficient to say it will be an excellent story. "The Battle of Bull Run," by Gen. G. T. Beauregard, will be read by all interested in the late rebellion. Likewise will the "Recollections of a Private." This is a good description of a soldier's introduction to the mysteries of army life. "How shall we Elect Our Presidents," by George Tickner Curtis, is well worth a careful consideration. Besides these, "The Principles and Practices of House Drawing," "A Phase of Social Science," "A Tale of Legal Giants," are all readable. Besides these are a number of other papers, and the usual discussion on the "Topic of the Times," "Open Letter," etc., Published by Century Company, New York.

ST NICHOLAS is a bright and attractive thanksgiving number, presenting a splendid table of contents which will please the young reader. The December St. Nicholas will be the Christmas number. Published by the Century Company.

Daniel Y. Hunselman, County Clerk elect, entered upon the duties of the office Monday, 27th ult., for the ensuing four years term. Mr. Hunselman was elected at the general election of 1882 by a handsome majority over his competitor, Ezra D. Hartman, who at that time was considered the strongest candidate the republicans could nominate. A lawyer by profession, his general knowledge of legal business eminently fits him for the position of clerk and we predict for him a successful career. John W. Baxter, the retiring official, carries with him into whatever channels fortune may drift him the highest encomiums of the people and likewise the court and members of the bar, for efficiency and manly department, during the five years that he has served them as county clerk. James B. Baxter, who for several years past has acted as deputy clerk, will be retained in that capacity for the present at least.

The old and reliable bakery and confectionery, for many years carried on by Edward Baker on Seventh near Main street, Auburn, recently changed hands. Mr. Miller, the well known dry goods merchant, having succeeded to the proprietorship. This is the most popular bakery stand in Auburn. All articles turned out at this bakery are strictly first-class. Families supplied as usual with fresh bread, pies, cake, choice confectionery etc., at the lowest prices possible for standard goods. Fresh oysters a specialty. The new management cordially invites a continuance of old patrons and assures all such that no pains will be spared to render satisfaction.

Governor Hendricks and General Manson addressed a meeting of 3000 at Kendallville last Friday. Although but a short notice was given of this the last rally of the campaign in Noble county, the meeting was a success. The speaker's stand was located in front of the hotel Smith and handsomely decorated. Besides a large turnout of uniformed clubs there was a line of ladies and gents on horseback and a car containing children dressed in white, trimmed in beautiful emblems to represent the various states of the Union, with a handsome and dramatic representation of the goddess of liberty as the central figure. As usual at democratic campaign gatherings republican deviltry showed its hand last Friday. The Star Windmill Company of that place is composed chiefly of republicans, and the proprietors introduced their bulldozing methods and tried to kick up a disturbance by cartooning a democratic meeting. The fact that two distinguished citizens of our state were guests of the town ought to have suppressed rowdyism and guaranteed the forms of civility. This is another sample of republican argument, and in the case of Friday last democrats should remember Flint, Walling & Co., of the Star Windmill concern.

The peculiar manner in which Justice is sometimes administered in our village court is sublimely farcical and lays old Dogberry in the shade. For example, we point to the case on the 16th, wherein W. H. Nusbaum went through the motions of a "trial" for murderously assaulting the writer. Oliver Rosenberry, who happened (?) to be in bugle call readily appears in behalf of the offended peace and dignity of the State. Was this done to let the prisoner down on a soft spot? The insignificant assessment of five dollars is pretty thin, my countryman, for such an outrage. The fact that the complainant in this case is known to be on unfriendly terms with the editor of the Headlight gives the business a fishy appearance, which we venture if probed to the bottom would smell as rank as a rotten mackerel by moonlight. Perhaps the Hon. State's Attorney could stumble onto a state secret and at the same time strike a much needed balance by overhauling the scales of Justice in this ancient bailiwick.

These wide awake merchants of Waterloo, Messrs. Loewenstein & Rothschild, are out with a new ad. this week in which they offer extra inducements to their patrons.

PUBLIC OPINION.

—Chicago News: We are told that Casabianca Reid, of the New York Tribune, stood on the burning deck in New York until the flames that lit the battle wreck stole into the powder magazine and blew that young and faithful heart to smithereens.

—Chicago News: The Cincinnati Enquirer crows lustily over the election of Cleveland. This does not surprise us. The Enquirer was in a position to crow over the election of any one of the five presidential candidates. Mr. John R. McLean has more tones to his voice than ever the historic Mr. Orator Puff had.

—New York Times: Mr. Gould was perhaps the most earnest of all Mr. Blaine's supporters. There is no object that is dearer to Mr. Gould's circulatory system—whether the latter does or does not include a heart—than the preservation of the Union Pacific railroad from the calamity of being compelled to pay the United States government the millions of dollars of which the government has so far been defrauded. To Mr. Gould the election of Mr. Blaine meant the appointment of four Gould judges of the Supreme court and a decision on the part of that body releasing the Pacific railroads of their obligations to the government. Such a decision would have been worth millions to our great financier. Naturally, with such a prize in view he was willing to spend almost any amount of money to secure Mr. Blaine's election. Mr. Gould cares nothing for power except as a means to the end of making money. The mere ownership of the president of the United States and of the Supreme court, pleasant as it might be to some men, would have of itself no value in Mr. Gould's mind. He would have been the power behind the throne had Mr. Blaine been chosen president, but Mr. Gould would have cared for none of these things except as a means of securing a favorable decision from the Supreme court.

—Cleveland Plain Dealer: With a good democratic administration in power the time will come for extending the presidential term. A presidential election once in ten years will be often enough.

—Chicago News: Belva Lockwood not only made $125 out of the campaign, but was saved all the wear and tear of doubt. Belva seems to have been a thrifty and very fortunate candidate all around.

—Toledo Post: Some of the republican editors are so badly rattled over the defeat of last Tuesday that they claim that when Cleveland becomes President, "Confederate bonds will begin to be recognized as having value." Somebody ought to whisper to these bewildered brethren that under the constitution no part of the confederate debt can be paid by the government of any state, or of the United States. This ghost will not alarm the level-headed people of any party.

—Springfield Republican: One thing is sure. The votes put into the ballot-boxes last Tuesday are to decide who shall be the next President. His name may be Cleveland or it may be Blaine, but he will be voted in, and not counted in. The American people choose their own president this year. If any one tries to take the business out of their hands they will make short and sure work with him.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Happily, for the country, the Presidential contest is ended. There now remains the formal balloting of the electors, the opening of the electoral vote in the presence of the two Houses of Congress, the declaration of the result, the inauguration of Grover Cleveland on the 4th of March next, and our government will have again successfully passed through the stages of a peaceful revolution. But while one class of citizens feel the mortification of defeat and another the exultation of victory, the event is one over which every citizen should find cause for genuine congratulation—not over the mere fact that one party has been beaten, while another has been successful, but because we have a form of government under which a peaceful revolution may be effected by a simple expression of the people's will.

There is no disputing the fact that remembering the contest of 1876, many citizens had come to believe that in so close a contest as resulted in New York, there was danger of bribery and fraud—that the party in power would by some means defraud its opponents—but the exciting days of the past week have revealed a deep-seated purpose, an earnest determination, that the man honestly elected should have the office. This has been confined to the masses of neither party—it has been outspoken among both Republicans and Democrats. The facts encourage the belief that our peaceful revolutions are to continue, and we can all well afford to rejoice over the prospect—not as Republicans or Democrats, but as patriot citizens of the republic.

Mr. Blaine presents several reasons why he was not elected. If a great many things that happened had not happened; if some other things had happened that did not happen; if it hadn't been for this, that and the other thing; if some people had voted for Mr. Blaine, who did not vote for him; if he had received more votes; if Parson Burchard had had his mouth paralyzed; if it hadn't rained on election day: and if Mr. Blaine had got more votes than Cleveland received, Mr. Blaine thinks he might have been elected.

Mr. Blaine does not, however, hit upon the real reasons for his political calamity. They are two in number:

First—The people were of the opinion that Mr. Blaine's record did not demonstrate his fitness to be President and they didn't want Mr. Blaine for President.

Second—The people had made up their minds that the time had come for the Republican party to go.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK

Is the oldest family magazine in America, and is conceded by the press and public to be the leading Fashion Magazine, especially so, as its circulation probably covers the largest area of any American publication, its patrons being found in every civilized country under the sun. 1888 will mark the fifty-fifth year of this Magazine, and it is proposed that it shall not only exceed in excellence in every department anything in its previous history, but surpass in attractiveness, quality and quantity any other magazine published for the same price. The Magazine, during 1888, will contain :—

1000 pages of reading, consisting of Stories, Novels, Romances, Sketches, Poetry, History, Biographies, by the best magazine writers; also, Art and Current Notes, Charades, Dialogues, Lessons on Dressmaking and Cooking.

200 Practical Recipes; besides descriptions of Fashions, domestic and foreign.

150 pages illustrating Fashions in colors, and black and white.

50 pages illustrating Fancy-Work in colors, and black and white.

24 pages of Select Music.

18 Beautiful Engravings.

12 Illustrations of Architectural Designs, besides Illustrations of Household Interiors and Stories.

Each subscriber will be allowed to make a selection each month of a "Full Size Cut Paper Pattern" of any design illustrated in the Magazine, without any extra cost; these patterns are worth more than the price of the Magazine. We will also present to every subscriber a Steel Engraving (for framing) of Perault's celebrated picture "Sleeping Love," prepared expressly for this Magazine.

As Godey's Lady's Book has faithfully observed its promises with the public for fifty-four years, there need be no doubt about the above offer being fulfilled to the letter. Subscription price $2 00 a year. Sample copies, 15 cents.

THE CENTURY In 1885.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

PAPERS ON THE CIVIL WAR.

The important feature of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE for the coming year—indeed, perhaps the most important ever undertaken by the magazine—will be a series of separate papers on the great battles of the War for the Union, written by general officers high in command upon both the Federal and the Confederate sides,—General Grant (who writes of Vicksburg, Shiloh, and other battles,) Generals Longstreet, McClellan, Beauregard, Rosecrans, Hill, Admiral Porter, and others. The series opens in the November Century with a graphically illustrated article on written by the Confederate general, G. T. Beauregard. Brief sketches, entitled "Recollections of a Private," papers chronicling special events, descriptions of various auxiliary branches of the services, etc., will supplement the more important series by the various generals.

A strict regard for accuracy will guide the preparation of the illustrations, for which The Century has at its disposal a very large quantity of photographs, drawings, portraits, maps, plans, etc., hitherto unused. The aim is to present in this series, not official reports, but commanding officer's accounts of their plans and operations,—interesting personal experiences which will record leading events of the war, and possess, at the same time, a historical value not easily to be calculated.

FICTION.

In this line The Century will maintain its prestige, and furnish the best stories by American writers that can be procured. In November begins

A New Novel by W. D. Howells,

Author of "Venetian Days," "A Modern Instance," etc. This story deals with the rise of an American business man. A novel by Henry James, a novelette by Grace Denio Litchfield, and short stories by "Uncle Remus," Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, T. A. Janvier, H. H., Julian Hawthorne, and other equally well-known writers will appear at various times.

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

Under this heading may be included a series of papers on the Cities of Italy by W. D. Howells, the illustrations being reproductions of etchings and drawings by Joseph Pennell; a series on being an interesting group of papers by E. V. Smalley, Lieut. Schwatka, Principal Grant (of Kingston, Ontario), and others, descriptive of little-known regions; papers on French and American art,—sculpture and paintings, with some exquisite illustrations; papers on the first being by Professor Langley and others. Under Architecture are included more of Mrs. Van Rensselaer's articles on Churches, City and Country Houses, etc. Colonel George E. Waring, Jr., will describe

The New North-West,

Astronomy, Architecture, & History,

Progress in Sanitary Draining;

R. C. Stedman, Edmund Gosse, and others will furnish literary essays; George W. Cable will contribute in various ways; several papers on sport and adventure will soon be published, and will write from time to time on outdoor subjects.

Readers of THE CENTURY may feel sure of keeping abreast of the times on leading subjects that may properly come within the province of a monthly magazine. Its circulation is now about 140,000 monthly, the November number exceeding that figure. Subscriptions should date from this number, beginning the War Series and Mr. Howell's novel. Price $4.00 a year, 35 cents a number. All booksellers and news-dealers sell it and take subscriptions, or remittances may be made to the publishers.

☞ A free specimen copy of THE CENTURY will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

A Great Hunter.

A mighty hunter is Rudolph, Crown Prince of Austria, and a universal one, too. All is game that comes within range of his gun. During four years, in which time he visited Spain, Egypt and Syria, he bagged 18,050 head. The list thereof includes 5,775 hares, 768 deer, 309 wild boars, 2,585 partridges and 4,115 pheasants. Then there were some odd customers, such as a marmont, a badger, an ichneumon, six polecats, a Varom lizard, four owls, a steppe eagle, two bustards, two klipphuhn, and a pelican. The Prince is more than a mere slaughterer of beasts and birds. He is an enthusiastic student of natural history, and preserves and mounts carefully all rare or especially fine specimens that come within his reach.

Spanish Philosophy.

To-day, after my arrival at Victoria, I went to a shoemaker to get some repairs done to my boots. There was nobody in the shop; the master was on the opposite side of the street, smoking his cigarette. His shoulders were covered with a manto, full of holes, and he looked like a beggar, but a Spanish beggar, appearing rather proud than ashamed of his poverty. He came over to see me, and I explained my business.

"Wait a moment," said he, and immediately called his wife. "How much money is there in the purse?"

"Twelve pieetas (14 francs, 40 centimes).

"Then I shan't work."

"But," said I, "twelve pieetas will not last forever."

"Who has seen to-morrow?" said he, turning his back on me.—Hannibal Hamlin.

A VETERINARY surgeon of Binghamton, N. Y., successfully removed one-half of the tongue of a valuable horse, upon which was an epithlytical cancer, without much blood or trouble to the horse.

Ingersoll and Love.

Mr. Robert G. Ingersoll, called "Bob" for short, is a brilliant rhetorician and a true orator as well as an undoubted pagan, but he sometimes talks eloquent nonsense. For instance, in his speech against Talmage he says: "Christ said nothing in favor of wife; not one word in favor of home, not one word in favor of marriage. The only thing he says upon that subject really is that there shall be no marriages in heaven."

Mr. Ingersoll does not read his New Testament enough. No founder of religion has said so much about love as Christ. Neither Buddha, nor Zoroaster, nor Brahma, nor Confucius, nor Mohammed, nor any of the other religious teachers whom he ranks with or above Christ, said as much for love, for women or for family affection or human kindness as that lowly Nazarene. Col. Ingersoll should not do injustice to one who announced that rule on which his personal chances for prolonged comfort mainly depend—the rule that much will be forgiven to one who loves much. Christ strengthened the marriage tie and elevated the relation by brushing aside the technicalities which a subtle and self-seeking class had used to rid themselves of its duties and restraints; He restored filial obligation to its true position in the same way; He made little children safer and dearer by declaring them the type of heavenly purity; He wept at the grave of His friends; by His love for and obedience to His mother, by His loving kindness to erring women, by His permanent and close friendship for good women, He raised woman toward her true position, to what it is now, to what it is whenever it is or has been best in the world, to what it never was before His day, anywhere outside the influence of His doctrine. In the race of which He was born a member, and under the religion of His mother, love and the family had come nearer the ideal standard than anywhere else in His day or before Him. He was reared under a law which sanctified the family relation, and which recognized pure sexual and domestic love as beautiful and honorable. There was no need for Him to formulate a code about wife, or home or marriage. There was such a code among His people, which He came not to destroy but to fulfill, and love is the fulfilling of the law.—Louisville Commercial.

The republican has gone. Good day.

The Count Finished and Cleveland is Elected.

A Time of Rejoicing for Democrats.

NEW YORK, November 17.—It is now officially settled that Mr. Cleveland has carried this state, has 219 electoral votes and is elected President. Not one of Blaine's magnetized friends can now dispute the fact that Cleveland has carried the state. The plurality is not large, but it is practically as effective as if it was ten times as large.

The plurality in this city is 48,004, which gives him the state by 1,107 on the lowest elector and 1,200 on all the others.

Our Chapman can crow over the election of a democratic President; over a majority of the electoral vote; over a democratic majority in the House of Representatives, and a majority of the popular vote of the United States. That is good enough for any rooster.

Below we give the official vote of DeKalb county Nov. 4, 1884, by townships and precincts, basing the count on President:

For the Holidays.

[Auburn Courier.]

As the holidays are approaching we could call the attention of the people of DeKalb county to the fact that Joseph Albright has again placed in his cases the finest display of goods in his line, ever brought to Auburn in the line of ladies' gold watches, gents' gold and silver watches in every style. The latest styles in bracelets, neck and guard chains, vest chains, sleeve and collar buttons, gold hand rings, set rings in gold, pins, ear drops, in gold and plate, spectacles in both gold and silver, and in nickel and celluloid. Silver plated ware in the sets, cake baskets, berry and fruit dishes, pickle and tea casters, dinner and tea casters, napkin rings, vases, cups, mugs, perfumery caskets, knives, forks, sugar shells, pickle tongs, tea and table spoons, the best quality of gold pens. Call at his store in Auburn and be convinced that his sixteen years experience in this county taught him to select just what the people demand.

The old and reliable bakery and confectionery, for many years carried on by Edward Baker on Seventh near Main street, Auburn, recently changed hands, Mr. Miller, the well known dry goods merchant, having succeeded to the proprietorship. This is the most popular bakery stand in Auburn. All articles turned out at this bakery are strictly first-class. Families supplied as usual with fresh bread, pies, cake, choice confectionery, etc., at the lowest prices possible for standard goods. Fresh oysters a specialty. The new management cordially invites a continuance of old patrons and assures all such that no pains will be spared to render satisfaction. 25tf.

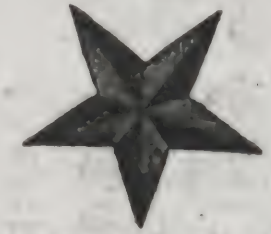

"Sleeping Love."

A fine steel engraving of Faraut's charming picture, "Sleeping Love," has been offered by the publishers of GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK to every new subscriber to the magazine for the year 1885. The plate is a very artistic one, beautifully printed on thick paper of a size suitable for handsome framing. The subject, a little dimpled Love, adorned with nothing but his baby charms, is lying on a soft grassy couch, fast asleep among the wild flowers, his round, white limbs approaching the cool embrace of a pond of water-lillies. One little chubby hand rests lightly on his unstrung bow, which is lying under him, while the other hand is softly pressed upon his cheek; the plump fingers threading the wavy masses of his floating hair. Under the right arm and shoulder one little downy wing is snugly tucked away, while the other peeps up from the drooping, shadowy boughs covered with rich foliage, and the background reveals a deep perspective of cool forest shade. The picture is one of striking simplicity, yet admirable composition, and the figure of the "Sleeping Love" himself, with drooping eyelids and softly parted lips that reflect the rounded beauty of babyhood, is one of the prettiest you could well conceive of. Messrs. J. H. Haulenbeek & Co., proprietors of Godey's Lady's Book, have purchased this charming picture most advantageously. It is much admired by some of the most fastidious gentlemen and

New York.

The following is the vote of New York compared with 1880:

1880.

Garfield	555,544
Hancock	534,511
Garfield's plurality	21,033

1884.

Cleveland (vote on lowest elector)	563,105
Blaine's vote	561,998
	1,107

It will be noticed that Blaine received 6,454 votes more than Garfield. Cleveland received 28,594 more votes than Hancock.

Butler's vote in New York is 16,918; St. John's 25,115.

Train robbers are again at work. Twenty masked men stopped a Wabash passenger train last night, near Qitman, Mo., killed the express messenger and secured $1,600.

This year good luck comes not singly to the Democrats. An error discovered to-day in Chicago, gives the Illinois Legislature and the next United States Senator from that State to the Democrats.

The little game to steal the vote of New York for Blaine didn't work. The thieves had everything ready, but the other side was ready to receive them.

Ligonier Banner: The editor of the Corrunna Head-light was the victim of a cowardly assault at the hands of Dr. Wm. H. Nusbaum, one day last week. Craven like the doughty doctor struck his victim from behind.

The New York Star figures out a possible election of Mr. Conkling to the United States Senate by the Democrats and Stalwarts and a "treaty" with Riddleberger which would give that body to the Democrats.

Mr. Cleveland will be the youngest man ever elected to the presidency, except General Grant. Franklin Pierce was a few months older on taking the oath than Mr. Cleveland will be when he assumes the chief magistracy. The President elect was born March 18th, 1837.

What Girls May Learn.

There are innumerable things in the course of both nice and narrow housekeeping not generally known, and not laid down in books, but which are handed down traditionally; and, if the young girl does not observe them in her mother's house, she will not have them to bequeath when she leaves it for a house of her own. Perhaps they do not signify a great deal, but they do signify a certain amount of comfort, and if no one thinks to call her that she may see them done, she does well to keep her own eyes open. Let her learn thus orally, and she will thank her teacher daily for years to come—learn that lamp-wicks soaked in vinegar and dried will not smoke afterward, that there is nothing better to remove grease spots from carpets than oxgall from the butcher's, used in water, and swelled as little as possible in the using; that an ounce of alum will purify a whole hogshead of foul water; that a furred tea-kettle may be cleansed by boiling in it a few spoonfuls of ammonia; and that if yeast is bitter, it may be sweetened by thrusting into it a red-hot poker. She may learn in school that wood ash makes hard water soft by means of its carbonate of potassa uniting with the sulphate of lime, and forming other substances, which fall to the bottom, and leave the water all right, and be glad of the knowledge in some situations where she cannot buy washing-soda; but she will not learn there, even though the principle be taught, that a steel pen heated ign as-light and dipped in cold water becomes as good as new, nor know anything about it unless she sees somebody do it. And she may generalize from her books the fact that if shot is used in cleaning wine bottles, and is left by accident, the acid of the wine acts on it poisonously; but unless she sees her mother cover port and claret stains with salt, and wet them with sherry before washing with hot water, she will be helpless when some awkward elbow turns her best white damask a ruinous red. Nor, when she is in a furious hurry to boil some preparation for dessert in her "bain maria," or in one kettle set in the hot water of another, and, fire up as she may, it will not boil, is she likely to know, unless she has seen it done at home, that if the outside portion of the boiler be filled with brine, the inside will boil immediately, owing to the much higher temperature of boiling brine than of boiling water.

Lowry's majority over Keator in the district is 2,510.

The News speaks in glowing terms of the democratic jollification held in Kendallville recently.

The democrats jollified in Auburn on Wednesday and had a grand time in rejoicing over the great victory.

Ex-clerk J. W. Baxter and lawyer W. L. Penfield, of Auburn, are out west on a prospecting tour.

The republican who predicted that Cleveland would not carry a northern state was a little too previous.

President Arthur has issued the annual thanksgiving proclamation, designating Thursday, 27th of November, as a day of general thanksgiving.

Owing to the impaired health of Mr. Chas. Imus the Union hotel has been closed, and travelers will have to look elsewhere for accommodations.

On Wednesday night last a horse was stolen from the stable of Mr. Washler, who resides about three miles south-east of Corunna.

The republican majority in Noble county was reduced to 77. With the proper effort it strikes us that Noble could be brought into democratic line.

The Rome City Clipper is the name of a new paper which has just bloomed out at the Saratoga of the West. Bowman & Teal publishers.

Mr. Frank Stahl has been engaged as principal for the winter term of our village school, which opened on Monday, 10th instant. Miss Mary Topping has charge of the lower room.

The republican organs are just now taking consolation in comparing Blaine with Henry Clay. As both Mr. Blaine and Mr. Clay are dead there is some propriety in the criticism.

Pomeroy's Democrat says the republican party this year has quite a swarm of B's for sale, as caught in the fleshpots—Ball, Butler and Burchard—but thinks nobody would invest a penny.

According to Walker Blaine's talk his "pa" knew that he was defeated on the day after the election. But Blaine hoped to steal a state all the same and sent word to his henchmen to "claim everything."

Read McQuiston & Long's price-list as advertised on another page of this paper. A great many desirable articles can be had for the small sum of $1,00 by calling at their store North side of the Public Square, Auburn.

The official vote of Indiana places the highest majority received by any one candidate on the State ticket, John J. Cooper, at 9,903, and the lowest, J. A. S. Mitchell, at 3,721. The average democratic majorities are over 7,000.

President elect Cleveland is the recipient of a constant stream of callers who come to pay their congratulations. There is much speculation respecting his Cabinet, but on this subject and all matters pertaining to his forthcoming administration the Governor keeps his own counsels.

In his Augusta speech in response to a serenade of his republican admirers, Blaine said that by the election of Cleveland the country would be turned over to the southern confederacy. J. G. B. is feeling mighty bad over his defeat.

A Galveston News special from Blossom Prairie, Texas, of Nov. 17, says: At midnight last night Sheriff-elect B. H. Black, of this (Lamar) county, was called to the door of his residence and instantly killed, expiring before he could make a statement. There is no clue to the assassin. Black was a prosperous merchant.

Miss Carrie Welton, the lady whose sad death upon Long's Peak attracted so much attention recently, has left her fortune, amounting, it is stated, to between $200,000 and $250,000, to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Henry Bergh is the executor.

As showing that this country is immensely democratic on a square vote, Cleveland has a popular majority over his competitors of nearly 100,000.

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

SUNDAY.....NOV. 30, 1884.

[From the Garrett Edition.]

Keyser township takes the cake for increased democratic majorities.

A crowd of democrats attended the jollification at Auburn.

C. W. Camp was in Chicago two or three days this week.

Hon. R. Morse, life insurance agent of Angola, was in Garrett last week.

D. D. Moody was in town the other day on business.

The Episcopals will hold thanksgiving services at their church.

Mr. Ball, the successor of N. W. Blackburn, contemplates moving to Garrett soon.

The republicans of Garrett are taking their medicine like little men. By proper nourishment they will soon convalesce.

Frederick's skating-rink is about completed. The rink will have one hundred pairs of skates for use.

N. W. Blackburn has changed his notion of leaving Garrett. He will remain with us and engage in the grocery business.

Dr. Stewart was selected as representative to the Grand Lodge from Garrett Lodge of Odd Fellows.

We hear that several democrats are already making efforts for the Garrett postoffice. Better wait until the corpse is decently buried before we administer on the estate.

The farmers are taking advantage of the good roads and are hauling wood to town, although the roads seemingly must be rough as all the nice straight sticks are jolted on top.

By the death of her father, John W. Garrett, of Baltimore, his daughter, Mary Elizabeth Garrett, becomes the wealthiest lady in the United States, her possessions footing up more than forty millions of dollars. A woman like that can afford two lumps of sugar in a cup of coffee at least Sunday, if not every day.

The Methodist Missionary Society held a very pleasant exercise on Sunday night last. All the singing was good with the exception of the "hungry four quartette," and criticism—though friendly—is that singing to be enjoyable the voices, especially male, must blend in complete harmony, no part too loud, and every singer speaking the words distinct and plain, so that all may understand. In these there is room for great improvement in the "hungry four quartette."

The Ligonier Banner trots out the gamest looking rooster in the democratic barnyard.

Until further notice the B. and O. railroad company will sell round trip tickets to the following Western land points at half rates: Abilene, Baxter Springs, Council Grove, Florence, Holton, Independence and Reece, Kansas; and Columbus, Lincoln and Grand Island, Nebraska. Tickets will be good for 45 days. Here is your opportunity to visit the West at the lowest rates ever offered. Baggage checked through to destination. For rates, etc., apply to agents B. and O. R. R.

A steamboat explosion on the Alabama river killed three and seriously scalded twenty persons.

Claus Spreckels, son of Adolph Spreckels, the Hawaiian sugar king, attempted to assassinate editor DeYoung of the San Francisco Chronicle, by shooting him the other evening at the Chronicle office, for criticism of the latter's management of the great sugar monopoly of the Pacific coast. DeYoung's injuries are not considered dangerous.

Picturesque B. & O. takes a hand in the excursion business to Martinsburg and Hagerstown, as they are the only direct line to these points. The B. & O. will, on November 17th and 18th, sell round trip tickets to Martinsburg, Hagerstown, Shippensburg and Chambersburg, good for sixty days, at extremely low excursion rates. These tickets will be good going either via Wheeling and Pittsburg, or via Grafton. For further information as to time of trains, rates, etc., apply to Agents of the B. & O. R. R.

Dickinson & McMillen's Meat Market.

Dickinson & McMillen are the leading dealers in meat at Auburn. They keep on sale fresh and salt meats, lard etc., in any desired quantity. Out of town orders will receive prompt attention. Prices always the lowest. Leave your orders with Dickinson & McMillen and you will get a choice article.

The B. & O. Limited Train.

No Extra Charge and the Fastest Time Ever Made.

The Baltimore and Ohio is still on deck and more enjoy than ever when it comes to talking out in meeting for the interests of the traveling public, as against the exactions of some other and would-be rival lines. Its latest shot into the camp of the high-priced and fancy-figure lines is a hot one already there is a good deal of sweating to get away from the line of fire. But there is no use of kicking against the gruelling, and the average man now pays $5 more a thing or two which all the cunningly constructed advertisements of those who want the whole earth and then can go enough cannot lead him to the actual state of affairs. To pay eight or ten dollars extra for the simple riding on a road that assumes all there is in this life worth having is all bosh, and no longer will the dividends of railroad company and sub-military corporations be sweet at the expense of an overcreaming public. The B. and O. has itself gone to the limited express train business, and, as is ever the rule with everything done by the solid old corporation, the people profit and would be rival lines whine. On all the limited trains of other roads a man is crammed largely in excess of the regular passenger rate, and the passenger who don't like this either or not has to pay another extra in the shape of sleeping car fare. If he declines to accept the condition so arbitrarily exacted, he has perforce to go on a slow train, as according to the latest principles of these autocratic companies, fast time is only for the wealthy. On the B. and O. the best is ever deemed the honest due of all, and the great American maxim that every man is his own master to follow his own sweet will has ever been the all-governing rule of its daily contact and work of existence. In other words there are no extra charges of any character whatever on the B. and O., and, figuratively speaking, if a man don't want to sleep he don't have to take it. If he desires a sleeper, a parlor car, there it is, and the rate for accommodations is only the regular standard figure, not doubled up as on other lines, in the interest of an already all-powerful and ever-increasing monopoly.

The fast express on the B. & O. Limited are brand new, just out of the shop, and perfect in equipment, combining all the latest improvements. They as all other cars on the road, run through without change and all in the same unparalleled time. Note the service. Chicago Limited leaves that city at 5.30 P. M., arriving in Washington the next morning at 7.30, and Baltimore an hour later. This certainly is flying, a twenty-five hour run to the National Capital being all any one could ask. And it is not done at a dangerous rate of speed or in an anyway reckless manner.

The Fools Who Advanced Ideas.

It has often occurred to me that a man is a fool who advances ideas of which the world has not previously heard. We are an ancient family. Look at Noah. He worked a lifetime through dry weather on a boat. Every one who saw him and his family had a laugh at them for being fools. The rain came and saved them, though. Then there was Moses, the man of bulrushes, who would not be the son of the Princess, and instead lived for forty years among those who would have none of him. The crown of folly, I may say, and I say it without thought of sacrilege, belongs to Him who walked with twelve apostles, a stumbling-block to the Jews, and a vexation to the Greeks. It is hard to draw the line between folly and wisdom; they dovetail together and wind in and out to such an extent that it is almost impossible to tell where the fool leaves off and the wise man begins. And then, the fool of to-day may be the philosopher of to-morrow.

Franklin was a fool, when with kite and key he drew electricity from the clouds and was knocked headlong. That man was a fool who first started across the ocean in a steamship. At the time he was plowing the waters a wise man of Easthampton sat in his studio and wrote an essay incontestibly demonstrating the impossibility of the feat. The fool, however, arrived safely and was a fool no longer. His foolishness, it seems, depended on his geographical location. Columbus—there was a fool to be proud of. He persisted in sailing out to the edge of a world that every one knew was flat. Judge Tourgee.

"Finest Racket I' Ever Sawr."

"Up all night, eh?"

"Bet cher life. Finest racket y' ever sawr. Went down to see the show at the Comique, an' put away a dairy somewhere after every act. Spent nearly $2, and got home at 15 o'clock g. m.—good mornin's without a solitary sou. Well, y' see I've just moved into a new boarding house in Ninth av'noo, an' I forgot the night-key when I changed my clo'es in the evenin', so I thought I'd sit down on the doorstep an' wait until some un come along. In about an hour I woke up an' found another gent sittin' alongside of me which had also been locked out, so we introdooced ourselves and sat there till mornin' singin' 'What is Home without a Night-Key?'"—New York Sun.

VOLUME VII. No. 127.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, DEC. 15, 1884.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Buffalo Rep.: Mr. Blaine should not be judged to harshly. It must be a difficult task to deliver a discourse over one's own political coffin.

New York Truth: Mr. Blaine need not worry about the white men of the north. They can get along without him, and have so told him.

Kansas City Times: Gen. Jackson had 219 electoral votes in 1832. Gov. Cleveland gets the same number in 1884. History repeats itself.

Fall River Herald: Mr. Conkling is not a revengeful man, but there is no sorrow on his mind as he reflects that he sat down rather heavily upon James G. Blaine's neck.

Boston Traveller: Of one thing certainly the country may rest assured—the chair of Washington is going to be firmly held down during the next four years.

Cleveland Plaindealer: It is proposed to nominate Blaine for president in 1888. All right; go ahead—that suits the democrats. It's real fun to be opposed by a candidate who is beaten in advance.

Indianapolis News: Would it not be well for political opponents to cease their ridicule and abuse of Gov. Cleveland? He is the president of the country now and therefore entitled to respect. As for the quality of his acts, who can tell now what they will be?

Philadelphia Record: Mr. Blaine's last speech shows to the southern people how grave a mistake they would have made had they listened to his blandishments and cajolery. The flatterer of last summer has revealed himself to them as a bitter and malevolent enemy.

New York World: The country sighs for peace, but Mr. Blaine bowls for war. He has lifted the burning cross and the fires of sectionalism are to be lighted again. What does the buiness public think of the chronic disturber, Blaine, now?

Chicago News: Mr. P. T. Barnum, the showman, said before election that if Blaine were defeated he would sell his entire property at Bridgeport, Conn., for one-fourth its value. Mr. Barnum has made a great deal of money in his day out of the belief that the American people like to be humbugged, but this time he has found himself mistaken and refuses to carry out his promise.

Atlanta Constitution: "If the time should ever come," said Elector Staples, of North Carolina, at the Wilmington jubilee, "that the constitutional rights of the black man should become endangered, my word for it, the people of the south will be found among their strongest advocates and defenders." This is the answer of the south to the slanderer who lately led the republican party to defeat.

New York Herald: Blaine, assuming for his own purposes that Cleveland was elected by the south, shouts out that he is the president of the minority. A pretty minority, truly, when he gets the whole south and about three million votes in the north. It may please the fancy of some republicans, and fire some republican hearts, to rail at the south as if it were not possessed of equal rights with any other part of the union, but sensible people, even republicans, are tired of such trash, and most politicians can understand that a candidate who gets 3,000,000 northern votes and carries four northern states is not entirely the choice of one section.

THE DECEMBER MAGAZINES.

The CENTURY for December has for its frontispiece a profile portrait of General Grant, engraved from a recently found photograph taken in 1862. It accompanies the second of the papers on the 'Civil War,' 'The Capture of Fort Donalson,' which is contributed by General Lew Wallace, who commanded the Third Division of Grant's army during the siege. A score of illustrations present views on the field, portraits of officers, maps, and (not the least interesting) an autograph copy, recently made by General Grant, of his famous 'Unconditional Surrender' dispatch to General Buckner. The 'Recollections of a Private' are continued, with descriptions of the early 'Campaigning to no Purpose' along the Potomac, with illustrations. In both papers the drawings are nearly all from photographs. The fiction consists of 'An Adventure of Huckleberry Finn, with an account of the famous Grangerford-Shepardson Feud,' by Mark Twain, being a tale of life along the Mississippi River, some of the types being represented in the sketches of D. W. Kemble; the first part of a novelette, in three parts. 'The Knight of the Black Forest,' by Miss Grace Denio Litchfield—a story of American girls in Europe, which is illustrated by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote; and the second part of Mr. Howells' new novel, 'The Rise of Silas Lapham.' Other illustrated papers are 'Dublin City,' of which Mr. Joseph Pennell has made sketches to accompany a humorous and instructive paper by Professor Edward Dowden, the Shakespeare commentator; 'Hunting the Rocky Mountain Goat,' a narrative of personal experience, by William B. Baillie-Grohman, with illustrations by Geo Inness, jr.; a third paper in 'The New Astronomy' series by S. P. Langley, in which he endeavors to give the reader some conception of 'The Sun's Energy,' and a critical paper on 'American Painters in Pastel' with an example of pastel works by Robert Blum. George E. Warning, jr., the sanitary engineer, sets forth in detail by diagrams a subject of pressing importance in a paper on 'The Practical Aspect of House-drainage.' Miss Emma Lazarde contributes a critical paper on 'The Poet Heine,' which contains translations by herself and John Burroughs of a piece of poetical natural history on 'Winter Neighbors.' 'Topics of the Time' contain several interesting editorials on a variety of current subjects. Price 35 cents a copy, or $4 a year. The Century Co., New York.

Godey's Lady's Book for December (J. H. Haulenbeck & Co., Phila.) contanis one of the prettiest steel plates that has ever been issued with the Magazine. "Sleeping Love" is really a work of art much above the par of ordinary engravings such as accompany the average periodical. The poem by Mary Bradley, whose verses occupy a permanent place in American literature, is a very charming accompaniment to the frontispiece. "Maxwell's Ghost," a strong story by the same author, is concluded in the present number. A Christmas story, by Christian Reid, is another feature of this issue, and there are several good sketches besides. During the coming year the literary attractions of Godey's Lady's Book will be largely multiplied. The Two Hundred Dollar Prize Story will appear in the January number, which will also be accompanied by a Christmas card and several special features. Now is the time to subscribe; $2 a year.

THIS PAPER IN CLUB WITH GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, will be sent One Year to any address on receipt of $2.50, which should be sent to the publisher of the HEADLIGHT.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK

Is the oldest family magazine in America, and is conceded by the press and public to be the leading Fashion Magazine, especially so, as its circulation probably covers the largest area of any American publication, its patrons being found in every civilized country under the sun. 1886 will mark the fifty-fifth year of this Magazine, and it is proposed that it shall not only exceed in excellence in every department anything in its previous history, but surpass in attractiveness, quality and quantity any other magazine published for the same price. The Magazine, during 1886, will contain:—

1000 pages of reading, consisting of Stories, Novels, Romances, Sketches, Poetry, History, Biographies, by the best magazine writers; also, Art and Current Notes, Charades, Dialogues, Lessons on Dressmaking and Cooking.

200 Practical Recipes; besides descriptions of Fashions, domestic and foreign.

150 pages illustrating Fashions in colors, and black and white.

50 pages illustrating Fancy-Work in colors, and black and white.

188 Beautiful Engravings.

152 Illustrations of Architectural Designs, besides illustrations of Household Interiors and Stories.

Each subscriber will be allowed to make a selection each month of a "Full Size Cut Paper Pattern" of any design illustrated in the Magazine, without any extra cost; these patterns are worth more than the price of the Magazine. We will also present to every subscriber a Steel Engraving (for framing) of Parrish's celebrated picture "Sleeping Love," prepared expressly for this Magazine.

As GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK has faithfully observed its promises with the public for fifty-four years, there need be no doubt about the above offer being fulfilled to the letter. Subscription price $2.50 a year. Sample copies, 15 cents.

ST. NICHOLAS
FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

Attractions for 1884--5.

No printed periodical can take the place of parent, teacher, or school-teacher; but a good magazine can supplement their work and influence to a wonderful degree. In view of this, it is not extravagant to say that instead of "Can we afford to take ST. NICHOLAS?"—the question of every earnest household in English-speaking countries, today, should be "Can we afford not to take ST. NICHOLAS?"

MARY MAPES DODGE.

Has grown familiar to hundreds of thousands of young readers; and their interest and intelligent enjoyment have constantly inspired the editor and publishers to fresh effort. Today, its strength is in its wholesome growth, its sympathy with young life, its hearty recognition of the movement of events, and its steadily increasing literary and pictorial resources. The following are some of the good things already secured for future numbers of ST. NICHOLAS:

'His One Fault,' a serial story for boys, by [illegible]

'Personally Conducted' illustrated papers [illegible] places in Europe, by Frank R. Stockton.

'Historic Girls,' a companion series to 'His[illegible] Boys,' by E. S. Brooks.

'Ready for Business,' suggestions to boys [illegible] to choose an occupation,—based on personal interviews with prominent representatives of various trades and professions, by J. Hammon.

'Driven Back to Eden,' a serial by E. P. Roe.

'Talks for Young Folks,' a series of popular [illegible], by H H (Helen Jackson)

'Among the Law-makers:' recollections of [illegible]-two years in the U S Senate, containing much political information, both instructive and amusing, by Reuben Alves

'Davy and the Goblin,' a very funny serial [illegible] by a new writer, Charles Carryl.

Short Stories by Louisa Alcott.

'The Progress of Invention:' "From Palanquin to Parlor car," "From Cross bow to 100-ton Gun," Descriptive papers, by Charles F. Holder.

'Art Work for Young Folks:' papers on decorative handicraft, by Candace G Lockey.

'Sheep or Silver?' a story of Texan life. By [illegible] W. H. Bishop.

'A Garden of Girls,' being six short stories [illegible] by the Lothrop Writers

'Tales of Two Continents;' stories of adventure, by H H Boyesen.

'Cartoons for Boys and Girls,' funny pictures by the Hopkinson Smiths

'From Back to Wagner': brief, pointed biographies of great musicians, by Antonia Torre

THE CENTURY CO.,
NEW-YORK, N. Y.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Mr. Hendricks in his Brooklyn speech enunciated the true idea of civil service reform: "I am not particularly confident of success after a schoolmaster's examination. But I will tell you what I have confidence in: As it was in the days of Andrew Jackson, let a true man come to be the President of the United States, and let true men be called around him to aid him in the public service, and let these men resolve that the only test for qualification for office under them shall be honesty and fitness for the service, and you have civil service reform." Comment is unnecessary.

A prominent Boston lady wagered fifty dollars that Cleveland would carry New York by 10,000 plurality, the money to be earned by peddling peanuts. She paid the bet according to agreement.

The capitalization of five of the great trunk lines of this country is—N. Y. Central, $89,500,000; Lake Shore $50,000,000 common and $500,000 preferred; Pennsylvania, $92,500,000; Erie $77,000,000; Baltimore & Ohio fourteen million seven hundred and fifty thousand! It is not remarkable that the B. & O. is invariably prosperous, paying ten per cent. per annum, and on last year's business carrying $1,940,000 to a surplus which now aggregates $47,750,000.

B. K. Bruce, Register of the Treasury, one of the ablest colored men in the country, says Blaine's charges of intimidation and violence at the polls in the Southern states "are absolute and unqualified falsehoods:" that the greatest harmony exists in the South between the white and colored races; that the Augusta speech was "demagogical in the extreme and wholly unwarranted, and will be the cause of great uneasiness and mental distress among the colored people of the South;" and finally that the speech has "fomented a new antagonism" and lowered Mr. Blaine more in popular esteem than any other act of his life.

McQuiston & Long.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

How Times Have Changed Since the Jacksonian Era.

The United States of to-day is quite another nation from the seven by nine United States of Jackson's time. Then California was almost a myth. Indiana was the "Far West." People traveled by stage coach. Thousands lived and died without ever going beyond the bounds of their native counties. The steamboat paddle-wheels had just begun churning our river water. Washington was a dismal country village. More than suspicion of insanity would have attached to the man who would have announced that his children would "cable" a message from New York to London, or that the people miles apart would talk to each other viva voce. Sails alone bore the traveler across the Atlantic. Fortunate was the ship that made the passage in three weeks. Cultured travelers from Europe were shocked at the rawness and provincialism everywhere prevalent. Opera all but unknown. The danseuse was an immoral spectacle. Negro minstrelsy had just commenced its career in the shape of a single burnt-cork performer at the circus. His popular melody was "Jump Jim Crow." Popular sentiment still handed down from the war of 1812 was bitter against England. City landlords sat at the head of their own tables and carved the beefsteak. In religion "liberalism" was heretical. In no pulpit was any compromise allowed in the matter of eternal punishment. The locality for lost souls was then a clearly-defined fire and brimstone reality. Preachers of different sects waged bitter war against each other. Presbyterianism frowned on Methodism. In country towns Catholicism meant the dreaded dominion of the Pope, and the burning of all Protestants at the stake, if possible. "Stocks" and high shirt collars were then the fashion for gentlemen's neckwear. Beards and mustaches were not respectable. Gentlemen did their own shaving. Pantaloons were strapped under the boots. All boots were "Wellingtons" and had legs. The general school system meant the "District school" and the Academy, a consumptive and irritable Connecticut teacher, a "box stove" filled with wood, and a Pikes Arithmetic. Party feeling was far more bitter than to-day. The old Federal and colonial families who'd held office since Washington's time, and deemed office theirs by a sort of divine right had just been ousted, and they never forgave Jackson, the ouster. The militia were armed with flint-lock muskets. A militia General was then a man of mark. Everybody chewed Mrs. Anderson's or Miller's fine-cut tobacco. The spittoon found its place even in the family pew at church. A visit to New York by the villager resident 200 miles distant was an event to be talked over for months. A man who had seen Europe was a marked man for the remainder of his days. Doctors dosed with "blue mass," black draughts and the lancet, yet people occasionally recovered in spite of them. Good butter was a shilling a pound and eggs dear at 18 pence a dozen. Few men took over one daily paper, and this often served more than one household. Democrats were known as "Locofocos," to whom were opposed the "Whigs." All the elders stood bolt upright in church during prayer. Deacons with red noses were more common than to-day. The minister was not averse to a glass of toddy during a parochial call. Pillars of the church and of society sometimes walked home from their business offices rather unsteadily about 5 or 6 o'clock. Such habits were more overlooked than at present. The yearly expenses of the Federal Government was not much over that per annum of the city of New York to-day. Rum was the popular drink; brandy next. How times have changed since the Jacksonian era.

A Little Slow.

"Conductor!" exclaimed an elderly gentleman, looking up from the Bible he had been anxiously poring over for some minutes, "Conductor, I can't find anything about this train in the Scriptures. Where is it? Show it to me!"

"What did you expect to find about it?" growled the conductor.

"Isn't there something about it here somewhere?" asked the old man, looking up innocently. "Isn't your time-table here either?" And he fumbled over the leaves and appeared puzzled about the thing.

"Of course it isn't," responded the conductor. "That Bible all happened 1,800 years ago."

"We must have started just before it was out," mused the old gentleman, putting the book back in the rack. "Perhaps there's something about it in the revised edition; got a revised edition?"—Drake's Traveler's Magazine.

Richland Institute.

The Richland township institute met in the school house at Corunna, on Saturday, November 22, 1884. Mr. Franks, township trustee, called the meeting to order, and on motion Milo Thomas was chosen president, and Charlie Casebeer secretary. Nine teachers out of eleven were present, one being absent on account of sickness. A motion was made and carried that the topics of the first institute in the last year's manual be used and also that the discussion of topics be general. Arithmetic and penmanship were taken up, and the discussion participated in by nearly all the teachers. Adjourned until one o'clock. After a recess of one hour the meeting was called to order, and the following subjects discussed in the order named: Geography, Language Lessons, Spelling, Primary Reading, and History. A good interest prevailed during the session, and a willingness to work was manifested by all. Adjourned to meet as usual. Charley Casebeer secretary. Milo Thomas, president.

The Christmas St. Nicholas.

John G. Whittier opens the Christmas St. Nicholas with a beautiful poem, entitled, "The Light that is Felt"; while Lord Tennyson is represented by a charming portrait of his two grand-children, from the painting by Anna Lea Merritt, which accompanies her interesting paper, "A Talk About Painting." Another artist-author, Mary Hallock Foote, writes and illustrates a delightful sea side article, called "Menhaden Sketches—Summer at Christmas-time."

J. T. Trowbridge contributes a new serial, called "His One Fault," of which there is an installment that breaks off just where we all wish to know what happened next.

Among the distinctively Christmas features are "Visiting Santa Clause," a poem, by Lucy Larcom; another Christmas poem by Grace F. Coolidge; the Very Little Folk's story, "Madie's Christmas," by Mary Mapes Dodge; a description by Rev. H. A. Adams of several noted Christmas feasts in Westminster Hall; and a clever little sketch, "What the Philosopher Said on Christmas-day," by Mrs. W. H. Daniels. There are also poems by H. H., Helen G. Cone, and Malcom Douglas; Edna Dean Proctor contributes a sketch of the young Crown Prince of Russia, with a portrait; and C. F. Holder tells of a whale that was in an iceberg.

The Republican papers are attempting to create the impression that there is already a "division amongst Democrats." They would like to have this the case but they will not be accommodated. Cleveland and Hendricks are in accord, and the Democracy will retain power for twenty four years to come.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Thanksgiving day was ushered in with a light fall of snow.

The December term of the DeKalb Circuit Court will convene on Monday, 15th.

The regular session of Commissioners Court commenced on Monday.

Station master J. M. Carens and family spent thanksgiving at Stryker, O.

Albert Buchanan, of Hillsdale, Mich., is in the village.

The largest diamond ever cut in America has been named "Cleveland Gem," after the president-elect.

There are already four applicants for the Corunna postoffice, and yet the slate is not complete.

A fire broke out in the Chicago Paper Company building last week damaging stock to the amount of $85,000.

The democrats of Waterloo had their jollification on the 22. About thirty persons from this place joined our Waterloo neighbors in celebrating the great victory.

President-elect Cleveland has given the colored people of the South to understand that they will be protected in all their constitutional rights under his administration.

The late cold snap was rather a sudden transition from the genial Indian summer, and the blizzard found many illy prepared to receive such a visitation.

President Arthur has tendered President-elect Cleveland the hospitalities of the White House on his arrival at Washington pending the inauguration ceremonies.

Now comes General Tecumseh Sherman, the hero of "The March to the Sea," and publicly asserts that Jefferson Davis was not a conspirator, but a traitor, and says he has in his possession documentary evidence to to support what he asserts. Davis retorts by proclaiming Sherman a liar. Sherman says he will settle with Davis in his own way, which is a very strong intimation that Tecumseh is mad and that nothing short of a tilt on the field of Mars will appease his wrath.

Some Still Left.

People who argue that all the old-fashioned people and old-fashioned ways have passed away should take a trip through New England. A New Yorker who made such a jaunt was one day in a general store when a woman came in and asked the clerk:

"Do you keep sulphur?"

"Yes."

"And 'lasses?"

"Yes."

"And do you buy eggs?"

"Yes."

"Where are you from?"

"Boston."

"Was you brung up there?"

"Yes'm."

"Well, I want to be waited on by some old-fashioned clerk who was brung up around these parts, and knows enough to git the right proportions of sulphur and 'lasses to cure the itch. The other day when I found that the children had it I was real pleased. It kinder 'peared to me like evidence that the young folks hain't quite run away with this country, after all."—Wall Street News.

The Foolish Goose.

A Goose having been placed in a Pen and fed until she could scarcely Breathe happened to catch sight of a lean old Hen on the Fence, and called out:

"You can now see which of us stands highest in estimation of our Master. Here I am provided with a Warm Pen and fed until my Crop is bursting, while you have to roost anywhere and have not an Ounce of Fat under your Feathers."

"That's all right, my Friend," replied the Hen, "but while your Goose will be cooked for Christmas, I shall live to see many Months yet."

Value of Babies.

The value of babies has been fixed. A child less than 1 year old is worth $14; between 1 and 2 years, $19; 2 to 3 years, $28; 4 years, $31; 5 years, $35; 6 years, $40; 7 years, $50; 8 years, $60; 9 years, $70; 10 years, $90; 11 years, $123. These are the valuations made by a baby insurance company of Cincinnati. The parents pay 5 cents per week for the insurance of their child. The rates for colored children are twice as much, owing to their two-fold ability for contracting contagious disease.

ADULLUN.

Our Occasional who Masquerades Under Many Aliases.

Thanksgiving—Business—The Skating Rink—Slightly Personal—Political Retrospective and Prospective.

With shrieking cries that rend the skies, thanksgiving turkies close their eyes, in death; they fulfill their destiny and with the g. o. p. drop out of the procession.

Our friend N. W. Blackburn will open a brand new grocery in a few days. His stock will be first class and his prices the very lowest "for cash."

Our jeweler, Alsbaugh, has "marked his dog" so that now his business advertisement is carried Excelsior like on a dog blanket through all the highways and byways of the town. It might be called a "dogged" good way to advertise.

Frederick's new mammoth skating rink is finished and is pronounced the most commodious and best arranged one in northern Indiana. Stoves are being put in for the winter campaign, before the close of which some of our most promising young men will undoubtedly become insane and have to be sent to Auburn for a license, all caused by the exhibitions of dimity, risque and ruffles that will be unintentionally given by the fair ones. May the saints preserve us from such a fate. Some parties were in the rink a few evenings ago practising skating so as to be ready for the grand opening night, when it is expected that the youth, the beauty and the chivalry of our town and vicinity will be present. Frederick viewed their promiscuous tumbling for a while, then with diagonal eyes and aching heart he wended his way home simply remarking to the door-keeper that from what he saw he was convinced that he had admitted some parties who were no gentlemen but very fine people.

George Behler attended the democratic jubilee at Goshen last Saturday. George is nothing if not democratic. Toward the close of the festivities as he was wending his way homeward, or somewhere-else-ward, he sprained his ankle very badly by falling over a bustle which had been dropped by some enthusiastic spectator of the hilarious demonstration. This incident causes us to remark that there has been more bustle and confusion, especially the former, in this campaign than was ever known before; especially was this the case with the Waterloo club which formed the most attractive feature of the largest Blaine and Logan demonstration we had during the campaign in Garrett. Ye Gods! but that was a trying occasion! Some of our reliable Bourbons were "almost persuaded" to "jine the gang" as that matchless body of political amazons waltzed by to the soul stirring music of "When Sherman Marched Down to the Sea," rendered in Theodore Thomas style by the gem band of the hoosier state, the "Air Line" of Corunna.

One old time democrat whose experience and recollection dates from "way back in Jackson's time," when apple jack, pure as spring water, was drawn from cob-web covered barrels and quaffed from a gourd by both old and young, was distinctly heard to remark, "Politics makes strange bed fellows." Bless his dear old heart! he was drifting back on the tide of his memory in the days when our politics, our pumpkin pies and our girls were wholesome influences that ruled our nation for good. March on, ye Waterloo Phalanx; march on through long and happy lives, some of you no doubt are destined to become the happy brides of uncompromising democrats and the proud mothers of democratic congressmen, or presidents, it may be. Who can tell? And when the frosts of many winters have silvered your new blonde or darker tresses and you gather your children and grandchildren about your knee, you can describe with pardonable pride the manner in which you wrung shouts of admiration from the politically unwilling but nationally proud hearts of democratic admirers as you gaily marched down Randolph street in Garrett, Indiana, the crowning glory of a grand procession in honor of the grandest political trickster that ever trod the political stage of the American continent.

By the way, it's amusing to hear Sullivan's theory of one of the causes of the defeat of the g. o. p. He says: "The constant and unprincipled endeavors of a few over zealous republicans, possessed of more magnetism than consistency, to blacken the character of Grover Cleveland by publishing to the world the details of an alleged "amour" of his younger days, drove to his support thoussands of good men, who saw in this manner of political warfare a two-edged sword, or boomerang, that might be turned against themselves with disastrous effect in future political contests, these men recognising Roscoe Sprague Conkling and Henry Ward Beecher as their leaders in every sense of the word."

A notable exception, however, among this class of men may be mentioned Henry M. Bicknell, who clung to Blaine with all the tenacity of a subsidized railway magnate; in which connection it might be incidentally mentioned that since Blaine's defeat the bonds of the Indiana Pacific Rail Road, of which Bicknell is a director, have fallen to five cents a bundle "New York count."

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The revised and official figures of Indiana show Cleveland, 244,993; Blaine, 218,650. Butler, 9,710; St. John, 6,072. Cleveland's plurality, 6,612.

J. H. Butler, commercial traveler for Deere, Mansur & Co., of St. Louis committed suicide at Little Rock after a protracted spree. His book, "Factors of Civilization," attracted some attention on its publication some years ago.

A terrible epidemic prevails in Virginia and people are dying by the thousands. The epidemic, which seems to baffle the skill of medical science, has all the symptoms of the cholera and is supposed to originate from the late drouth in that section which left the water consumed impure and poisonous.

The scheme to get 2,000,000 acres of land away from the Crow Indians under the guise of a ten-year lease at 1 per cent per acre should warrant the dismissal of the officers involved in it from their public positions. When agents of the government have no better business on hand than duping the Indians out of their lands they should be given a permanent vacation.

Last Wednesday Dr. John Maxwell, a physician of Springfield, O., administered poison to four of his children and then took a similar dose himself. Three of the children died and the fourth will probably die. Maxwell survived and is in jail. Financial troubles and a vexatious lawsuit it is alleged upset the doctor's mental equilibrium and caused the tragedy.

Thanksgiving day was observed in the usual manner throughout the country. At Washington the fire department paraded in the morning and in the afternoon colored military organizations marched through the streets. President Arthur, after attending church, dined with his daughter and Mrs. McElroy. The New York postoffice was open, as on election day, and the rotunda house gave an hour for the entrance and clearance of vessels. The charitable institutions gave the inmates an extra dinner, and Mrs. John Jacob Astor provided for the boys at the Newsboys' home. In accordance with custom, Gov. Hoadley, of Ohio, pardoned one convict out of the state prison at Columbus.

November.

The wold is drear and the sedge is sere
And gray is the autumn sky,
And sorrows roll through my riven soul
As lonely I sit and sigh
"Good-by"
To the geese-birds as they fly.

With his weird wishbone to the temperate zone
Came the geese-bird in the spring.
And he built his nest in the glorious west
And sat on a snag to sing—
Sweet thing!
Or dip his beautiful wing.

But the breeze of the blast has come at last
To the geese-bird on the lea,
And the succulent thing, with shivering wing,
Flies down to a southern sea—
Ah me,
That such separation should be!

But it's always so in this world of woe—
The things that gladden our eye
Are the surest to go to the bugs; and so
We can only wearily sigh
"Good-by"

A Horse Thief Caught.

The horse stolen from Allen Wasbler, mention of which was made in our last, was found at Chicago Junction, O., last Saturday in possession of the thief, who proves to be one Buzzard, alias Ellsworth. Buzzard has lived in this section for some time working at ditching, and made his home at William Saunders. Shortly after the theft he suddenly disappeared, and being traced to Chicago Junction the authorities were notified to be on the lookout. He was accordingly arrested on suspicion and upon the arrival of Sheriff Boyle was brought to this county and cooped. The horse was also recovered. Buzzard as his name indicates is an evil bird of prey, and is suspicioned of being a party to the forgery of a note against Mr. Kagey, of Richland, the facts of which will probably be developed at his trial for horse stealing.

Killed While Crossing the Railroad in Front of a Moving Train.

One day last week, while returning from Auburn with his team, a son of Milton Chesney, residing at Greene Corners, attempted to cross the railroad track near the stave factory about the time the southbound passenger train is due at that point. In crossing either Mr Chesney did not see the approaching train, or his horses balked on the track, or he undertook the hazardous risk of crossing while the train was in sight, the engine, despite the efforts of the engineer to stop, caught the wagon midway demolishing the vehicle and carrying Mr C. with the debris a distance of several yards. He was picked up in a mangled condition and only survived a few hours. The horses were detached from the wagon by the force of the collision and escaped unhurt. This terrible accident affords another solemn warning to "Look Out for the Locomotive!"

Corunna Headlight

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

Entered at the Postoffice in Corunna, Indiana, as Second-class matter.

MONDAY ..... DEC. 15, 1884

Congress opens today (Monday), and the President's Message will be dished up to the public tomorrow.

Indiana produced this year 40,581,200 bushels of wheat and 89,159,799 bushels of corn.

Cleveland will make his Cabinet out of first rate material, and he will select it himself. He is that kind of a man.

Speaker Carlisle, who arrived in Washington Sunday night, expressed his belief that there would be no tariff legislation this winter. Mr. Carlisle will be a candidate for Speaker of the next House.

The Leman-Brand election controversy of Chicago (Cook county) is waxing warm. This is a matter wherein Leman, republican, candidate for the State Senate, claims the certificate of election over Brand, democrat, on account of alleged ballot-box stuffing. The Federal courts are wrestling with the muddle, and as a United States Senatorship is at stake the investigation will be thorough and the purity of the ballot maintained.

"Sir Charles Neiville," the bogus lord whose real name is George Newbold, seems to be a genious in his way, but it is a very bad way. After eloping with ten women at different times and duping them all out of more or less money, he has been brought to trial at Toledo, O., and convicted of bigamy. Monday Neiville tried to suicide by beating his brains out against the iron door of his cell. He says he will not live to receive his sentence.

A story is told of a bargain between a stock buyer and a Steuben county farmer. The farmer made a proposition to the stockman that in the event of Blaine's election, he was to pay him (the farmer) a certain sum for eleven head of cattle, which the other desired to purchase, and if Cleveland was elected he was to have the stock as a gift. The offer was readily accepted and the stockman felt so certain of the cattle that he wagered $50 with a friend that he would win. The result is not just as the farmer might have wished it, but then he will have that many less head to winter.

[From the Garrett Edition.]

Before making your holiday selections call at Jos. Albright's Jewelry store in Auburn.

Wheat 70c.; corn, 30c.; oats, 24@26c.; potatoes, 30c.; butter, 14c.; eggs, 18c.; hogs, live, $3.50; dressed, $4.65.

J. M. Brumback shipped four car loads of stock, consisting of cattle, sheep and hogs, from Corunna Monday last, consigned to the Buffalo market.

Frank McNabb called in to see us the other day. Frank contemplates "pulling up stakes" in Garrett with a view of trying his luck in Elkhart.

Governor Cleveland ate his Thanksgiving dinner Thursday at the Executive Mansion in Albany with his brother and sisters and the latter's husbands.

Buzzard, the captured horse-thief, is the same fellow that "slushed around" here on the occasion of a democratic rally and wound up the dance by kicking up a free fight. He is a tough cuss on general principles.

Peter Queer, who was accidentally killed last week at the yards by the switch engine, had been in the employ of the B. & O. for a number of years. He was known as a practical joker and quite a favorite among the boys.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers purpose giving their annual ball on New Year's eve. As these annual festivities given by the brotherhood are the society events of the season, the forthcoming ball will no doubt be a success.

By a business note on court matters just received from deputy clerk J. B. Baxter, the writer adds a P. S. stating that one of those trying events in the course of all well regulated families has overtaken him, and consequently irregularities in business just now are pardonable. The addition of a girl baby to the home circle seems to elevate the spirits of our friend amazingly.

The Rink building, recently constructed by W. J. Frederick, is now open for business. This edifice is complete in all its appointments. It will answer a two-fold purpose of skating rink and public hall, being supplied with staging, galleries and dressing-rooms, and it will seat an audience of several hundred. The enterprise is due to Mr. Frederick who seems to never lack for ways and means to improve the village.

Reduced rates to the centennial anniversary of the Methodist Episcopal church at Baltimore, Dec. 9th to 18th. The B. & O. railroad will return delegates who pay full fare going, at one third the lowest unlimited rate on certificate under the rules.

The Corunna Headlight.

VOLUME VII. No. 128.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, DEC. 30, 1884.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

New York Tribune: This being an era of good feeling in the first degree, why would it not be a graceful tribute to a vanquished foe for Mr. Cleveland to invite Mrs. Lockwood to assist him in opening the inauguration ball?

Chicago News: Oscar Wilde is coming to this country again and says he hopes for better success than he had before. As he failed to get into an insane asylum when here before we should think he would feel like coming back and demanding reparation.

Chicago News: The Rockford (Ill.) baptists have made it so warm for their pastor, the Rev. Mr. Anderson, because he voted for St. John, that the pastor has been compelled to promise his resignation. This leads us to the conclusion that salvation in Rockford is obtainable only by voting the straight republican ticket.

New York Truth: Mr. Blaine is on his way to Washington to resume work on his "Twenty Years of Congress," and Mr. Stephen B. Elkins announces on his behalf, that upon all political questions he means to maintain a discreet silence. This is wise. A dead man should not keep on talking after the funeral.

Louisville Courier Journal: Michigan has elected seven democrats pledged to work for tariff reform, and has also defeated Roswell C. Horr, whose district has a heavy republican majority, but who failed to recognize as serious the desire of his constituents for tariff reform. His democratic opponent fought him and beat him squarely on the issue of revenue reform this year, carrying the election by over 1,500 majority. The northwest is in earnest in its opposition to the present tariff system.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Two or three years ago Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, of this city brought from Florida a young negro named Jesse Griffin as a house servant. At the time he could neither read nor write. He remained here about a year, and during that time succeeded in learning to write his name so that it could be deciphered. Not liking the climate, he returned to the land of alligators and flowers about eighteen months ago. Now his friends have received word from him that he has just been elected sheriff of his county on the democratic ticket.

Louisville Times: President Arthur is not a profound statesman, but he is a gentleman, a man of ability, with an appreciation of the duties of his high office, which fits him as becomingly as his always faultless attire. Just now he is the recipient of much abuse from the irreconcilables of his party because he refused to prostitute the presidency to the level of a ward club and head a procession with a torch in hand while he sang a Blaine and Logan campaign song. If the legislature of New York shall conclude to send him to the United States senate we shall have no tears to shed. There, as in the white house, he would be conservative, honorable, and just. This is more than certain other senators justly claim to be.

An esteemed reconciled republican exchange seems happy in indulging in the following: "Governor Cleveland speaks out like a Trojan. He tells our colored fellow citizens to keep cool. They will be as comfortable under his strong administration as if they slumbered in a melon patch with a big watermelon for a pillow."

Indiana State Sentinel:

"Shall the rascals stay?" seems to be the question of the hour.

THE CENTURY In 1885.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

PAPERS ON THE CIVIL WAR.

The important feature of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE for the coming year—indeed, perhaps the most important ever undertaken by the magazine—will be a series of separate papers on the great battles of the War for the Union, written by general officers high in command upon both the Federal and the Confederate sides.—General Grant (who writes of Vicksburg, Shiloh, and other battles,) Generals Longstreet, McClellan, Beauregard, Bowerans, Hill, Admiral Porter, and others. The series opens in the November Century with a graphically illustrated article on written by the Confederate general, G. T. Beauregard. Brief sketches, entitled "Recollections of a Private," papers chronicling special events, descriptions of various auxiliary branches of the services, etc., will supplement the more important series by the various generals.

A strict regard for accuracy will guide the preparation of the illustrations, for which The Century has at its disposal a very large quantity of photographs, drawings, portraits, maps, plans, etc., hitherto unused. The aim is to present in this series, not official reports, but commanding officer's accounts of their plans and opperations,—interesting personal experiences which will record leading events of the war, and possess, at the same time, a historical value not easily to be calculated.

FICTION.

In this line The Century will maintain its prestige, and furnish the best stories by American writers that can be procured. In November begins

A New Novel by W. D. Howells,

Author of "Venetian Days," "A Modern Instance," etc., This story deals with the rise of an American business man. A novel by Henry James, a novelette by Grace Denio Litchfield, and short stories by "Uncle Remus," Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, T. B. Aldrich, H. H., Julian Hawthorn, and other equally well-known writers will appear at various times.

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

Under this heading may be included a series of papers on the Cities of Italy by W. D. Howell's, the illustrations being reproductions of etchings and drawings by Joseph Pennell; a series on

The New North-West,

being an interesting group of papers by E. V. Smalley, Lieut. Schwatka, Principal Grant (of Kingston, Ontario), and others, descriptive of little-known regions; papers on French and American art,—sculpture and paintings, with some exquisite illustrations; papers on

Astronomy, Architecture, & History,

the first being by Professor Langley and others. Under Architecture are included more of Mrs. Van Rensselaer's articles on Churches, City and Country Houses, etc. Colonel George E. Waring, Jr., will describe

Progress in Sanitary Draining;

E. C. Stedman, Edmund Gosse, and others will furnish literary essays; George W. Cable will contribute in various ways; several papers on sport and adventure will soon be published, and will write from time to time on outdoor subjects.

Readers of THE CENTURY may feel sure of keeping abreast of the times on leading subjects that may properly come within the province of a monthly magazine. Its circulation is now about 140,000 monthly, the November number exceeding that figure. Subscriptions should date from this number, beginning the War Series and Mr. Howell's novel. Price $4,00 a year, 35 cents a number. All booksellers and news-dealers sell it and take subscriptions, or remittances may be made to the publishers.

A free specimen copy of THE CENTURY will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

This from our highly esteemed contemporary, the Auburn Republican, would be funny, if it were not sublimely ridiculous:

We hear that Mr. Kimsey, postmaster of Waterloo, whose term expires in January, is spoken of for re-appointment. All we have to say is that a more genial and obliging man than Mr. Kimsey can not be found in Waterloo. We shall hope to hear of his re-appointment.

This sounds very nice, and the compliment paid to Mr. Kimsey may be well merited for ought we know. The woods are full of 'em about these days—"genial" republican p. m.'s we mean. President Arthur will hardly presume to anticipate his successor by making appointments beyond the limit of his executive authority. It seems now and then there is a republican editor who cannot reconcile himself to the situation, who persists in hanging around the fleshpots. The government will soon be in possession of the democracy, and it would be inconsistent to retain republicans in the offices under a democratic administration, and we see no reason to make an exception in the matter of the Waterloo postoffice. If we mistake not Mr. Kimsey trained with the Blaine and Logan crowd during the late campaign, is a lifelong republican and has held an office under republican administrations for several years. We are sure he would not wish to be classed as a democrat. Hence he will no doubt gracefully step down and out and join the innumerable procession.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

"The silver dollar must go;" The infernal revenue must go," shout the sundry statesmen. Yet it is advisable to remember that just now it is well enough to go slow—and this seems to be Grover Cleveland's policy.

A Texas jury has sentenced a murderer to imprisonment for ninety-nine years. As the man is about 50 years old we look with suspicion on this verdict. It appears like a scheme to prove that the Texas climate is wholesome and productive of longevity.

The World's Fair and Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans was opened to-day by electricity applied by President Arthur at Washington. Great good should come to the entire South, Mexico, Central and South-America, from this Exposition.

In his last message President Arthur recommends that General Grant be placed on the retired list with a suitable pension for his maintaintance in his declining years, as a matter of justice to one who has served his country well. Now that Congress is seriously considering the proposition Grant kicks and says he don't want any pension. The old man prefers to paddle his own canoe.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Let there be no more sarcastic flings at the St. John "movement." It elected at least one candidate, and the returns are not all in yet. This party was elected a justice of sessions in Richmond county, New York. To be sure he received only 19 votes, while his republican opponent polled considerably more, but the law requires a justice of sessions to be a justice of the peace; the St. John candidate filled the bill, while his republican opponent failed to do so. That was rather a queer oversight of "the boys" in Richmond county—if it has any—but all the same the St. John man was elected. Therefore let libes and unfeeling remarks to temperance men cease.

Opposition to the granting of a pension to General Grant is heard from all portions of the country.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Billy Shook has re-opened the McMillen meat market.

Snow fell to a considerable depth during the past few days, and the prospect is good for a season of excellent sleighing.

The U. B. Church society are making preparations to get up a Christmas tree for the little folks on Christmas eve.

The live stock market continues brisk in this place. Brumback and Butler shipped several car loads east last week.

Our venerable friend, Dr. W. H. McConnell, of Angola, is one of the happy democrats who rejoice over the election of Cleveland and Hendricks.

Six members of a Lafayette family were poisoned from eating head cheese. It is supposed the hogs had been given cholera medicine heavily impregnated with arsenic.

We call attention to the new advertisements in this paper. The readers of the HEADLIGHT will find something to interest themselves in the holiday announcements of our advertising patrons.

Loewenstein & Rothschild, Waterloo merchants, are in the market offering the highest cash price for grain and live stock, and in fact anything and everything the farmer may have to sell. Their new ad. appears in this paper, to which we invite attention.

According to the report of State Geologist Collet, Indiana has 250,000 acres of coal land worth more than $30,000,000; and 200 square miles of the best building stone in any western state, if not in the world. The output of Indiana coal this year is 2,500,000 tons. Indiana has a vast amount of wealth to be dug from this earth.

We take pleasure in calling attention to the annual prospectus of the old, reliable Cleveland Plain Dealer, which we publish on another page. For nearly a quarter of a century the Plain Dealer has labored in behalf of democratic principles, and no paper in the country did more toward accomplishing the grand results of the late political contest than this sterling champion of democracy. In making out your list of papers for the new year give the Plain Dealer a trial.

Mary, Queen of Scots.

Mary Stuart, daughter of James V. of Scotland and Mary of Lorraine, was born at Linlithgow Dec. 8, 1542, eight days previous to the death of her father. When she was 6 years old she was affianced to Francis, the Dauphin of France, in which country she was educated as a Roman Catholic. Ten years after she was married, with all the honors of the French court. In the following year, 1559, Henry II. died, and Francis became King as Francis II. By this event Mary became Queen of Scotland and France. She also claimed the throne of England after the death of Queen Mary, and took the title of Queen of England and Scotland, basing her claim upon the fact that her father, James V. of Scotland, was a son of James IV. and Princess Margaret, daughter of Henry VII. of England, and that Henry VIII. had disowned Elizabeth. Unfortunately, Francis lived only a year after his coronation, and the French crown fell to Charles IV. After his death Mary returned to Scotland. In 1565 she was married to Henry Stuart, Lord Darnley, a man of vile habits, but a friend and relative of Queen Elizabeth, with whom Mary desired to be at peace. She soon, however, became disgusted with her dissolute husband, and, in his stead, admitted into her councils Rizzio, an Italian adventurer of marked ability in some respects, but unpopular with the Scotch nobility and people. In time Darnley and several young nobles seized Rizzio in the Queen's presence, dragged him from her table and assassinated him. The Queen effected the punishment of the murderers, except her husband, to whom she apparently became reconciled; but, as he was killed soon after this by an explosion of gunpowder beneath the house in which he lay sick, and three months afterward she was married to Bothwell, the chief conspirator against her husband, she was accused of consenting to the assassination. A rebellion was raised, Bothwell was defeated at Carberry, and Mary was captured and compelled to abdicate. Escaping from Lochleven Castle May 2, 1568, she rallied about her a new army, which was soon defeated and dispersed, and Mary fled to England, supplicating aid of Elizabeth. That Queen, however, had never forgiven Mary for claiming her throne. The fugitive Queen was put under arrest, and for nearly nineteen years was imprisoned, with greater or less rigor, until Feb. 1, 1587, when, having been charged, on slight grounds, with plotting against the peace of the realm, and having been, after a prejudiced hearing, found guilty, she was ruthlessly executed.

"Roorback."

The late Thurlow Weed was instrumental in contributing to our political parlance the saying, Good enough Morgan until after election, and to the list of general Americanisms the word "Roorback," a term which might with propriety take the place of the French canard, only that the latter, being of foreign origin, may have, for persons of fastidious taste a better claim to respectability. Though not the originator of the once celebrated "Roorback slander," Mr. Weed, by publishing it in the Evening Journal, gave it a notoriety which it could not otherwise have attained. It sprang from the brain of an eccentric genius in Ithaca, William Linn, a relative of Simeon De Witt, for many years Surveyor General of the State. At the time Mr. David D. Spencer published the Ithaca Chronicle, an intense Whig newspaper. Linn was a Locofoco, holding a small office under Gov. Bouck, but neither his politics nor his religion ever stood in the way of his perpetrating a practical joke. While reading at one time an account of a trip in 1834 through the West and South by an Englishman named Featherstonhough, he came across a passage describing a slave-driving scene. He copied it and ingeniously added that forty-three of the slaves had the initials "J. K. P." branded into their shoulders, that they had been bought on Polk's plantation, and that they were then on their way to the sugar plantations of Louisiana. The manuscript was given to Mr. Spencer in the handwriting of a third person, a note accompanying it saying that the extract was from "Roorback's Travels through the West and South in 1836." The contribution was reprinted in the Evening Journal, whence it was carried all over the country and reprinted by the Whig newspapers. The fraud was quickly detected, however, and retraction followed; but Mr. Weed, in his zeal to score a point against the Presidential candidate of the opposition, was made to bear the odium of the slander, he having printed it in his journal without giving credit for it to the Ithaca Chronicle.

Blaine Sneaks Out.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

When the Indianapolis Sentinel published the story about Blaine's liasons in Kentucky, Blaine, striking a heroic attitude, sent word to his attorney to bring suit for libel at once, and proclaimed that he would "defend the honor of his family with his life."

This dramatic performance on the part of their candidate was greeted with loud applause by the Republicans, and they loudly proclaimed that the infamous libel of the Indianapolis paper would meet with prompt and condign punishment.

"Look," they would say, "how our candidate meets these vile charges against his character! See how prompt he his to come to the defense of his character and family honor! How brave! How noble! Behold this admirable man, who is so swift to defend his family honor with his life!"

But the Indianapolis Sentinel did not scare, as Blaine thought it would. It brought forward affidavits. It dared the avenging Jim to come on with his libel suit.

Jim didn't "come on." He hung back all through the campaign. After delivering his fiery proclamation about what he was going to do, he did nothing, and the suit languished for want of prosecution.

But his followers said: "Oh, Jim hasn't time now. He is too busy with the campaign. Wait until the election is over, and you will see the fur fly. He will defend the honor of his family with his life, Jim will."

The election passed and Blaine, being beaten, had plenty of time on his hands in which to do something in the way of defending 'his family honor with his life" but he still hung back.

Now in as dirty, mean, contemptible, slanderous a letter as ever any rascally damagogue ever wrote, he announces that he is going to drop the suit, and why?

He says the Democrats of Indiana are prejudiced against him and that he knows he 'can't get justice in Indiana.'

The baffled consprirator lies like a Gillian when he says that. It is a monstrous calumny and an assumption that for pure gall and monumental brass is worthy of the blatherskite who makes it.

He "can't get justice in Indiana!" How does he know that? What right has he to assume that his countrymen of any party in any state would not give him a hearing and decide justly in his case upon the presentation of the facts?

None whatever. He most vilely slanders the institutions of his country and maligns his coutrymen when he says he can't get justice.

The brazen liar knows he can get justice, but he doesn' want justice. He dare not face the trial. And out of this small hole, and with this infamous slander on his lips, this man sneaks out who was going to "defend the honor of his family with his life."

The suit by which the Lake Shore railroad company was mulcted to the amount of $5,000 for discriminating in freight rates and shipping facilities in favor of the great Standard Oil company is likely to prove profitable to the Lake Shore company. The Lake Shore company now has reasonable ground for increasing the freight rates on the Standard company's shipments, and $5,000 will be but a drop in the bucket of profit that will accrue as a result. It is a dismal day when a railroad company gets the worst of a bargain of this sort.

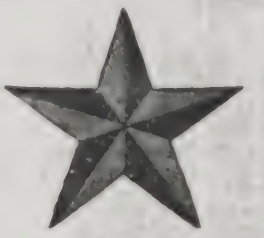

Education of Dogs In Maine.

A schooner rounded to at some distance from its wharf at Bath, Me., and, while the lookers-on were waiting for a boat to be lowered and rowed ashore with a hawser, according to the natural order of things, they saw something very different. A dog sprang from the schooner into the river, swam to the wharf with the end of a line in his mouth, and when the hawser to which the line was attached had been hauled in and made fast swam back to the schooner, seized a rope that was flung to him and was drawn on board.

THE covetous person lives as if the world were made altogether for him and not for the world; to take in everything and part with nothing.—South.

—OF—

HIGH PRICES,

Advise you to put this down in writing.

Every sensible man knows that bad goods at any price are bad bargains. We sell only square and new goods at low prices.

We've struck the note and thousands respond.

Suits for men never were seen at such prices. We are giving strong and excellent Men's Suits for $5, $6, $7, $8 and $10, and we stand on our square guarantee that no other house in the city can show such qualities for less than 30 per cent. more.

The Wedding.

Two rivers wandered o'er the lea,
Unlike as like can be—
The one a deep and shady stream
With measured flow bespeaking power;
The other danced with sunny gleam
And curt'sied to each nodding flower.

My fancy gave them form divine—
For fancy oft may thus incline—
The one a man profound and staid
With purpose firm that told of might;
The other seemed a blithesome maid
That lived to love—a cheery sprite.

Those rivers merged beyond the lea,
And thus together sought the sea.
Nor earthly power could dissolute
Their mingled waters as they sped,
Since nature's priest performed the rite
By which those streams for aye were wed.

The Fort Wayne Journal says: "Yesterday the case of the United States against Alexander Phillips was taken up. The jury after an eight hours deliberation was unable to agree upon a verdict and they were discharged. The case will either be compromised or tried again at the next term. Phillips is the republican postmaster at Garrett, DeKalb county, on the Baltimore & Ohio railway. It was charged that a number of democratic newspapers, issues of the German Telegraph of Indianapolis, had been mailed to subscribers at his postoffice and that he had withheld their delivery for political purposes. The case against him was a weak one, and if Phillips is to lose his place it should be on account of incompetency rather than perfidy or political reasons. It appears that the case against him was worked up by the man who carries the mail from the depot to the office, who had been quietly acting as subscription agent for the papers and had noticed the bundle in the postoffice without asking that it be delivered to subscribers. If Phillips had been the designing fellow it is charged he is, he could have followed Blaine's injunction to Fisher and by burning the package have saved himself from exposure."

From Surveyor VanAtken's annual report we extract the following item, showing what is being done in this county in public Drainage:

Number of miles of ditch laid out in the year 1884, 96.2; estimated cost of same, $9,030; number of miles accepted in the year 1884, 82.6; estimated cost of same, $8,610; total number of miles considered, 178.8; total cost of same, $68,546; mileage for the year (approximate), 9,400.

Sand-Hillers.

A sand-hiller is a raw-boned, gaunt, cadaverous man. He is put together loosely. His shoulders [illegible] goat. He is humble in width, and looks downward as though searching for lost coin. There is a peculiar side glance from the corners of his eyes, a furtive, timid, abashed glance, that thoroughly expresses the craven spirit of the creature. His wife is generally a [illegible] looking female much given to pipe-smoking, tobacco chewing and occasionally to the pleasure of clay-eating. His children are simply young sand-hillers. Some of them, of tender years, are slaves to the clay habit. These people live in squalid hovels, hidden from the sight of passing travelers by trees. Many of these wretched dwellings stand in ravines where there is level land fit for agriculture. A few chickens stalk sadly around the yards. A pig, lean, active, straight-tailed, walks with hungry looks about the [illegible]. Indeed a sand-hiller who does not own a dog does not live in South Carolina. They generally have more than one—mean, sneaking curs, mangy, flea-bitten, and always tired.—South Carolina Correspondent.

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

TUESDAY ..... DEC 30, 1884

This is the second week of our county court, and a large amount of business has already been disposed of. A state case for desecration of the Sabbath, in which Mr. Brechbill, a farmer of Smithfield, was the defendant, created more than ordinary interest. Mr. Brechbill, who is a reputable farmer of that locality, had occasion to harvest some wheat on the Sabbath, and hence the prosecution under the provisions of the statutes. If this sort of thing were followed up we opine the courts would be kept running on schedule time twelve months in the year.

The County Commissioners at the December session disposed of a large amount of business, consisting chiefly of ditch and road matters. The following persons were granted licenses to sell intoxicating liquors. Jas P. Tomlinson, Butler; J. W. Wagner, Garrett; Joseph Rothenberger, Auburn; A. J. Miller, Waterloo and Edward Eldridge, Auburn.

A brakeman, whose name we did not learn, was instantly killed while changing a switch at the target in Waterloo on last Friday. We did not learn the particulars of the accident, farther than that his foot was caught in the fatal "frog" and the train struck him down to death while thus imprisoned.

The Toledo Bee speaks of a brilliant meteor that passed over Perrysburg last Saturday night, a few minutes before 9 o'clock. A bright light similar to that spoken of by the Bee was seen in this locality a little later in the evening, say about 10 o'clock.

A number of friends of Rev. B. F. Phelps and wife gave them a pleasant surprise the other evening, and brought a handsome donation as a testimonial of their regards for the pastor of the Emanuel Church and his estimable wife.

The Lake Shore Railway Company will sell tickets at half regular rates from all stations, for the holidays, commencing December 24th, and good until January 2d, inclusive.

T. M. Blair, for a long time the popular B. & O. agent at Garrett, has been appointed agent at Defiance, Ohio.

Low Rates and Perfect Facilities on the B. and O.

The B. & O., as usual, will extend Holliday greetings in the shape of Round Trip Tickets at greatly reduced rates over their entire system. The low rates go into effect at all stations on the Trans-Ohio Divisions on the Twenty-Third, and those who go to take Christmas turkey with friends may remain until New Year and enjoy themselves to the utmost. If they do not want to go on that date, they can purchase tickets on the Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first of December, also on January 1st. These tickets are all good to return until January 2d, inclusive. The plan adopted by this Company of issuing Round Trip Tickets has been in vogue for several years and has become not only popular with their patrons but quite successful in a pecuniary point of view. For further information see large posters, or call on Station Agents.

J. W. Howenstine,

The Jeweler, of Kendallville, wishes to call attention to the fact that he has a large and well selected stock of goods, such as diamonds, gold and silver watches, ladies and gents' watch-chains, rings, bracelets, charms, ear rings, breast pins, lockets, scarf pins, brilliants, and silverware, clocks, etc., suitable for the holiday trade at his beautiful store in the Moyer block, corner of Main and Mitchell streets. Sign of the Big Watch.

The Auburn Junction Foundry.

The Foundry and Machine Shops at Auburn Junction, under the management of O. W. Wernts & Co., are in full blast. This firm manufacture the Champion Plow, which they sell at wholesale prices. Also all kinds of Cook Stoves at wholesale prices. Farmers will find it to their interest to patronize home industry, and the manufactures of the Auburn Junction Foundry are second to none in the country.

Camp & Carpenter, the druggists, narrowly escaped a big blaze the other night. A wooden box filled with saw-dust which was placed in the rear room near the stove, and used as a spittoon, took fire from a lighted match or a cigar and when discovered had burnt a considerable space in the floor.

Henry E. Gettel, the Altona merchant, has a new advertisement in this paper. Mr. Gettel is the leader in bargains and our readers should examine his new price-list.

The management of that Brooklyn asylum must have been very [illegible] and careless. Although the first report of the officers was to the effect that all the children had probably escaped, the latest information is that thirty were burned to death, and that a large number is missing besides. If those in charge of the little ones had been where duty demanded that they should be, they, at least, would not have been in utter ignorance of the children's fate, and indeed, they might [illegible]

Editorial Notes & Comments.

We extend the customary greeting to the readers of THE HEADLIGHT, and wish them a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Twenty bodies were recovered from the ruins of the Brooklyn Orphan's Home up to Sunday night, 20 others are missing.

The Washington monument is to be eclipsed, as Paris proposes erecting an iron tower, 1,000 feet high in the grounds of the Exhibition of 1889. It is claimed that views of the surrounding country for 100 miles can be had at the top of such a tower. The builders of it will guarantee patrons absolute safety in it. An elevator will convey sight seers to the top for a small charge. Those who go to the top of it will require steady heads.

It is yet absolutely impossible to tell where the inmates of the burned Brooklyn asylum institution can be found. In station houses, car stables and private homes the waifs found shelter, and late on Saturday last a list of children was made up and 123 were unaccounted for. The institution was visited by fire in 1862 under similar circumstances. It is now believed the deaths will be numerous, when accurately ascertained.

Mr. Blaine's declaration that he dropped his libel suit because he couldn't get justice in Indiana is the excuse of a baffled trickster. If it was justice he wanted why didn't he press the suit against some papers that published the same alleged libel in Republican states? Why didn't he bring suit against some papers in his own state that published it?

The Washington Republican, which is owned by Secretary-of-the-Navy Chandler, shows that Arthur's administration did not give Blaine's campaign the cold shoulder. All of the members of the Cabinet took an interest in the success of their party, and the majority of them took an active part on the stump. Mr. Blaine should give the Democrats the credit for defeating him. That was what they worked for and what they accomplished.

The Corunna Headlight.

VOLUME VII. No. 129.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, JAN. 15, 1885.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

New York Times: We do not think Henry Ward Beecher's power over Plymouth church has been very much diminished by his speeches against Mr. Blaine.

Plain Dealer: The republican office holders who whooped it up for Blaine and made themselves conspicuous at conventions and ward meetings have been served with notice that they will have to go. And so it should be.

Chicago News: Gov. St. John arises to say that the republicans who charge that he sold out to the democrats are, one and all, liars—not falsifiers, not men with mistakes hanging about them, but flatly, broadly, and unequivocally liars.

Cleveland Plaindealer: President Cleveland's letter on civil service reform contains substantially two propositions:

First proposition—Turn the rascals out.

Second proposition—Put honest men in.

And this is our idea of civil service reform.

Chicago News: Poor old Dr. Burchard is still receiving mean letters containing vile caricatures and worse doggerel from republicans who cannot get over their soreness. These republicans should not lose sight of the fact that it was not so much Dr. Burchard's remark as it was Mr. Blaine's failure to resent it promptly that made "Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion" a campaign cry.

Chicago News: "The democrats who have visited Gov. Cleveland are agreed that he is a capital listener, but none seems to have had the satisfaction of hearing him say much. The man who listens the longest is most likely to say something worth hearing when he does speak. Gov. Cleveland's happy faculty of thinking with his brains instead of with his tongue would be a profitable faculty for men in all the departments of politics and business to cultivate.

Atlanta Constitution: The crowning infamy of Mr. Blaine's life, if it were possible for any one of his infamies to stand out from the others is the manner of his dismissal of the libel suit against the Indianapolis Sentinel. When the Sentinel met the slanderer of Grover Cleveland by showing that his own record needed clearing, Mr. Blaine rushed to the courts with a great show of indignation. He now withdraws the suit on the extraordinary ground that there is no justice in Indiana courts. Such vile accusations against the people of a State could only come from a man whose whole life is but veneer.

Cleveland Plaindealer: It is a very unfortunate state of affairs for General Grant that he fell among the thieves and is left destitute in his old age, but it must be said that General Grant has always manifested a peculiar perversity that led him into the company of thieves.

It is not to say that Grant is or has been dishonest, but has had bad luck in his associations to say the least of it.

Grant always had a greed for gain and his moral penetration has been somewhat dulled thereby perhaps.

It is to be hoped that his friends will set him on his legs again, relieve him of his embarrassments and that Congress may make provision for his support somehow. Anything to prevent further scandal. For the country owes the old soldier a good deal, and it can afford to overlook the imperfections of the man.

THURSDAY.....JAN. 15, 1885.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We will wager the cigars that the first person who reads this paragraph wrote it 1884.

Now for a string of good resolutions for the New Year.

Quite a number of little children in Auburn have died in the past two weeks with the diptheria.

The G. A. R. Post, of Waterloo, gave a royal Christmas dinner at their hall in that place.

It is reported that within the past four years Vanderbilt has lost $100,000,000.

Henry C. Aultman, a Canton, O., millionaire, senior member of the widely known Aultman & Miller Reaper Works, is dead.

Judge Lowry, M. C., came home to spend the holiday vacation. He returned to his post of duty at Washington last week.

A general break-up in the weather last week carried off the snow and left the roads in a deplorable condition.

An old maid in Nashville keeps a parrot which swears and a monkey which chews tobacco. She says between the two she doesn't miss a husband much.

General Passenger Agent W. P. Johnson, of the Lake Shore Railway, through the obliging station master at this place, J. M. Carens, has placed us under renewed obligations for annual editorial courtesies.

We are in receipt of the "Septennial Report of the Ligonier Schools," a pamplet of 80 pages devoted to educatoinal matters. The work is from the press of Messrs. Stoll, McDonald & Co., of the Ligonier Banner, and is gotten up in the highest style of the typographic art.

The Chicago News suggests that the reason Governor Cleveland did not accord Doctor Mary Walker an interview the other day was not that he feared to meet her, but because it is still leap year.

Rev. John Miller, living on the farm of his son, L. J. Miller, southwest of the village, had a family reunion recently, at which were present his children, grandchildren and other relatives, the occasion being his sixty-sixth birthday.

In the criminal report of the December term of County court which closed last Saturday, there appears the name of William Nusbaum, of Corunna, arraigned on the charge of assault. The prisoner plead a former conviction. The manner of his "conviction" is pretty generally understood by the respectable citizens of the village, and with the exception of the Nusbaum gang denounce the proceedings as a miserable farce. It is very evident that other human hyenas had a hand in the plot to silence the Headlight by assassinating its editor on the 17th day of October last. When yanked before the grand jury the "gang" by some pretty loud swearing succeeded in saving the coon's hide for the present. But there's another chapter to this story which, like the New York Ledger tales "grows more interesting as it goes on."

Between the clapboards of his house, A. Billings, of Leroy, Minn., found 115 pounds of honey. One piece of comb was five feet nine inches long and twenty-three inches wide.

Some of J. M. Carens' enthusiastic political friends at Stryker, O., sent to Parkersburg, Ky., for a game chicken, with which they have presented him as a testimonial of their admiration for valor displayed on the political field. Jack proved himself a true soldier of the line in the late contest which resulted in such a glorious victory to the democracy.

The Butler correspondent of the Waterloo Press says, John W. Coffrin, who was killed by the plug Saturday night, 27th ult., two miles this side of Waterloo, was brought to Butler and buried Monday at two o'clock. He was a lad about seventeen years of age, and had been living with his uncle Chas. Coffrin, at this place for several months past.

An Albany newspaper man predicts that President-elect Cleveland will select three cabinet officers from the east, two from the south, one from Indiana, and the other from Illinois or Wisconsin.

The earthquake in Spain, Saturday, seems to have been a very serious affair. Many people were killed and great damage done.

Village school took a short vacation for the holidays in order that the pupils could enjoy the annual festivities, and we presume teacher Stahl improved the opportunity to visit his best girl in the Buckeye state.

CURIOUS FACTS.

ALL wild dogs are said to belong to one species only.

NATURALISTS say that a single swallow will devour 6,000 flies per day.

IN Germany even the smallest watch wheels are now made from paper pulp.

THE sewer inspector of Cleveland opened a clogged sewer and found that the roots of a tree had grown and forced their way into a socket joint, and, penetrating the sewer, completely filled it up. The roots had clasped themselves so firmly about the pipe that it took the united strength of two or three men to remove them.

A CURIOUS collection of books is contained in the library of Warstenstein, near Cassils, in Germany. These books appear at first sight to be logs of wood, but each volume is really a complete history of the tree it represents. The back shows the bark, in which a small piece is cut to write the scientific and the common name as a title. One side shows the tree trunk in its natural state, and the other is polished and varnished. Inside are shown the leaves, fruit, fiber and insect parasites, to which is added a full description of the tree and its products.

THE reason why the thermometer does not always accord with the comparative discomfort of hot weather is owing to variation of moisture in the air. While the human body is all the time giving off perspiration, either sensible or insensible, this evaporation will go on more rapidly when the air contains but little moisture than when it contains a great deal. Evaporation is cooling when it has no obstruction; but when it is obstructed by moist air the reverse effect is produced, and a temperature of 80 degrees is quite as oppressive as that of 90 when the air is dry.

THE whole Mississippi valley is filled with silt at least a thousand feet deep. In order to have deposited this silt thus all over the valley the river must have flowed in different ages in all parts of the valley, doing for countless centuries just what it is doing to-day, building up sandbars and mud banks, breaking and cutting them again, and tossing the atoms from place to place, dropping them at low water, and shifting them in floods, but always bringing down more, and building the valley up higher and higher, and carrying the delta out farther and farther to sea. If the supply of material holds out, the Gulf of Mexico must inevitably become dry land, as the arm of the sea above it has done.

DUST mixed with air is found to be, under certain conditions, a dangerous explosive. Thus, if a large lot of wood were ignited, it might be a week before it would be entirely consumed; split up into cord wood and piled up loosely, it would, perhaps, burn in less than an hour; cut it into shavings and allow a strong wind to throw them into the air — or in any way keep the chips comparatively well separated from each other — and the log would perhaps be consumed in two or three minutes; but if ground up into powder, and blown in such a manner that each particle is surrounded by air, it would burn in less than a second.

IF you examine a common fly under the microscope as he alights upon a piece of sugar, you will see unfolded from the under surface of the head a long organ which looks quite like another leg. It is really his under lip, and is beautifully adapted for licking up fluids and for scratching solids also, being rough like a file. This organ expands at the end into a fan shape, and is supported on a firm tubular framework acting as a set of springs to open and shut the fan. When a fly alights on the hand or face in the heat of summer, to sip the perspiration which oozes through the pores of the skin, the movement of this little file causes a tickling sensation.

A Down-Easter's Trade Philosophy.

"Let me tell you, a fellow's got to have a poor thing to sell a good one by," moralizes a Lewiston trader. "I always try to sell the poor stuff first. I always show it to a customer first. When I show him the good thing I'm sure to put a darn good price on it, so he will be liable to take the cheaper article. When a man comes into my shop and asks for a good barrel of apples, for instance, I show him some of those small ones which I can sell for $2.50 a barrel. If he says he wants a fancy, bang-up article, I ask him if he means business, and show him that handsome fruit over there that I'm getting $3.50 for. There's just as much 'chaw' in the $2.50 barrel as in the other; but when it comes to settin' 'em on the table before company, they're no good."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

THE JANUARY MAGAZINES.

THE CENTURY.

The January Century presents a (literally) crowded table of contents, both the body and the departments showing a wide range of topics.

Chief among them, in timeliness, is the status of the negro at the South, which Mr. George W. Cable treats with much plainness of speech and much suggestiveness in a paper entitled "The Freedman's Case in Equity," which is likely to attract attention and give rise to discussion North and South. The same theme is touched upon, less directly, in an editorial article, "A Grave Responsibility," and in an "Open Letter" from "A Southern Democrat." Another subject of wide interest is treated helpfully by Washington Gladden, under the head of "Christianity and Popular Amusements," the writer supplementing his own suggestions with an account and commendation of an experiment on the part of the Cleveland Educational Bureau to supply wholesome entertainment to workingmen. Other practical topics briefly handled are "The Trouble with the Stage," "The Degredation of Politics," "Co-operative Studies," "Political Work for Young Men," "The Recent Legal Tender Decision," "Women's Clubs," "The Newspaper and the Organ."

The fiction consists of a sketch by Mark Twain, "Jim's Investments, and King Solterman," illustrated by Kemble; "Orpiment & Gamboge," a one-part tale of studio life by "Joaquin Miller;" the second third of Miss Lisch Scheffel's "Knight of the Black Forest," with the Picture of one of her American girls; and the third part of Mr. Howell's new novel: "The Rise of Silas Lapham."

Of the papers on the Civil War there are two, both dealing with the Western gunboats; one by Captain James B. Eads, who built them; and the other by Rear-Admiral Walker, descriptive of their operations at Belmont, Fort Henry, Fort Donelson, Island No. 50, Fort Pillow and Memphis—covering, in short, the opening of the Lower Mississippi. Admiral Walker participated actively in all these engagements, and a number of the cuts are from his contemporaneous sketches. A large portrait of Admiral Foote is given, and smaller ones of Generals Pillsbury and Mackall, of the Confederate service. The February number will contain General Grant's paper on Shiloh, together with supplementary material describing the battle from the Confederate point of view.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR JANUARY.

This capital winter number [illegible] with a poem by Celia Thaxter entitled "The Child and the Year." Another timely article is the breezy and exciting ice-yachting story by E. Vinton Blake, which introduces us to our old friends, the Delzells; while John R. Coryell contributes a bright and homelike story, called "Baby Deb 'Pays' for the Christmas Goose," which tells how the feast was kept in a New England lighthouse.

"Historic Girls," a new companion series to "Historic Boys" by E. S. Brooks, is begun by the same author, in the same interesting style, with an account of the girlhood days of Queen Elizabeth, and the Christmas holidays of [illegible] three hundred years ago. J. T. Trowbridge continues his serial, because his hero, in spite of his [illegible] experience, has not yet cured himself of "His Own Fault;" "Davy and the Goblin" go through another installment of the most surprising and illogical adventures; and Edmund Alton tells a great many more instructive and entertaining things he learned when he was a boy-page.

Louisa M. Alcott and H. H. Boyesen bring their two very short serials to an end.

There is a spirited full-page picture of a very old-fashioned elephant with tusks covered the wrong way by J. B. Nugent, and a description of it by C. F. Holder.

A. B. Frost contributes a jolly series of pictures to the Rev. Charles R. Talbot's funny poem," "The School-master and the Truants." There is also a wholesome out-door poem by John Vance Cheney called "For Bass-wood Chaps," and a great deal besides of the same bright, healthful, and happy sort.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK

For January is the Prize Story number; containing "Mademoiselle de Maufrade, a pretty romance from the pen of Mary E. Bradley, who won the Two Hundred Dollar Prize in the December competition. The current issue of the Magazine is a remarkably attractive one. The publishers have presented every publisher subscriber and buyer of the January number with a beautiful imported Christmas card; and they offer as a premium for 1885, a fine engraving of "Sleeping Love." Besides the usual attractive features, the January number contains the closing chapters of a sensational novel "Under Gray Skies." "Drowning of the Weird," and "The Story of an Elopement," both reach, in this issue, an absorbing climax, and there are more clever short stories than usual. Godey's makes a better showing than ever this month. The lessons on Dressmaking and Cooking, together with the recipes, and full size cut paper patterns each month, are alone worth the price ($3,00) of this Magazine. Published by J. H. Haulenbeek & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Gath: I am glad by this reference to tell a story of Governor Cleveland, which may now be regarded as a characteristic of the man. He had written to John Kelley the famous "personal comfort" letter regarding Senator Grady, and turning to his private secretary, Daniel S. Lamont, he is said to have asked him:

"Lamont, would you, as a good politician, write that letter?"

"No, Governor," said Mr. Lamont after reading it, "I would not."

"Then I can't be a good politician," responded Cleveland, "for I am going to forward it just as it is." And he did.

As some workingmen were burning brush on the battlefield of Missionary Ridge recently, a shell suddenly blazed up and was blown into many pieces. Investigation showed that three shells had been imbedded in it.

Austin Bros., the Auburn Boot Upside Down shoe and leather dealers, have failed, liabilities about $25,000. Several Auburn creditors are set down in various sums ranging from $2,900 to $500, amounting in all to $8,400, which is secured. The firm will be able to pay nearly 50 cents on the dollar.

Governor Cleveland will resign his present office January 6th. He will remain in Albany until shortly before the time of his inauguration as President.

Christmas Eve., was observed in this village at the U. B. Church, where a fine tree was neatly arranged, and attracted a great number from the town and surrounding country. The display of presents were numerous and varied and all seemed to enjoy themselves. Some of our townspeople went out of town to partake of the annual Christmas dinner with friends, among the number we mention Mr Carens and family who spent the day with friends at Stryker, O.

The Fort Wayne Sentinel says while digging a ditch at the headwaters of the St Mary's river, near the town of St. Marys, workmen unearthed a six-pound brass cannon, which is supposed to have been a part of the ordinance of General Mad Anthony Wayne's army at Fort Recovery and used in defeating the Indians in the battle of 1794.

"Lend me your ear a minute," remarked Mrs. Brown to her husband the other evening.

"Will you give it back to me?" he inquired with mock anxiety.

"Of course I will, you idiot! Do you suppose I want to [illegible]"

She got the ear.—New York Graphic.

The Waterloo "Press" has entirely disheartened and with commendable spirit announces that "After January 1st there will be sixteen states with republican governors."

Being Neighborly.

There are people who seem to base friendship on borrowing as long as you will lend to them. Neighbors of that stamp illustrate the impudence that demands without consideration, and the familiarity that breeds contempt. The following appears in the New York Mercantile Journal:

He was a small boy, with dirt on his nose and a faded straw hat on his head, and feet so long unwashed that it was hard to tell where his toe-nails were located. He walked boldly up the steps, pulled the bell, and, when the lady came to the door, he said:

"Say, can you lend me your telephone for a few minutes?"

"Why, I can't," she gasped out.

"We'll bring it back in half an hour."

"But I can't lend it, child. You don't seem to know what a telephone is. Who are you?"

"We live around the corner—just moved in, and we want to be neighborly. I tried to borrow your wheelbarrow and shovel, but your boy wouldn't lend 'em, and our hired girl has been over to borrow tea and sugar and couldn't get any. We kinder thought we might borrow your telephone or something, and ma would bring it back and get a chance to see your style and ask you to run in with your old clothes on."

Save Our Woodlands.

Upon the subject of denuding our woodland of its timber, there should be more legislation; there should be some reward given the owner for its protection. Like church property, it should be exempt from taxation. The odious law of allowing road supervisors to cut the nearest timber with which to construct corduroy bridges should be repealed. A rigid stock law should be enforced; fields of growing crops should with safety remain open. A system of portable fences, only, should be all that is necessary for the inclosure of the farm. Herds of stock, while being driven along the highway to market, with some additional expense, could be well guarded. Woodland should be underbrushed and converted into woods-pasture; then, with its exemption from taxation, the inducement to clear it off would, in a measure, be removed. —Cincinnati Commercial.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Ex-clerk John W. Baxter returned home last week after a somewhat extended and prolonged visit in western Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota.

The 8th of January celebration, in honor of General Jackson's victory at New Orleans, was generally observed yesterday by democratic organizations throughout the country, and notably this year on a grander scale than ever before.

A young couple aged respectively 18 and 20 years broke through the ice while skating on Syracuse lake, one night last week, and were drowned.

Ex-speaker Samuel J. Randall has returned to Washington from his trip through the south, and expresses himself as highly pleased with the southern people, whom he pronounces the grandest people on earth.

A late issue of the Auburn Republican contained a chatty letter from the pen of lawyer W. L. Penfield, descriptive of that portion of the western country recently visited by him. We understand that both Mr. Penfield and Mr. Baxter seriously contemplate locating in the west next fall, but just what points have been chosen for their future homes we are unable to say.

Judge Asa Norton, father of the editor of the Elkhart Sentinel, an old time and prominent democrat of Elkhart county, did at Goshen last week aged 82 years.

Quite a number of our exchanges sent out attractive holiday supplements.

According to programme, as advertised by the Adventists, the world should have come to an end on the 6th. For some unexplained reason the predictions of our white-robed brethren failed to materialize.

Phillip Gushwa, a pioneer settler of the county living two miles north of this village, died on Dec. 16th at the age of 82 years.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the inauguration of President elect Cleveland. The inauguration committee estimates that there will be over 100,000 strangers in Washington on that day.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer is publishing a list of veteran democrats who voted for Jackson and says: "The "woods are full" of old democrats who voted for Jackson, and they are not ashamed to own it. Twenty-five years from now who will even acknowledge that he voted for R. B. Hayes?"

Hayes cannot stand very well when a joke like this from a Washington letter is copied into Republican papers:

A drummer recently visited Fremont and during his stay in town went to the village cemetery. Entering he saw the village sexton engaged in digging a grave. Walking up to him, he asked, "Where is Hayes buried?"

"What Hayes?"

"Why, Rutherford B. Hayes."

"But he is not buried. He is—"

Here the drummer broke in with, "Great Scott, are they keeping him yet?"

The ex-fraudulent occupier of the presidency is a fit butt for humor, or satire.

Three prisoners confined in the Angola jail conceived what they supposed a nice little plot to make a break for liberty not long since, but Sheriff Fast "dropped onto" the scheme and prevented their escape.

We fully agree with an esteemed contemporary (Rep.), which says that regardless of who is President or what party is in the majority in Congress, the duty of every good citizen is to stand by his country, and by every effort and to the comfort and prosperity of the people. A great deal can thus be done to avert any threatened disaster. If every man, instead of magnifying prospective "hard times," will put his shoulder to the wheel and quit grumbling, every portion of the land would feel the good results.

Those wishing to subscribe for a good family newspaper should consult the advertisement of the Detroit Free Press in another column, and then leave their orders at this office. We will furnish the Free Press and the Headlight, one year, for $1.90.

The Omaha Herald well says that it will take two or three years' honest, hard efforts on the part of President Cleveland and the Democracy to place the country again in a prosperous condition. The Republicans have left the Government in a miserable situation financially and commercially, but an honest administration of affairs will gradually bring about prosperity to every industry.

The Auburn papers say that C. A. O. McClellan, who is one of the leading capitalists of the county-seat, has been added to the Snyder Wagon Manufacturing Company, a fact that will give the works a boom in the spring when the Company propose to resume business on a large scale.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Speaking of Frank Hurd's proposed contest case in the Toledo district, the Chicago News says:

The recent report that Frank Hurd, of Ohio, will contest Jacob Romeis's seat in congress on the ground that Romeis is not legally a citizen of the United States is now denied. Mr. Hurd will contest the seat, but says it is on the ground that many workingmen were forced to vote for Romeis under threats from their employers that the workingmen would be discharged if they did not vote as they were directed. If Mr. Hurd can succeed in proving this it matters not so much whether he gets the seat in congress so long as he pursues those employers to the bitter end. That many men were driven to the polls like cattle last November and made to vote as their employers directed we have no doubt but it is a hard thing to prove, since the men are still afraid of the power of the employers. If Mr. Hurd can prove what he says he can, and then will follow the matter with prosecutions, he will be doing this country more good than he can do it as a congressman.

The Plain Dealer thinks that if Governor Cleveland will guillotine all Republicans who have been "offensively partisan" he will be doing just what his party expects him to do.

A package was received by Governor Cleveland the other day. When it was opened it was found to contain a handsomely-made boot of enormous size and thickness of sole. The foot was at least two feet in length. Upon the sole was the legend: "Kick the Rascals Out."

The information comes that some of the shirt manufacturers of New York will probably advance the wages of poor sewing women. Some heartless wretches had worked the price down to thirty cents per dozen. Think of it. Two cents and a half per shirt! Now talk of pauper foreign labor.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We notice that the Ohio Democratic press is booming editor Armstrong, of the Plain Dealer, for the Cleveland postoffice. That's a mighty strong endorsement, and while we're thinking about it, 'Billy' has a host of democratic admirers in this part of Hoosierdom who feel that he is entitled to the plum, and should get it by common consent.

It is worthy of special remark that Mr. Israel Hart, a Jew, has just been chosen Mayor of Leicester, England. The principal general interest of the fact lies in the circumstances that about the year 1230 Simon de Montefort, Earl of Leicester, granted a charter to the borough for the total exclusion of the Jews from Leicester, and they took refuge near the Jewry wall, a porton of which is still preserved.

Secretary Garwood's report to the stockholders of the N. E. I. Agricultural Association, at the annual meeting, which took place in Waterloo on the 31st ult., makes a flattering showing of the affairs of the association for the year just closed. From the report as published in the Press we learn that of entries total there were 2,221; receipts during the fair, $3,906.79; balance on hand Dec. 27, '83, $113.45. Loans, $400; total resources, $4,420.24. Total receipts, $4,420.24; total disbursements, $4,341.65, leaving a balance Dec. 31, 1884, of $78.59.

There are now 107 stockholders and 357 shares. Valuation of stock, $8,925.00 and valuation of grounds, $10,000.

The stockholders decided to commence the fair this year on Monday, 6th day of October, and continue until the following Friday.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. N. Chamberlain, President; Freeman Kelly, Vice-President; J. A. Shull, Secretary; J. C. Boyer, Treasurer.

I joins a Jubilee over Jewels and Gems,
Fine Watches of gold with winding stems;
Chains and Lockets and most lovely Rings,
Cups and vases and most beautiful things;
And prettiest articles for gifts to the bride,
Of Gold and Silver and Plated ware beside;
Spectacles and glasses to aid your vision,
To see all things with wonderful precision;
And skillfully repair all articles, you know,
And regulate your time, if too fast or too slow.

Richland Township Institute.

The second institute of Richland township, was held in the high school building in Corunna, Saturday, Dec 20th, with a full attendance. Promptly at 9:30, President Thomas called the house to order and work was commenced immediately.

The subject of Geography by Will Schaub's division called forth considerable argument, in what manner to teach Harper's Geography.

Charlie Casebeer then took up the subject of arithmetic. Our teachers had a good drill on the writing of decimals.

M. Baxter and Frank Stahl then gave a lesson in grammer, different uses of the pronoun, and methods of analysis etc., after which E. H. Lattman took up the subject of penmanship, position, movement, lines, materials, etc.

ADJOURNED FOR NOON

At one o'clock Miss Topping came before the institute with her reading lesson with her class of teachers and visitors, subject "Hingen on the Rhine" She was followed by Will Franks with an essay, subject "What shall we read."

E. S. Kandel then gave the teachers his methods of teaching history; bringing out considerable discussion. J. P. Kandel then gave a short lecture on hygiene for the teacher. He was followed by discussion; taken part in by all the teachers from Richland and some from Fairfield.

Trustee Franks then talked for some time on "Teachers duties during the holidays," Reading circle work, by Frank Stahl, president of the reading circle.

One important feature of the day was Will Schaub's "model school."

John Kirkpatrick is putting up machinery in the building formerly occupied as a blacksmith shop for the purpose of engaging in the manufacture of wooden pumps, handles, and woodwork of various kinds.

Mrs A. C. Grubbs at the depot lunch room, Waterloo, has quite a museum of birds and other pets. The collection of birds especially is the largest we have seen in this part of the state. There are 10 cages and one room of birds, consisting of canaries, mocking birds and other varieties common to our northern forests. In the bird room we noticed several blue jays, one of which has been taught to pronounce a sentence quite plainly. An attractive addition to this happy family of the feathered creation is a young Mexican parrot, presented to Mr Grubbs by Mrs O on Christmas day.

John Kirkpatrick has received a new kind of coal oil called the "electric light," which he says is the boss. Give it a trial.

Recently dynamiters tried to blow up London bridge, the explosion giving Londoners another terrible fright.

A Chicago Daily News reporter was assigned the duty of finding Sullivan, the election clerk at the 2d precinct of the 18th ward last November, one of the persons indicted by he grand jury for fradulent practices. The reporter traced Sullivan to Canada and there run him down. It was a good piece of detective work, but what a reporter don't know isn't worth knowing.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The old liberty bell of Philadelphia will form a conspicuous part of the New Orleans exposition.

The proposed Nicaragua treaty, which will probably come before the senate this week for ratification, provides for the building of the inter-oceanic canal across the territory of Nicaragua, the work to begin two years after exchange of the ratification of treaty.

A fire at Auburn Monday night destroyed a row of wooden buildings situated on the west side of north Main street. The buildings were occupied as a tin shop, millinery store, grocery and dwellings, and a part of their contents were also burned and more or less damaged.

The editor of the Louisville Courier Journal after a number of energetic experiences, gives the following bit of scientific knowledge: "The vacuum most abhorred by nature is that which occurs between a coat tail and an icy sidewalk."

Governor Cleveland is a man of few words but what he says amounts to something. His last message to the New York Legislature, tendering his resignation, contained just two lines of nonpareil type.

We rise to explain that owing to the arts of the taxidermist Jack's rooster will never awake to glory again, nevertheless the gay plumage of his anatomy bears evidence that he came of no common barnyard stock.

We learn from Mrs. Ed, Orr, of this place, who lately received a letter from Mrs. Eddy now residing at Lathrop, Missouri, that her husband, Samuel Eddy, is dead. Mr Eddy was a resident of Corunna for a number of years, and at one time carried on quite a flourishing boot and shoe business here. His age was probably about seventy years.

Last night some bum or bummers aboard of a through freight train that passed Corunna ahead of the "ping", fired several shots at the passenger depot, one of which passed through the wall at the extreme west end and dropped on the floor. Several ladies at the time were in waiting for the train. It is lucky that nobody was struck, which might have been the case had not the freight been running at a high rate of speed. Station master Carens picked up the ball which is of quite large calibre.

Myers & Barns are running the blacksmith shop formerly occupied by Charles Bacon.

Mr and Mrs. Lanning of Michigan are visiting with H. M. Bicknell and wife.

We are glad to hear that some of the men are going back to work in the shops.

The Skating Rink is about the only thing that shows life about the town this muddy week.

The stuff and nonsense by "Quillp" in the last Herald is a little too much. Give us a rest and soak your head.

The Main street end of the choir failed to get the requisite invitation to participate in the wedding festivities.

The show at the Rink Monday night was a fin ancial success, the receipts amounting to $61.00. The trouble is to find anybody that will confess to being there.

The old Baltimore & Ohio Carpenter Shops succumbed to the flames and are no more. The old citizens will remember that the building was one of the first put up in Garrett. Many of the employees lost all their tools at the fire.

It seems that the grand jury, for some reason best known to experts gifted with a genius for unraveling legal technicalities, failed to indict 'Doctor' Wm. Nusbaum for a murderous assault upon the writer. That being the case we cannot see that the brave and chivalrous 'Doctor' Wm. Nusbaum is under any personal restraint now and we may therefore anticipate that he will proceed to execute his fiery threat of "fixing" the editor at the most favorable opportunity. Although this kind of talk may be regarded as the idle vaunting of the bully and coward, still that kind of a cur needs muzzling.

N. W. Blackburn & Co., proprietors of the People's grocery recently opened in Frederick's red building on west Randolph steret, Garrett, are among our new advertisers in the current issue of the HEADLIGHT. Mr. Blackburn was for a long time the agent of the B. & O. at this place and only recently resigned for the purpose of engaging in the grocery business, in the details of which he is by no means a novice, as a glance over his stock will bear testimony.

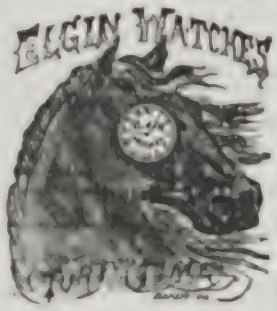

Mr. Lockey, the Garrett merchand, has just finished taking an account of stock and reports an average trade for the past year. For the accommodation of customers he has added a grocery department consisting of a full line of first-class goods.

Plain Dealer: United States Marshall Lot Wright is still trying to explain why he appointed a horde of thieves and thugs as deputy marshalls at Cincinnati. His memory is bad and he can't give his inquisitors much satisfaction. One of the first acts of justice that President Cleveland will have to perform will be to bounce Lot Wright.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The complaints out by some exhibitors at the New Orleans Exposition only serve to strengthen Manager Burke's determination to win success. In a recent interview touching this matter he said:

"I know that the exposition is to be a great success. The main buildings, the machinery extension, the saw mill buildings, the iron building, which has been so long getting its roof on and the wagon shop, which I hope will be floored in a few days, the horticultural hall, the Government building and the live stock department, as a combination of exhibits present a fullness and completeness which only wants a few days sunshine and the removal of a few difficulties to show a perfect condition. I know that in this work we have the full sympathy and aid of the people of the North, and of the whole country, and that we shall meet here in a work that is for the benefit of the Nation, and which will be crowned with success.

There is no truth in the reports circulated in the North that exhibits from that section are discriminated against. The management is doing all that is possible, particularly General Burke, to remove difficulties, and everybody is treated alike."

Under the heading of "Court Items," the Auburn Courier of Jan. 1st has the following

A great deal of business has been done during the week just past, but much of it not of general interest. The case of Sylvia Hall vs. Wabash Ry., is continued. Hyman vs. Cox, about that horse trade, judgment for defendant. The Noble county case of Weaver vs. Keesler before E. D. Hartman as judge, there was a judgment for plaintiff, but defendant appeals to Supreme Court. Barbara Myers vs. heirs of Jacob Myers for partition, partition was made as prayed for. Pepple against the DeKalb Farmers' Insurance Company, judgment for defendant. Jennie Morris was divorced from Frank Morris, Alice Black from Robert Black. The Livengood divorce case was taken under advisement. All the Bittinger cases are settled and dismissed. The case of Loveland vs. Steinbaum, took change of venue to Steuben county. Sarbra Miller, vs estate of Michael Miller, judgment for plaintiff for $600. John Metzger vs. Jacob Myers estate, the verdict was for the defendant.

About a Name.

Sir Bernard Burke, the well-known Irish herald, has frequently been asked, "What is the surname of the children of Queen Victoria?" and he says: "I feel persuaded that the royal house of Saxe-Coburg has no surname. When the adoption of surnames became general, the ancestors of that illustrious race were Kings, and needed no other designation than the Christian name added to the royal title." The Plantagenets and the Tudors were in quite other case, and the soubriquet of the former originated their surname.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, JAN. 30, 1885

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Boston Post. Ella Wheeler, Wilcox says she goes to sleep "draped in soft, luxurious gloom." The gloom is all right, Ella, but cold weather has come, and you had better guard against sickness by putting on two or three more glooms or a blanket.

Plain Dealer: Now if Mr. St. John tells what he knows and Mr. Kerens explains himself, and Mr. Legate calls somebody a liar, and Mr. Clarkson shows up, and Senator Plumb tells how it was, and Steve Elkins is moved to confess, we may know what low depths of rascality and corruption Mr. Blaine's managers descended into in the late campaign.

Plain Dealer: James Emmett, Esq., of Waverly, Ohio, is a rich and eccentric old gentleman and is well known throughout the state. At one time he represented his district in the Ohio Senate. He has a large sized cannon and every morning since Cleveland's election has had a salute of three guns fired and will continue saluting until the 4th of March. The guns cause some swearing amongst Pike county Republicans.

Boston Herald, Ind: The suggestion comes from the capital that Mr. Blaine be invited to deliver the oration at the dedication of the Washington monument. It is a preposterous idea. What a spectacle it would be to intrust the most conspicuous part in dedicating a monument to the man who could not tell a lie, to one who not only can tell a lie, but is self-convicted of having told several to save himself from the consequences of predatory speculations based upon his official influence! It would be monstrous.

Chicago News: Now Canada is in trouble again. Her newspapers tell us that in case of war between England and the United States, growing out of the Nicaragua affairs, Canada would be the fighting ground. This she does not like. Canada reminds us of the old maid who couldn't help shuddering whenever she thought of the possibility that some time she might be married and become a mother, and that her baby might grow to be a big boy and fall through an air-hole in the ice and be drowned.

Toledo Bee: We are proud of Vanderbilt, and will accept any criticism of him hereafter with due allowances. His treatment of the Grant family is princely. No citizen of these broad States could better afford the luxury of a $160,000 gift than he. Now put Grant on the retired list and station a wide awake soldier at his front gate to shoot the next man who wants the General to go into any sort of a speculation.

New York Star: Just why Gen. Grant declined the fund being raised for his relief is a mystery in some quarters. It need not be. Grant's pride was hurt. He found the rich men were too long in raising the money. It looked as though the performance was perfunctory, and Grant got angry and threw the whole business over. A very proper spirit he showed, too. The fact is his quondam friends, the millionaires, have no more use for the broken-down and bankrupt old soldier. Alas! that it should be so, but very few of us can get something for nothing in life. Society expects a quid pro quo, in some form or another, for every benefit the individual receives. Only poor men and fools ought to believe they are loved for themselves alone.

Philadelphia Record: Protected industries are like hot-house plants. They grow rapidly in the sheltering confines of the home market. But when the time comes that the home market is no longer sufficient, and they must make their way in the world, they droop and die from exposure. The German government has coddled and and wet-nursed its beet-sugar industry ito a condition of premature overproduction, going even to the extent of paying bounty on exports. But all will not do; the prices of sugar have gone so low that investors in beet-farming and sugar-refining find themselves bankrupt and are quitting the business in despair. Protection does not protect.

The Rudimentary In Clothing.

Let us now turn a critical eye upon the male costume. One of the most obvious things about a man's everyday dress is its ugliness. I say his everyday costume, because, when on pleasure he is bent, he may wear pretty much what he likes; and, as a matter of fact, when footballing, boating, bicycling, cricketing, walking, or otherwise enjoying himself, he does adopt a dress which is both sensible and picturesque. It is only when he wishes to make an impression, when he is on business, or paying a call, or going to worship, or performing some other conventionality, that he considers it absolutely necessary to be particularly inartistic and uncomfortable. Our Sunday best, our go-to-meeting clothes, are those most open to ridicule, unless it may be our evening dress. Contemplate for a moment a man on his way to worship. He is a walking illustration of the doctrine of evolution. Were his hat, his coat, or his trousers created? No, they were evolved. His hat—his tophat—his chimney-top, his stove-pipe—is but the carcass upon which his ancestors were wont to display ribbons and knots, and other gauds. In itself it is both ugly and uncomfortable. In winter it proves a vast roof upon which rain and snow may collect in order to be better discharged upon the shrinking form beneath, or otherwise it has to be protected by an expensive umbrella. We first buy an expensive hat to protect a too often worthless head, and then we buy an umbrella to protect the hat. In summer it becomes less a roof than an oven, in which the head is slowly baked. Whether off or on, it is an encumbrance. When off, the question is what to do with it; when on, the question is how to do without it. And yet there is nothing so absolutely a symbol of civilization as the top-hat—a fact which furnishes some food for reflection to the philosopher.

The coat has several of what, I believe, are called "rudimentary organs." Just as in the human skeleton, the few useless end bones of the spine are held by science to prove that man once had a tail, so the buttons at the back of a man's coat have their tale. Few people know why they invariably appear. I once asked a fashionable tailor what was their use. He replied, "To mark the waist." They are often put too low down to serve this purpose; but why should a man want his waist marking? And if he wants it marking in one coat, why not in another? As a matter of fact, the only reason for the existence of these two buttons is that they are a survival from the time when men buttoned back the long flaps of their coats in order to walk more freely. We have no flaps now; then why keep the buttons? Another rudimentary organ may be found at the end of the sleeve. There is always a cuff marked, generally by a double row of stitches, which perform no useful service, unless it be to remind us that our grandfathers had facings to their sleeves, and that those little buttons at the end were of real use when the sleeve was tight at the wrist.—West End Gazette.

Wanted Him to Take More Exercise.

Scene: Office of a pompous doctor who knows it all. Enter a tired man, who drops into a seat, and says that he wants treatment. The Doctor puts on his eye glasses, looks at his tongue, feels of his pulse, sounds his chest, and then draws up to his full height, and says: "Same old story, my friend. Men can't live without fresh air. No use trying it. I could make myself a corpse, like you are doing by degrees, if I sat down in my office and didn't stir. You must have fresh air; you must take long walks, and brace up by staying outdoors. Now, I could make a drug store of you, and you would think I was a smart man, but my advice to you is to walk, walk, walk."

Patient—"But Doctor——"

Doctor—"That's right. Argue the question. That's my reward. Of course you know all about my business. Now, will you take my advice? Take long walks every day, several times a day, and get your blood in circulation."

Patient—"I do walk, Doctor. I——"

Doctor—"Of course you do walk. I know that; but walk more. Walk ten times as much as you do now. That will cure you."

Patent—"But my business——"

Doctor—"Of course, your business prevents it. Change your business, so that you will have to walk more. What is your business?"

Patient—"I am a letter-carrier."

Doctor (paralyzed)—"My friend, permit me to once more examine your tongue."—New York Sun.

The death of Captain W. Folger, only son of the late Secretary of the Treasury, of consumption, occurred on the 11th at Geneva, N. Y., at the age of forty years.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The shipments of oranges from Florida during the past year, according to the statement of a New York dealer, amounted to 800,000 boxes and bids fair to exceed a million boxes this year.

The impression seems to prevail among Washington officials that there will be a general 'walking of the plank' after the 4th of March.

The idle mills are being started up and a general revival of business the early part of the New Year are signs of prosperous times. The election of a democratic President didn't have the disastrous effect upon the business interests of the country predicted by republican politicians.

On the 12th three governors were inaugurated, as follows: At Indianapolis, Ind., Isaac P. Gray, (democrat) Springheld, Ills., Oglesby, (republican) and at Jefferson City, Mo., Marmaduke, (democrat). Twenty-three states now have democratic governors and fifteen states republican governors.

Governor Hill, in his message to the New York Legislature, says that during the past year under Governor Cleveland's administration "not an official of the state of New York has been guilty of any defalcation or malconduct in office during the past year." This shows what sort of an administration may be expected from President Cleveland.

The inaugural committee have our thanks for the courtesy of an invitation to attend the inaugural ceremonies of Governor Issac P. Gray and Lieut. Gov. Mahlon D. Manson, which took place at English's Opera House, Indianapolis, on the 12th.

W. H. Vanderbilt bid in General Grant's relics and personal effects in the sale under the mortgage which pledged them for a loan of $150,000 made by Mr. Vanderbilt to Grant. Having done so he offers to return them to Mrs Grant with the understanding that at the General's death they are to go to the government. Both General and Mrs. Grant refuse to accept anything except the relics and these only with the understanding that they are to go to the government upon the General's death.

The speech of Senator Payne at the Columbus Jackson banquet, on the 8th, will attract particular interest as probably outlining Mr. Cleveland's administration. Senator Payne spoke from the following propositions, being the leading features outlined at the Chicago convention: 1. Retrenchment of government expenditures and a corresponding reduction of taxation. 2. A just and fair revision of the tariff. 3. A genuine and radical reform of the civil service. 4. A restoration of fraternal relations between all the citizens of the Republic and the final subsidence of sectional hate. 5. A liberal but carefully guarded system of pensions for the Union disabled soldiers of the civil war. 6. The resuscitation of a navy and a mercantile marine. 7. Trade and commerce with all the people of the American continent either by legislation or reciprocity treaties.

What Paul Said.

A Virginia preacher, who bought his butter from his brother Paul, sent for a fresh supply for his Sunday dinner, and was in the midst of his sermon when his negro servant returned and took his seat in the church. The preacher had eloquently related what Matthew, Mark, Luke and John had said in relation to the subject matter of his text, and he then asked in thundering tones: "And what does Paul say?" The negro, thinking the question addressed to him, replied, in the hearing of the whole congregation: "Mars Paul says as how you can't get any more butter till you've paid for dat you got last week."

American Beer Glasses Abroad.

It may seem surprising to our readers that 10 per cent. of the beer glasses used in Berlin are imported from this country, mostly from Wheeling, W. Va. Many of the other glasses are "imitation American," and come from Schlesia, the rest from the Rhein. About one-third of the whole number passes through the hands of a single house in Berlin.—Scientific American.

DEATH OF COLFAX.

Hon Schuyler Colfax, one of Indiana's most gifted orators and statesmen, died very suddenly at Mankato, Minn., at about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Colfax was in the lecture field and had left his home in South Bend Monday for the purpose of lecturing in Minnesota. Arriving at Mankato over the Milwaukee road he walked a distance of three-fourths of a mile to the Opera depot with the thermometer at 30 degrees below zero. He died within five minutes after reaching the depot, the direct cause of which is supposed to be the extreme cold and the exertion of the walk from one depot to the other causing a stoppage of the flow of the blood to the heart. His remains were taken charge of by the Odd Fellows and escorted to his distressed family at South Bend. His wife usually accompanied him on his lecture tours, but on his last trip she did not, and he died in a public place and among entire strangers. He appears to have had a premonition of his death for last Saturday, while in the South Bend Tribune office, he remarked that he had appointed his executor, for "I am liable to drop dead any moment."

Hon Schuyler Colfax was a man of national reputation and character and his history is very familiar to the public. He was born in the city of New York, March 23, 1823, and nearly reached his sixty-second birthday. He came to Indiana in 1836, during all of the following years he made South Bend his home. He studied law, became editor of the St. Joseph Valley Register in 1845, at which time it was a Whig paper, and in 1850 he was the Whig candidate for congress but was defeated. Subsequently he arose to political distinction and was elected to Congress six times, of which body he was made Speaker at three different sessions. In May, 1868, he was nominated by the Republicans for Vice-President on the ticket with Gen. Grant and was elected. He was a candidate a second time for Vice-President, before the nominating convention but was defeated for the place by Henry Wilson. Mr. Colfax became implicated in the Credit Mobilier job and then retired to private life. He prepared his famous lecture "The Martyred President," which he has delivered in many places. Mr. Colfax was a good citizen, a scholar and statesman, and South Bend will deeply feel the loss it has sustained by his death.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The remains of Hon Schuyler Colfax, who died suddenly at Mankato, Minn., arrived at South Bend, Ind., on the evening of the 14th and were escorted to his late residence by numerous sorrowing friends.

A contract has been made by a Rochester (N. Y.) patent medicine firm with a glass company in Philadelphia for 1,200,000 bottles. This is the largest contract ever known.

The message of Governor Porter on the 9th to the Indiana Legislature stated that the debt was $4,876,-000. He recommended repealing the foreign debt of $650,000, and announced that the school fund amounted to $9,337,328. Number of children in schools 501,142.

An exchange says that a cow out in Oregon was recently killed that had in its stomach a $20 gold piece and a lot of diamonds. The paper pathetically adds that "no trace of the remainder of the cow or could be found."

The Kendallville Standard of the 9th says: Judge McBride, in instructing the Grand Jury this week gave positive instructions to investigate all cases of betting at elections, and present bills against all where there is evidence to justify. A gentleman of this city, who is generally well informed on all that is going on, was summoned before the [illegible]. If the lightning does get to playing around there somebody may get hurt.

Kendallville News: The following is the condition of our State Treasury by John J. Cooper on Nov. 1, 1884: "General fund $26,091.07; school revenue fund, $167,099.08; college fund principal $6,-666.64; college fund interest, $4,796.55; new state House fund, $164,989.74; unclaimed estate fund, $18,908.79; escheated estate fund, $4,378.96; permanent endowment fund Indiana university, $22,026.-42; State sinking fund, $4,217.22, sales of land under the act of 1880, $3,191.56; swamp land fund, $27,636.25; excess bids sinking fund, $2,098.52; total $431,262."

Noble county, this state, has a young man aged 20 years, of medium height, who weighs 600 pounds. He is unable to move from his chair or bed without the assistance of at least two strong men. During the past few weeks the fat has grown so that it is difficult for him to breathe, and his case is considered hopeless.

Some 200 Poles, discharged employees, and some whose wages had been reduced, attacked the Oliver Plow Works at South Bend, on Monday last and took possession of part of the works destroying several thousand dollars worth of material and seriously injuring several employes. The veteran Home Guards of the city and of Elkhart were called out and drove them out, and arrested fifteen of the rioters. No further rioting has occurred, though at last report the military were on duty and the Poles making violent threats. The Olivers did not care to run their shop this winter, having enough stock on hand, but out of consideration of the demand of labor, reduced wages 12½ per cent and continued work.

Fort Wayne also is the scene of another labor trouble this week. The employes on the freight trains of the P. Ft. W. & C. road, dissatisfied because that road adopted the plan of double engines to freight trains, thus drawing longer trains and reducing employes somewhat, took possession of the freight depot at Fort Wayne, on Tuesday, and have since prevented the departure of any trains. There has been no violence used there yet on either side.

THE FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK for February is one of the prettiest Valentines which the month has brought us. The opening illustration, a handsome steel plate, has for its subject a very cute little couple, consisting of a chubby boy, in a characteristic pose, and a little colored girl, who is looking over his cold shoulder, "making eyes at him," and asking "Will you be my Valentine?" Besides the usual presidential portrait, there is a large number of handsome cuts illustrating fashions and fancy work. There are some unusually good stories this month besides the interesting series, "Under the Gray Skies," and "Breeding of the Weird," the last of which is drawing to a close. "Majorie's Knight," and "The Professor," are both good stories, and there is some commendable work in the shape of shorter sketches.

The girl stood on the roller skates,
But then she could not go;
She was afraid to attempt the fates
Because she wobbled so.
She called aloud, "Say! Chawley, say!
Do come; help me along."
But Chawley went the other way
Because his legs went wrong;
There came a crash—a thunder sound;
The girl, oh, where was she?
Ask of the giddy youth around,
Who viewed her hosiery.

—Exchange.

The Lake Shore pay-car made its monthly visit along this line last Wednesday.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees was unanimously nominated in caucus by the Legislature to succeed himself in the United States Senate. This is as it should be. A resolution was passed recommending Hon. Jos. E. McDonald for a position in President Cleveland's cabinet.

J. W. Butler, the stock buyer, made several shipments of stock during the past two weeks consisting mostly of sheep. Mr. Butler informs us that he has shipped during the fall and up to the present week, 8,900 sheep and 200 cattle all of which, with the exception of 400 cattle, were shipped from Corunna, being the largest shipments of sheep of any other station on the Air Line.

During the late cold snap, in this part of the country the thermometer indicated 18 to 21 degrees below. This nearly reaches the record of last winter when at one time the mercury dropped to 26.

In common with our neighboring towns the rink craze has broke out in Corunna, and now some 'capitalist' proposes to build a rink over the bridge which will be stocked and run by a business firm over there for all that is in it.

Oliver Bros. & Phillips and the Oliver & Roberts Wire Co., Pittsburg, suspended Jan 15th, liabilities at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The Plain Dealer says, "Harry Oliver gave $50,000, in 1880, to carry that state for Garfield, Arthur and "prosperity," and suggests that "the Republican National Committee ought to get up a purse for him and refund the money."

Dr. F. Snyder took a trip to Grand Rapids, Mich., Thursday, week before last. He reports everything lively in the lumber and salt country.

J. M. Johnson, of Kendallville, opened a roller skating rink at the band hall last week. Being something of a novelty here, every little "tad" in the town has become a patron of the rink, while many older ones bold enough to make the venture on wheels, have joined the procession. From present appearances the proprietor bids fair to make a financial success of the business. He will remain about two weeks.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The South Infirmary of the Eastern Illinois Hospital for the Insane, located at Kankakee, burned on the morning of the 18th. The fire originated in the furnace room and had secured strong headway before it was discovered. The woodwork of the building being of Southern pine, it burned very rapidly. The building was occupied by forty-five patients, six attendants and one night watchman. Seventeen of the patients are missing, and thirteen bodies have been recovered. They are burned beyond recognition. All of the patients were infirm and incurable. The bedridden ones were rescued first, and those who were able to help themselves did not realize the danger, and they were the ones who perished. The attendants lost all their effects, and many narrowly escaped with their lives, one of them having to tie bedclothes together to escape. There were no facilities for putting out the fire, the state not having made any appropriation. The building was a new one, and cost about $70,000. It is a total wreck.

An adventurous 300-pound hog at Rosco, Ills., was accidentally buried under a straw-stack last October. The animal was discovered last week, and found to weigh only twenty-five pounds, but still alive.

Delaware, Ills., has a sensation. A Jersey cow in that place has twin calves, one a perfect Jersey and the other a fine specimen of the Durham breed.

Cattle and sheep in the Indian Territory have perished in large numbers from cold.

While playing doctor a Michigan boy administered a dose that killed his younger brother. When boys play doctor they should be careful not to do all that real doctors do.

The widow of Webb, the famous swimmer, who perished at Niagara, has kindly received the funds that were raised in England for her relief. The amount is about $3,500. Mrs. Webb makes her home at Niagara, and is one of its celebrities.

Two deaths were reported on the 21st in St. Louis from Asiatic cholera.

The rise in the Ohio river at Cincinnati is causing much destitution among the poverty-stricken people who reside in the Millcreek bottoms.

Seven schooners engaged in illegal oyster-dredging have been captured, with their crews, sixty-eight men in all. One of the schooners was brought to by a shot from the pursuing steamer Chesapeake.

By a unanimous vote on the 21st, the lower house of the Dakota legislature passed the Williams bill memorializing congress for a division of the territory and the admission of the south half to the union.

The Hon. Fitzhugh Ball, a descendant of the family to which Martha Washington belonged, died at Glendale, O., on the 20th, aged 76 years. He was a law partner of Salmon P. Chase when the latter was called to Lincoln's cabinet.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Under the caption of "A Deserved Appointment," the Albion Era contains the following:

"A week ago we saw a letter written by Gov. Porter to Judge McBride, tendering him the appointment of aid-de-camp on the staff of Gen. Sheridan, chief marshal of the day, on the occasion of the ceremonies attending the dedication of the Washington monument, at Washington, D. C., on the 23d of Feb'ry next. Judge McBride, who is Lieutenant Col. of one of the Indiana Militia regiments, has accepted the appointment. During the war, while a private soldier, the regiment to which he belonged, was camped for a long time at the foot of the monument, then but a little more than a hundred feet high. • In regard to this appointment the Indianapolis Journal says:

Upon the request of General Sheridan, that the Governor appoint an aid-de-camp to represent Indiana on the staff of the marshal of the day, on the occasion of the dedication of the Washington monument, on the 21st of February, Governor Porter appointed Col. R. W. McBride, of Waterloo, DeKalb county, aid-de-camp.

The Fort Wayne Journal, in referring to this appointment, adds that "the judge's wonderful signature, which looks like a handful of fish hooks, will be inscribed on the records of the occasion."

Postmaster-General Hatton has sent to the chairman of the house committee on postoffices and post-roads, the draft of a bill providing for a reduction of postage on second class matter, or newspapers, mailed by publishers, from 2 cents to 1 cent per pound. It is provided in the draft of the bill that this rate shall not apply to the circulation of sample copies generally, although a publisher may, twice a year, circulate sample copies not to exceed in number the actual circulation of his paper at the date of writing.

Governor Gray closed his inaugural address with the following eloquent tribute to Indiana:

"In all things necessary to constitute a State, she stands among the brightest in the grand galaxy of States that comprise our Federal Union. Occupying territory from the broad lakes of the north to the great natural thoroughfares of water on the south, and intermediate in geographical position east and west, she will forever be within the pathway of commerce and travel between the oceans. Her fertile soil, varied and salubrious climate, great natural advantages, munificent fund and system of common schools and universities of learning, her liberal and elaborate system of benevolent, charitable and reformitory institutions, all keeping pace with the progress and demands of the age, offer inducements and invite the capital, enterprise and skill of other lands, and afford an asylum for the oppressed from abroad. Then let it be our highest ambition to further promote the prosperity and renown of the State, supporting unswervingly the Union and its constitution, the wisest and best instrument for the government of man ever yet devised, demanding unflinchingly the constitutional rights and liberties of all citizens without regard to race or color; cultivating good will among the people of every section of our common country, so that we may be one people in feeling as well as in name, moving on harmoniously together to that destiny under God's providence awaiting us in the future—the grandest and mightiest Republic of free men and women upon which the sun of God has shone."

JONAS ENGEL,

West Side Main St., Kendallville.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Here is a ditty that can be hummed by many a republican chair-holder between this time and next Christmas. Air, "Yankee Doodle:

"My time has come and I must take
The first job that comes handy,
My cushioned chair will soon be filled
By a democratic dandy

It breaks my heart to leave this snap
Of leisure hours and candy,
And let the cake be scooped in by
That Democratic dandy."

The Kendallville Times is publishing the delinquent tax list of the city, and like the general make up of that spicy sheet the list shows taste and neatness in typographic composition.

Hon. L. D. Britton and wife returned home last week from a visit to their old home at Millersburg, Holmes County, Ohio.

In Gov. Gray's inaugural address is found the following beautiful thought:

"The political struggle, State and National, through which we have recently passed, stirred the ocean of our politics as a mighty storm, and like natures provision for purifying her great bodies of water by agitation of the tempest, it is hoped will eliminate the impure elements from our political sea, purify the body politic, and record in the history of our government once more the commencement of an era of retrenchment and reform."

Dr. Fairfield Snyder reports the following sick persons on his village list: Grandma Orr, an aged lady and quite feeble, lung complaint. Mrs. Deitrich has been quite low with pneumonia. Mrs. Rev. Ramsey, erysipelas, has been quite sick but is getting better. A little boy of Frank Beck and the little girl of Henry Getts, the two latter not serious.

The Chicago News speaking of the late troubles at South Bend sounds the following note of warning: The proceedings of the riotous Poles and Hungarians at South Bend furnish an instructive comment upon the beauty of cheap labor. These ignorant savages were undoubtedly brought into that quiet little town because they would work for a few cents a day less than decent American workmen with families to bring up. If property ever comes to grief in this country, either through revolution, ill-judged and ignorant legislation, or at the hands of a mob, it will be through the operation of cheap foreign labor. Capitalists should make a note of this.

Frank Broach, a brother of Mrs. George Becker, died at Kendallville one day week before last, of consumption, brought on by overwork in a Western railroad office.

The acreage of wheat sown last fall was twenty-five per cent. less than the year previous. The unusual cold weather has had a disastrous effect on that sown, and the indications are for a short wheat crop next year with higher prices.

The Noble circuit court rung down the curtain on the January term Thursday last, nearly two weeks ahead of calendar time, the Grand Jury returning 91 indictments, and it wasn't a very good term for the indicting business in Noble county, either. The Waterloo Press says: "There is either a less amount of litigation, or else Judge McBride is a success in clearing the docket." The last sentence solves the conundrum propounded by our Waterloo contemporary.

Following is the engineer's description of the Chicago Fast Mail, which we find recorded in the Toledo Post: "Have you ever seen that train of white cars that makes the fast mail from Chicago?" said the engineer, as he munched a sandwiched lunch at the resting place. "No, Well, its slicker than a square yard of lightning, and it goes full pitch out of Chicago every morning at 3 o'clock; in my opinion its about the fastest thing in this country. Well, one of the mail clerks invited his wife down to see the train start; the conductor shouted "all aboard," and the clerk leaned over to kiss his wife, who was standing on the platform, and bless me if he didn't kiss a cow out at Riverside. Now that's what I call fast railroading."

Gen. Wm. H. Gibson, the famous Ohio orator, delivered his popular lecture, "Along the Federal Lines," at Auburn on Thursday evening, 15th. The Auburn press speak highly of the lecture but apologize for the lack of patrons.

The Chicago News says: An insufficient legislative appropriation appears to have been one of the causes of the terrible holocaust at Kankakee. If the legislature had been less niggardly two years ago the fire of the 18th might never have occurred and the lives of the miserable victims to that conflagration might have been spared.

FRIDAY [illegible] NO 30 1885

[From the Garrett Edition]

M. J. M. Wm. H. Harrison of the B. & O. has transferred with headquarters at Newark, O.

Mrs. Mary A. Matthews, wife of Justice Stanley Matthews of the Supreme Court, died on the 22d.

The B. & O. sustained loss of $100,000 by the Baltimore fire.

It is all rich now a days so much so that our people take it stewed raw and fried. The morning paper says "there is some risk" in continuing a phrase of the sort, on a country school house. O, we unhesitatingly say it is awful bad.

The Treasury surplus has increased about $10,000,000 since the first of the month.

Miss Grace Hall entertained quilting party of her intimate acquaintances at the latter residence last Friday evening and an enjoyable time for all was participated.

The Liberty has started South from Independence Hall Platte on the 20th.

The strike of brakemen on the Pittsburg road has been broken and the men returned to their work on the conditions that none were to be discharged on account of the strike. Freight trains are moving over Fort Wayne yards.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutor were made the recipients of a very pleasant surprise party on the 13th, given by Mrs. [illegible] the eldest departure for their new home in Virginia. Many valuable presents were left to them by neighbors and friends of leaving as tokens of their esteem.

Destructive conflagrations are reported in southern Illinois. Several villages have been overwhelmed and many people have perished.

The Midwinter number of The [illegible] is the largest number of Centuries ever published, containing [illegible] such notable contributions as several articles on Scribner, the beginning of the Henry James entitled "The Bostonians," which interests the reader in a characteristic [illegible] are augmented of both sexes. ALSBAUGH, The Jeweler, Garrett, Indiana.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Hon. W. M. Evarts was elected United States Senator by the New York Legislature, over L. P. Morton, the capitalist, after a spirited contest. It was a fight between brains and cash in which the former scored a victory.

The dynamiters are "at it" again. On the 22d an explosion occurred in the House of Parliament, the report being heard for several streets distant. Great excitement prevails throughout London.

Senator Edmunds has introduced a bill in the senate, making the manufacture of dynamite in the United States a penal offense.

The Sherman-Davis controversy reminds the Cleveland Plain Dealer of the fable wherein the skunk challenged the lion to mortal combat. The lion replied "that if he should accept the challenge people would ever after know with whom he had been fighting."

Night operator Frank Fisher is off duty, having a month's leave, during which time he will explore the West and enjoy himself generally.

Dr. Mercer, John Buchanan and Frank McCullough purpose taking in the New Orleans Exposition, starting some time next month.

President-elect Cleveland will go to New York in February and remain the greater part of the month. Prominent democratic statesmen and politicians will be summoned to confer with him respecting the formation of his cabinet.

Captain J. M. Farrell, a widely known New Orleans detective, is dead at the age of fifty-nine.

At Mt. Washington on the 22d the thermometer registered fifty-one degrees below zero, the lowest point ever before reached at the Mount.

The racket in the Illinois Legislature over the election of a United States Senator is likely to be prolonged until doomsday, judging from the present outlook.

The Auburn Republican of the 21st records an attempt at suicide of an unknown man, apparently crazy or half frozen, who was found by a citizen lying on the track near the depot just as the northbound passenger train pulled in. The citizen, assisted by a brakeman of a freight train, yanked the would-be suicide off the track and held him until the train passed.

We are indebted to station master J. M. Carens for the following exhibit of the business done at Corunna station during the past year, closing Dec. 31st, 1884:

Number of pounds forwarded during the year, 8,571,822, netting a revenue of $7,635.24. Number of pounds received during the year, 1,531,752, netting a revenue of $2,252.59. Sales of tickets including extra baggage during the year, $1,826.75, making the total business foot up for the year, 103,065,774 pounds, with a total revenue of $11,214.58.

To which is appended shipments of grain and by whom shipped, as follows:

Receipted for J. W. Helmer & Co., red wheat 3,162,330 pounds, white ditto, 29,660, oats, 285,630. E. G. Fried, red wheat, 2,659,070, white ditto, 50,870, oats, 201,900. E. Knauer, 54,610. Summary—Wheat, red, 5,876,010 pounds; wheat, white, 80,330 pounds; Oats, 437,530 pounds. Total receipts, 6,394,070 pounds.

At a meeting of the Island Park Assembly managers on the 20th, arrangements were perfected to re-open the Assembly next season with an attractive programme. The usual 4th of July exercises will take place, the opening proper commencing July 14th, and continue to the close, July 30th.

Dr. Strong and family, of Iowa, en route south, are visiting with their parents Mr and Mrs. Charles Imus.

The Merchants hotel, Toledo, (formerly the American) under the management of John Casebeer, late of the Crosby house, Defiance, O., is one of the leading hotels in the Corn City. Mr. C. formerly kept the Delaware house and B. & O. Dining hall, at Garrett. The "Colonel" has many friends in this part of "Injiany" who wish him an abundance of prosperity.

On the 21st burglars cracked the safe of Isaac Hershler, tobacconist and saloonist, at Butler, and got away with considerable boodle and other valuables.

Invitation cards have been issued for a social hop, under the auspices of the Corunna Cornet band, at the band hall on Wednesday evening, February 4th, 1885.

The HEADLIGHT returns thanks to Hon. W. G. Colerick for a copy of the Tenth Census, 1880, being The Statistics of the Population of the United States.

Hon. Samuel S. Shutt, of Spencerville, was in town not long since, looking after his real estate interests north of Corunna.

The slight advance in wheat and the excellent sleighing for hauling, have had a tendency to boom the market and for several days in the two weeks past our streets were lined with teams. To-day buyers are paying for wheat, 83c.; oats, 30c; corn, 40c.; hogs, (dressed) 5c.; butter, 12c.; eggs, 20c.

Republican Indian agents having evidently stolen the entire appropriation of $7,000 for the relief of the Piute Indians, seven thousand are reported starving on the reservation in Nevada

VOLUME VII. No. 131.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, FEB. 15, 1885.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

General Grant in the "Mid-Winter Century," says the troops on both sides in the battle of Shiloh "were Americans, and united they need not fear any foreign foe."

Indianapolis Sentinel: Chicago has indicted about three hundred of her election judges, but it is claimed in St. Louis that if she only "sets her foot down" she need "let no guilty man escape."

Chicago News: A Kansas City physician believes that hundreds of persons are buried alive in this country every year. We didn't suppose that it happened every year, but we know a good many of them are jerked away every four years. Counting postmasters, last year was a dreadful year for this sort of thing.

The Louisville Courier-Journal gets it down about right when saying that a democrat is one who believes in a strict construction of the Constitution; in the divorcement of church and state; in a sound currency, expressed in gold and silver, and paper convertible into gold on demand; in a clear division of the powers of Government, State and National; in taxation exclusively for public purposes, and, as to imports laid in a low scale of duties; and opposed to subsidies, bounties, sumptuary laws, excessive accumulations and expenditures, preferring a simple and frugal to a splendid Government.

St. Louis Republican: Another infant industry needs protection. Denmark is shipping great quantities of eggs to this country and selling them in the New York market at from 16 to 22 cents per dozen. The eggs are said to be fresh and eatable as the product of the native hen. An exchange suggests that the egg product of the United States is worth $80,000,000 a year at Danish prices, and that it will not do to let so large an industry be ruined. People in St. Louis who have been uping eggs sparingly all winter because of the high prices will have their own ideas on the subject. There is a prevailing impression that a Missouri hen brings her owner more revenue than a dairyman's cow and pump combined.

Indianapolis Sentinel: The historian of fifty years hence will have a nice nut to crack when he comes to write up the battle of Shiloh. We have now conflicting narratives from a quartet of general officers, with all the back counties yet to hear from.

Boston Advertiser: Five weeks more remain to this congress to enact legislation confirming the Mexican treaty, pass the bankruptcy bill, the Blair education bill, the congressional library bill, a bill suspending the coinage of silver dollars, the Edmunds bill against dynamite criminals, the anti-polygamy bill, the bill regulating payments by the Pacific railroads, the presidential-succession bill, and many more measures of great importance that the public interests demand. The people ask for these; but they will get instead a few private pension bills, possibly the unnecessary Mexican pension bill, a dozen or more public building bills, the river and harbor bill perhaps, and a few more of similar grist, of which the Ends Galveston harbor appropriation may be an unsavory part.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: According to schedule just made public, there are 115,928 persons enrolled in the public employment of the United States. Of this number 76,655 are connected with the Postoffice Department, 50,008 as postmasters and the remainder as clerks or carriers. Of these postmasters, the President appoints but 2320, and the whole number appointed by the President is 3,920. The rest are made by heads of departments and executive subordinates. As it is a fair estimate that these officials were assessed on an average five dollars each for campaign purposes, realizing a fund of $579,640, it is easy to see where the campaign boodle of the republicans came from.

John C. Calhoun.

Mr. Calhoun spoke like a college professor demonstrating to his class. His position was stationary, and he used no gesticulation. His pale and hyd countenance indicated the cloister. His voice was silvery and attractive, but very earnest. His eyes indicated quick perception. Starting with the most plausible premises, he would carry you irresistibly along with more plausible reasoning until you would be puzzled to know how much back-track it was indispensably necessary for you to take to avoid conclusions which would make it difficult to tell the difference between your views and those of a South Carolina Secessionist. After having heard all the Senators speak, if a stranger should select the one, irrespective of doctrine, who came nearest a saint, he would select Mr. Calhoun, and such he is held to be through most of the South to this day. College professors in the South were his great admirers, and taught his doctrines to their students. Educated clergymen and all fashionable society there lost no opportunities of manifesting their admiration of him. "Have you seen Mr. Calhoun?" "Do you think of leaving without seeing Mr. Calhoun?" were questions invariably asked by Southern Congressmen of their constituents visiting Washington. And Mr. Calhoun's prestige was so worked up that Southern visitors, both gentlemen and ladies, were as much expected to call upon him as upon the President. At the time of his death he was gaining a strong foothold among the scholars of the North, who seemed incapable of resisting the seductive reasoning of his perceptive, comprehensive and analytic mind. Senator John P. Hale, of New Hampshire, once came to my seat and said: "I am going to astonish you. Mr. Calhoun has just brought me a letter, which he said he had just received from President Nathan Lord, of Dartmouth College, and asked me a great many questions about him and the college. He left me, asserting that President Lord was one of the ablest thinkers and profoundest reasoners in the country." At that time President Lord was not only the head of the college, but of the Congregational denomination in New England. With a bravery worthy of a better cause, he followed Mr. Calhoun's doctrines to their natural sequence, and he had to give up his position. No man ever exerted the influence upon this country that Mr. Calhoun did. All the calamities of the late war were the legitimate outgrowth of doctrines of which he was the father, and to which the sincerity of his devotion was manifested by his advocacy of them in his dying hour. — Reminiscences of John Wentworth.

Shattered Love.

"Give me the ring."

Lurline McCaffery stood in an oriel window with the sunlight beaming in warm, golden waves above her slight form, and at her right, his hand outstretched in eager expectancy, while a half imperious, half pleading look shot from his big brown eyes, was Marmaduke Short. The girl had been standing there nearly thirty seconds without speaking, the light streaming in upon the soft waves of hair, the fathomless eyes, and the calm sweet mouth. It was not a youthful face; the bloom and flush had faded long ago, but it was so grand and womanly, there was such an I-know-how-to-do-up-my-hair look upon it, that in comparison mere girlish prettiness lost immeasurably.

At this moment Pansy Perkins entered the room. She had twisted an azure-hued scarf around her shoulders, and her yellow hair fell about her like a cloud. Throwing a kiss to Lurline, whose silence she did not at all understand, Pansy flitted away to the piano at the other end of the room and began to lower rents in the vicinity. Snatches of the soft, murmurous music filled the air, and made the place seem strangely sad. The twilight was approaching, and as the dark shadows fell the music sobbed and surged through the room. Lurline listened intently, and finally she spoke:

"You really wish to break our engagement then?" she asked.

Marmaduke spoke no word, but the inclination of his head showed that the girl had not guessed amiss.

"And you will marry Pansy?"

Again the head was bowed, and the dimpled chin hit his shirt front.

"Then I give you the ring with pleasure," said the girl; "I could wish for no sweeter revenge."

"What do you mean?" asks the man, his face pallid with an undoubted fear.

"I mean," she says, her every word falling upon his tinted ear as fall the earth-clods upon a coffin, "that in addition to playing the piano she sometimes sings."—Chicago Tribune.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

According to late dispatches the loss of cattle and sheep in Texas was perfectly appalling, nearly thirty per cent. of cattle and sixty per cent. of sheep died.

Hon. Horatio Seymour says of President-elect Cleveland that he is "a clear, brainey man, conservative in his opinions, and likely to be found equal to any emergency."

Senator Bayard is a vigorous opponent of the Nicaraguan treaty. He maintains that it is contravention of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and the whole treaty making business should be left to the incoming administration.

Engineer Melville of the Jenette Arctic expedition wants to lead another exploring party to inhospital graves in the Arctic wastes. He thinks the route to the pole by the way of Franz Josef Land is practicable. He wants $50,000 for the expedition.

Senator Voorhees has been to see Governor Cleveland at Albany and announces that his interview with the President elect was "entirely satisfactory." He thinks the country will be agreeably surprised in the breadth of statesmanship of our new President. He is a man of convictions and courage and just such a man as the Democratic party needs at this time.

During 1885 there will be four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon. An annular eclipse of the sun on March 15th will be visible throughout the United States generally. A partial eclipse of the moon, March 30th, will be visible in the United States. A total eclipse of the sun, September 8th, invisible in the United States. A partial eclipse of the moon, September 23d and 24th, will be visible generally in the United States.

The situation, politically, in the Senate has been close, for years. The Democrats have had a majority of that body only once since the war. In the Forty-sixth Congress, from March 4th, 1879, to March 4th 1881, forty-two of the Senators were Democrats, to thirty-three Republicans and one Independent. In the next Congress the Democrats and Republicans were tied, each party having thirty-seven Senators and there was one readjuster, Mahone, who always voted with the Republicans, and one Independent, David Davis, who usually voted with the Democrats. In the present Congress, the Republicans have thirty-eight Senators, the Democrats thirty-six and the readjusters two.

THE BALL.

Action of the Inauguration Executive Committee Relative to Tickets.

The action of the Executive Committee of the Inauguration Ceremonies at Washington, in designating the Baltimore and Ohio ticket offices in the principal cities, East and West, as special depositories for the sale of Inauguration Ball tickets, cannot but prove of great advantage, as heretofore tickets could not be obtained for the ball until after arrival at the national capital. Everybody knows where the B. & O. offices are in the leading cities: 66 Clark st. in Chicago; 5 N. High st. in Columbus; 178 Walnut st. in Cincinnati; 136 S. Illinois st. in Indianapolis; 101 N. 4th st. in St. Louis; 152 W. Baltimore. Letters relative to the ball tickets addressed to the B. & O. ticket agent at any of the addresses given, or to ticket agent B. & O. at office Louisville, Wheeling, Zanesville, Newark, Sandusky, Cumberland or Frederick, will receive prompt attention. At the offices named, those who desire can purchase the ball tickets same time as they do their railroad tickets; while those who may want them as souvenirs do not have to send to Washington for them. Preparations for the inauguration ceremonies are being carried forward with the determination to make them memorable. The Baltimore & Ohio, as the only direct route from the West into Washington, has extended every facility to the executive and other committees in so shaping matters as to bring about complete success in every particular. The B. & O. has announced the lowest rates ever made for an inauguration, in most instances less than half-fare for the round trip, with a limit on the tickets of the most satisfactory length. By the B. & O.'s recently put on fast train schedule, its noted limited trains make the run through to Washington, from all points, from one to six hours quicker than any of the limited trains on other lines. Not a nickel extra is charged for the fast time, which is directly to the contrary of the rule followed by other lines with their limited trains, for upon them double fare is the only way one can travel, and must take sleeping cars through, whether wishing to do so or not. On the B. & O. one exercises the good old American custom of going as he pleases. Trains run through solid, no change of cars of any class, and pay only what is asked for—not a cent more, no matter what may be the custom on other lines. All these things are well worth considering before starting.

HOW TO GET IN,

and How to Get Out—Matters which will Repay Consideration.

There is going to be an enormous gathering of people at Washington next month, and while every provision is being made in advance to avoid confusion and insure the comfort of all, still "the gods help those who help themselves." To look out for number one is but the natural course a sensible man would follow. The railroad situation in Washington is easily to be understood. There are but two depots in the city. Into one will come an aggregation of travel from the South, the North, the East and the West—train after train, thousands upon thousands of people, until "packed like sardines in a box" would be but a feeble way to put it. Into the other depot will come the trains of the Baltimore and Ohio, that Company owning and using it exclusively for its own business—everything in the hands of its own officials, and details so arranged that there can be no mixing up or getting on or off trains at wrong times and wrong places. Indeed, it would not take much thought on the part of those who have had any experience whatever as to crowds to appreciate the advantage the B. & O. possesses in Washington. Then, too, there are the facilities the lines have in regard to track room and unrestricted means of getting trains directly into depots. For instance, the B. & O. is the only road into the city which can and does separate its passenger business so that trains from the West come into Washington on the tracks of one division and the trains from the East and North upon the tracks of another division.

The great importance of these facilities may be appreciated from the fact that all the trains that enter the National Capital, upon other lines than the B. & O., come together in a single depot, and the packing and jamming will be something terrific to behold, letting alone getting in and about them. The great number of trains from the Southern lines alone would completely fill a depot double the capacity of the one in question, and when to them are added those from other sections, the chances are that many passengers will have to walk into town or spend the day or night aboard in vain regrets that tickets were not bought by the B. & O.

Another item of no ordinary interest to Western people is that by any other line to Washington than the Baltimore and Ohio all trains from the West have to come together with trains from the East and North, and all use one South-bound track for forty-odd miles. That is to say, that no other line but the B. & O. has two different divisions into Washington, one for its trains from the West and the other for its trains from the North and East. All this may prove more or less confusing or perplexing to those who contemplate attending the Inauguration, and the best way to settle all doubts is to decide to go by the B. & O. and thus avoid all danger of going wrong.

The famous Dr. Helmbold, once the best advertised man in the country, has for some time past been an inmate of the Norristown Insane Asylum. He now claims to be of sound mind, and asks to be released.

Carbonic Acid as an Antiseptic.

Some instructive results regarding the preservative action of carbonic acid on meat have been obtained by Prof. Kolbe, of Leipsic. He hung pieces of beef, including fat and bone, in cylindrical tinned iron vessels, which were kept in a warm room of the laboratory, where the temperature at midday rose to 32° C. Each piece was hung from a cross bar; a plate for dropping liquid stood below; just over this was a tubular passage for entrance of carbonic acid; the cylindrical lid of the vessel entered an annular trough holding glycerine, and had a tubulure in the middle. When nearly all the air was supposed to be driven out through the latter tubulure by the entering gas, the plastic tubes connected to both tubulures were pinched with screws. After eight days in the vessel the beef was not distinguishable from fresh beef in aspect or taste after cooking, and the gravy was like that from fresh beef. After a fortnight the beef had become somewhat gray externally, and only a fine palate would distinguish the gravy from that of fresh meat. Sometimes beef and gravy had a weakly acid taste, which was easily remedied with a little carbonate of potash. After three weeks the beef was still of the same good quality, only softer than fresh beef and requiring less time to cook. It was quite free from bad smell even after from four to five weeks, but the cooked gravy then no longer tasted so good as fresh gravy. The experiment ceased at that point, and it is believed to prove that carbonic acid is an excellent means of keeping beef from putrefaction and maintaining its good taste for several weeks. It is noteworthy that mutton under like treatment began to smell badly after eight days; veal, too, could not be kept so long as beef. Fowls and game were not tried. Fish, lobsters, oysters and fruit could be kept only a short time.

What Is Pure Religion?

"De pure an' undefiled 'ligion," says the Rev. Plato Johnson, "is always to be foun' in a man's pocket. Dat is a curus place to look for 'ligion, but ef tain't there den tain't nowhere. De man dat can't put his hands on his 'ligion wen he puts on his hands his pocket-book ain't got none. When a man talks loud 'bout his ligion, dat is only purtense; but wen he shells out de hard cash he ain't foolin'—he means bizness."

O'Donovan Rossa, the great Irish dynamiter, was shot by a woman named Dudley, in New York, Monday afternoon, Feb. 2d, but was not seriously injured. The woman gave no reasons for the shooting, but she is supposed to have been rendered temporarily insane by the recent attempts with dynamite against England, of which country she is a native.

Merchant Tailoring.

KENDALLVILLE, INDIANA.

"ONLY ONE TREATMENT ON ALL DAYS, and THAT THE FAIREST."

THE ENCOURAGEMENT we received the past year from the best trade of this and adjoining counties for the superior qualities, style and make of our goods, convinces us that the trade requires a better class of clothing than formerly. Having that aim in mind, we have for the spring trade even improved on our styles, make and trimming, besides introducing such novelties as no other house can equal, and while it is our aim to introduce to the trade a superior class of goods, we also keep in mind that prices must be such as to meet the favor of all.

We are fresh to the field with the handsomest, complete and most attractive line of spring piece goods, consisting of the very latest importations for Suitings, Coatings and Pantings.

Employing none but skilled and proficient mechanics, we can guarantee better fitting garments than ever.

Spring Style Hats.

The Situation in the Soudan—Dead or Alive the British will have their Revenge for Gordon.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—General Wolsey telegraphs from Korti to the war office this afternoon that a courier arrived from the British camp near Metemmah who reports that the rebels at Metemmah have become defiant since hearing of the fall of Khartoum. The courier also says that an attack on Gubat may be looked for at any moment as the rebels expect reinforcements from Khartoum. Lord Wolsey states that he will remain quiet, pending further orders from the government.

The concensus of opinion in the ministry is in favor of a strong, active and vigorous policy. The ministry sanction any demand of Lord Wolseley which will aid in the defeat of the Mahdi and will secure the release of General Gordon, if alive, or wreak vengeance upon the Arabs, if slain. The telegraph line between London and Korti is entirely occupied with the dispatches between the cabinet and General Wolseley.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The announcement is confirmed that at the cabinet council to-day it was decided to give General Wolseley complete discretion as to the course to be pursued in the Soudan. He has been instructed to take all measures necessary to the successful completion of his campaign. The government will give him any assistance he may need by dispatching troops from Saukim to Berber. General Wolseley will make every effort possible to save General Gordon, if alive.

WOLSELEY'S MEN IN GOOD CONDITION.

General Wolseley sends the following dispatch: "Talbot's convoy reached Gubat safely. The enemy at Metemmeh is entirely active since January 28th. The rebel force here is estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000, of whom 250 are horsemen and 500 have rifles. Our men are in good health, and the wounded are doing well. The Kabbabish tribes are still carrying messages and supplies for us to Gakdul Wells. A messenger has been to ascertain the fate of General Gordon.

HAS GORDON BECOME A MUSSELMAN?

NEAR METEMMEH, Feb. 6.—Five natives present at the surrender of Khartoum declared that the rebels admitted the treachery of two pashas who had been formerly published by General Gordon. It is reported that the officers commanding the three steamers which remained at Khartoum took El Mahdi's troops to the main gate of the city, where they were admitted under darkness of the night. Two of the natives declare that General Gordon was killed. Others are equally positive that he took refuge in the fort with the faithful. There is no doubt whatever that the main portion of Khartoum is occupied by the rebels. Colonel Wortley saw them thronging the streets. Countless flags were flying and there were many signs of rejoicing. On the route down the river by the steamers several of our men narrowly escaped capture. At the sixth cataract they were compelled to parley with the enemy under pretense of surrender. A message has been received from El Mahdi stating that General Gordon had become a Musselman and that all the English officers had better follow his example. El Mahdi said he had no desire to fight the English, but unless they embraced the true faith he would not leave one in the Soudan.

ENGLAND WILL CONQUER THE REBELS.

Mr. West, British minister, in an interview was asked:

"What will England now do?"

"Do just what she set out to do; conquer the rebels in the Soudan."

"That will be done by reinforcements, will it not?"

"Oh, yes; General Wolseley will be reinforced at once, and he will proceed to carry out his mission."

Gloomy Outlook—Gordon Dead or in a Terrible Fix.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Dispatches from Korti today indicate a serious state of affairs at the British position near Metemneh. Lord Wolseley telegraphed the war office that a courier, just arrived from Gubat, reports that Colonel Boscower, commander of that place, is seriously ill, and Mahdi's forces are preparing to attack the British camp. The Arabs have several heavy guns which are being gradually placed in position to bear on the British camp. The other field pieces are being manoeuvered for the same purpose.

The natives report Mahdi has 30,000 men scattered between Berber, Shendy and Metemneh and the force at the latter place is daily receiving reinforcements.

GORDON REPORTED DEAD.

LONDON, Fee. 7.—On his way from Gubat to Khartoum, January 26th, Colonel Wilson was told by the natives along the Nile that Gordon had been fighting hard for fifteen days. January 27th the natives reported Gordon dead. On their return from Khartoum to Gubat, several natives reported to Wilson's party that Gordon and all captured troops who stood by him had been captured by El Mahdi's men and put to death.

GORDON IN A CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Later on during the return journey several Shagiyeh men came aboard Colonel Wilson's boat and declared it was the intention of their tribe to join Mahdi. These men said Gordon, Consul Nicot, fifty Greeks and some soldiers, when pressed to desperation, shut themselves up in the Catholic church, whither they had removed a quantity of ammunition and provisions.

AFFAIRS AT GUBAT.

Advices from Gubat, dated February 1, give gloomy statements about the condition of Stewart's little army there. The men have been placed on three quarters rations. These have been once supplemented with a dole of beans and fresh meat. The camels had plenty of forage. Shandy, on the opposite bank of the Nile, and Metemneh, three miles from Gubat are occasionally shelled by the steamer.

CLOSING THE NEW LAW COURTS BUILDINGS.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The government today received warning that a dynamite attack would be made upon the New Law Courts buildings. Orders were issued to close all the courts in the structure at 2 o'clock this afternoon, to clear the buildings and turn them over to an extra police patrol.

Italy Forging to the Front.

ROME, Feb. 7.—It is stated that the government is prepared to send 36,000 troops into the Soudan. All political parties express a warm sympathy with England and the strongest desire for a close alliance is evident. Italian statesmen see an opportunity for Italy now to assert for herself a position among the first powers of Europe.

Gordon's Death Certain.

LONDON, Feb. 11., 2 p. m.—Telegrams received from Wolseley fully confirm the reports of the killing of General Gordon, and the awful atrocities committed at Khartoum by the Mahdi's men.

Three Killed, Eight Wounded.

CRESTON, Iowa, Feb. 9.—A passenger train struck a broken rail on a bridge here yesterday and two coaches went down. Three passengers were killed and eight wounded.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A Washington correspondent, speaking of a reception in that city, says: "The ladies vied with each other in stripping for the occasion. There were a great many superb dresses, but the greater portion of the goods in most cases was on the floor, leaving the upper portion of the human form divine with scant enough covering. One gentleman said, 'I would like very much to speak to Mrs. G., but she has so few clothes on I'm ashamed to.'"

Lowenstein & Rothschild, of Waterloo, will open a merchant Tailoring department in connection with their store, on the 20th, with Mr. Peter Fisher the well known Waterloo tailor in charge. See advertisement.

We suppose the irrepressible ground hog put in an appearance on the 2d, that being ground hog day, and as he probably saw his shadow, according to traditionary custom we may expect six weeks of winter weather.

The reception tendered Hon. D. W. Voorhees at Indianapolis, on the announcement of his re-election to the United States Senate, amounted to a grand ovation in honor of the distinguished statesman.

Indiana railroad men say that January 27th was the roughest day they ever experienced. But the 27th of January must have been a picnic compared to the last blizzard.

A Mr. Day, of Pennsylvania, has just been relieved of a snake and fifteen frogs which had been inhabitants of his stomach for several years. This only illustrates the perils of drinking water.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Senator John Sherman presented the petition of thirty-seven cranks in the senate the other day asking that electoral votes of certain Southern states be not counted because of fraud and intimidation alleged to have taken place there. That there are but thirty-seven such fools left in the country is encouraging. In another year or two they may be all dead.

The Indianapolis Sentinel pays the following compliment to Representative Moody: "One of the most unassuming and quiet Representatives in the House is D. D. Moody, of DeKalb. He is now serving his successive term as a member of the House, which is a compliment to his ability and strong common sense of the highest and most substantial kind. He is not one of the wind-bags of the legislature, yet he accomplishes as much as many of those who waste the money of the people in airing their ignorance. Mr. Moody is always found on the side of reform and economy, not the economy, however, that wastes a pound endeavoring to save a penny.

Dr. LaFollette and wife, of Chernbusco, Ind., were in town last week visiting friends.

Plain Dealer: The defeat of General Gordon in the Soudan and his capture by the rebels presents to England a dilemma which her statesmen hardly know how to grasp. If she grapples with the subject of the subjugation of El Mahdi and the whole rebellious territory, her troops must be amassed from all parts of the world, a long and ceaseless war will have to be waged in a barren, waterless country, where the sun beats down its burning rays upon the soldiers who are unused to such climate, and they must succumb to the hardships which they will have to combat with; while the native soldiers, being used to the hardships and climate and with the knowledge of the country, will be able to pass through that which would destroy the life of one unused to its effects.

The English nation is talking of grasping another horn of the dilemma, that is, if Gordon is alive to recapture him, if not, why then get revenge from El Mahdi and his followers. In either case the English arms have a task before them which will require a severe blow to be struck and at once.

Mr. Carl and wife, of Dakota, arrived last week and are the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Imus. They came to join Dr. Strong and wife in their contemplated southern trip. The party will start as soon as the weather moderates.

A few months ago Judge Cowing, of New York, sentenced a boy who had grabbed a smaller one in the street and stolen a twenty-five cent knife from him to a term of twelve years in Sing Sing prison. Now Frederick Ward, who robbed the Grant and other families of millions, is kept in a commodious room in the Toombs. A correspondent says: "the jack-knife thief was off for penal servitude within a month of his offense. The stealer of millions has not so much as been indicted, and is under restraint in civil proceedings. He does not expect to fail in some compromise that will set him free. There may be a better moral in the contrast of these two cases, but the obvious one is that, in stealing, avoid the few cents and take the many dollars."

Sad Ending of a Ball.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 31.—A sleigh containing a party of nine persons, while crossing the track of the Lake Shore railway between Oak Harbor and Port Clinton, Ohio, at an early hour this morning, was struck by the west bound express and two of the number, Stephen G. Hall, of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Jennie Hall, of Wauseon, Ohio, were killed. Mrs. A. D. Thiverwachter, Mrs. John Vogel and Mrs. Charles Vogel, all of Oak Harbor, are seriously injured. John Vogel is also seriously injured. The party had been to Port Clinton to attend a ball and were returning to Oak Harbor when the accident occurred.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Wm. Hickey came from Chicago to get even with Lee Lin, of the Wabash Courier, for an article published in the Courier some time ago. The two men met on the street and Hickey tried to provoke a quarrel, when Lino filled his anatomy with bullets. Hickey will probably die and Lina gave himself up.

Two freight trains collided on the Pennsylvania Railroad, bridge over the Raritan, on the morning of the 7th, the oil tanks exploded and sent their burning contents running over the bridge and down the gutters of the streets. The bridge took fire and the flames communicated to the wall paper manufacturing establishment of Janeway & Co., and the building used as a box factory by the Consolidated Fruit Jar Company, both of which were destroyed. Two brakemen on the oil train and a brakeman on the front of the regular train were burned to death. The loss is estimated between $300,000 and a million dollars.

Key West voted a bonnet to its "handsomest married woman," or tried to, but every husband voted for his wife, and the bonnet was destroyed in the fight which followed.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The snow-storm of Sunday night and Monday was the greatest known in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant." Commencing Sunday night snow fell steadily all day Monday, when the wind arose and piled it up in huge drifts, blocking up the highways and deep railway cuts. Trains leading into Chicago from the East and West were blockaded and for several days travel and traffic was almost entire suspended. The storm was followed by intense cold, the thermometer on Monday night and Wednesday morning registering from 20 to 24 degrees below zero. The snowstorm traveled from the gulf of Mexico before its arrival in Chicago, advancing at the rate of twenty miles an hour. The storm raged high throughout the lake region from Chicago to Buffalo, and extended onward toward the gulf of St. Lawrence. It did not extend far into the northwest. In the Ohio valley the storm was one of rain, which extended as far south as northern Mississippi. In this part of the country the storm was preceeded by a heavy thunder shower about midnight Sunday night.

The killing of Hickey, the Lagro tough, recently, by Lee Lin, the editor of the Wabash Courier, was an act of self-defense. Hickey assumed the responsibility of taking Lin to task for his political course in the late campaign and had repeatedly threatened to kill him. They met upon the street, the former tried to provoke a quarrel and the latter notified him to keep away. The fate of Hickey should serve as a warning to other toughs similarly hell bent.

Tuesday night at 9 o'clock the thermometer registered from 18 to 20 degrees below zero, and Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock it fell to 24 degrees. Later in the day the weather moderated considerably, the mercury settling at 2 degrees above where it remained until nightfall.

Lawyer W. L. Penfield, who has for the past year or more been associated with Randall & Vesey, of Fort Wayne, at the same time retaining his partnership with lawyer Shaffer at Auburn, has withdrawn from the Fort Wayne firm and returned to Auburn, where he will remain devoting his entire attention to the business of the home office. This move was made imperative owing to his largely increasing home practice. The law firm of Penfield & Shaffer is the most widely known in the county for ability at the bar and for prompt and efficient attention to commercial business.

"The Revolution of '84" is the rather sanguinary title of the latest edition of the B. & O. Red Book. The contents, however, are of the most peaceful character, and embody about as complete a review, statistical and otherwise of the late political contest, as possible to imagine. Indeed, the publication is in advance of any of the Red Book series yet issued, and forms a most valuable addition to the political record of party triumphs and reverses. The article upon the general result by states is a strikingly complete review of the official figures, and the exhaustive table accompanying it is constructed after a manner at once intelligible and comprehensive. The book embraces a hundred and twenty odd pages, and those who have secured copies of former editions will not be long in inclosing a stamp to C. K. Lord, the G. P. A. of the B. & O. at Baltimore, for the latest. In addition to the great extent of political statistical data, much very interesting information is given relative to the approaching inaugural ceremonies, the different committees appearing to have given it a semi-official character by furnishing full details of the approaching event.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The "White Tower" that was blown up by the dynamiters, Saturday, was the central part of the Tower of London, and the most ancient part of the structure. The legends of the Tower date itsoriginal construction to Julius Cæsar. It is not certain how old it really is. But it is known that the White Tower as it stood was, in its nucleus at least, built by William the Conqueror, and dates to 1078. A vast pile of other towers, associated with many thrilling scenes of historic interest, were afterwards added to the original citadel and all are very old.

William Pitt Kellogg, of Louisiana, now comes to the front, big with information regarding the late Presidential campaign. He says that President Arthur is the man who defeated Blaine, and that Bill Chandler knows it. But the time, he says, is not yet ripe to divulge all he knows. Some day he will uncork his bottle of knowledge and pour out its contents on a startled community.

The curious theory has been advanced by some newspapers that a secret league, or at least an understanding, has existed all along between General Gordon and the Mahdi, and that General Gordon might have left Khartoum at any time but did not want to go.

It is argued that Gordon, being an erratic kind of a man, much disposed to Quixotic enterprises, has conceived the idea of setting himself up as a ruler of the Soudanic tribes, with the cooperation of the Mahdi, and that he has not been anxious for the British to rescue him. In fact it is claimed that he has not wanted any rescuing parties to come to his relief.

In support of this theory it is now said that when General Gordon perceived that the relief expedition was about to reach him at Khartoum, he opened the gates of the town and let the Mahdi in.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

San Francisco Call: In the line of persons waiting their turns to pay taxes at Collector Morgan's office in Orrville, the other day, was a woman with a card pinned to her dress which read: "Taxation without representation is tyranny."

Chicago News: Mr. Glenmore Todd the good young man who always went to Sunday-school and never had any of the naughty little habits that sometimes get the better of young men, has been sent to prison in Philadelphia for embezzling nobody knows how much from the Provident Life and Trust company. This good young man had a system of book-keeping that covered his discrepancies even from the gaze of experts who recently examined the books of the company in behalf of certain stockholders. The amount of his embezzlement so far as known is above $100,000, but the directors do not know where it stops. In the classic language of the hour, Glenmore Todd is a daisy.

Chicago News: A gentleman writing from Mount Vernon, Ill., to the editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, says: "It seems to me that I have one more ray of light to throw on this subject. A few years ago, as my friend Capt. Jo Laur was coming up the Central from Cairo, he noticed a very respectable-looking negro in the seat behind him, and opened up a conversation. It soon came out the man once lived near the celebrated battle-ground, and, as the captain had been in the fight, they both had much to tell. The negro said that in 1862 he belonged to Mr. Cherry, who lived at Savannah. Cherry was a strong union man, and Gen. Grant had his headquarters at his house. One night Gen. Grant told his adjutant to let Gen. Buell know that there was no occasion for him to rush his men, as it would be a week before he would be ready to march to Corinth, and in the meantime little would be done. Mrs. Cherry overheard this, and she was a rebel—not to Grant, but to everybody else. So she quietly went to the kitchen, wrote a note to Beauregard, and told the negro what it was and what he should do with it. So he got a horse, passed the lines, shot through the darkness to Beauregard's headquarters, and put the note in the General's hands. Everything began to rustle. Beauregard rushed toward Pittsburg Landing, and—we have all heard the rest of the story.

"My friend Capt. Laur, of the union army, and my other neighbor here who fought on the other side think this negro's story the best key they have found to the Shiloh riddle."

Chic. Herald: Most of the conquerors of Egypt were at the summit of their powers when they figured there. Probably the British Empire, in all that tends to make up national wealth, commerce and strength, was never greater than now. It certainly will be ranked in history as the mightiest power of the nineteenth century. How long will it be before it, too, will enter on its decline? The mighty powers whose arms desolated Egypt hundreds and thousands of years ago are either entirely effaced or remain only as grim ruins of a glorious past. It is very difficult to conceive of Britain humbled to the dust as Assyria, Macedon, Athens, Rome and Turkey have been, but there were elements in the civilization of those powers as enduring as any of which England boasts.

The British in Egypt are but following in the footsteps of many distinguished predecessors. The conquerors have vanished one by one in some cases never to reappear, but in spite of war, pestilence desolation and famine, the evidences of the learning, skill and art, once the pride of the earliest home of the human race, endure. Buried in the sands or covered by the slow accumulations of the Nile alluvium they have withstood the tooth of time as no other human works have done, and remain to confound the boasted superiority of the nineteenth century.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The Indiana House of Representatives have passed the bill abolishing the offices of City Treasurer and City Assessor.

The mardi-gras festivities at New Orleans were attended by 100,000 strangers, and hence very much enjoyed by the $10-a-day boarding-house keepers.

Kate Sumsley, the young woman of Fort Plain, N. Y., who is said to have taken no food since last March, is not only still alive, but both she and her family are hopeful of her ultimate recovery. The attending physician says her case is mysterious.

An Albany special of the 14th says: "Senator Voorhees and Congressman Cobb, of Indiana, arrived here late last night, and this morning spent an hour with President-elect Cleveland. Mr. Voorhees urged strongly Mr. McDonald for the Cabinet, and brought letters from twenty-two democratic Senators in McDonald's favor. After the visit, Mr. Voorhees would say nothing save that he found Cleveland an attentive listener, and that the request for McDonald was a whole-souled and spontaneous one."

Some pleasant information comes to us—from a United States Senator who has been to New York to see Mr. Cleveland—through the Washington correspondent of the New York World. The Senator said, in referring to Mr. Cleveland: "Since seeing his face I am more than ever convinced of the simplicity, the courage and the honesty of his character. He came down to New York to meet prominent democrats and talk freely about the composition of his Cabinet. I think it was admirable for him to do so. It shows that he is trying to discover what material there is and what is the best thing to be done. He is honestly trying to get down to the real heart and soul of the party and do that which will be for its greatest good of the entire country. Mr. Cleveland is like a man who calls about him his truest and best friends to counsel with them as to what he shall do in the face of a grave emergency. It is a sort of a family talk that he had with us up at New York. The utmost good feeling characterized every interview that was held, whoever the man or whatever the measure discussed, and every visitor came away well pleased. They all felt they had met a man in whom there was not a particle of guile—who had no personal ambitions to blind him—who had no selfish likes or dislikes to gratify, but who had above all a truly elevated patriotic purpose."

The town of Dongola on the upper Nile, lately made memorable by the long and still unexplained delay of Gen. Wolseley's army in its advance upon Khartoum, says the New York Times, has another and a stronger claim to renown as the birthplace of the mahdi himself. Situated on a low, flat peninsula jutting out into the river, it is decidedly picturesque at a distance, with its tall, white, spear-pointed minarets standing up against the deep blue sky and its feathery palms overshadowing the flat-roofed, narrow-windowed, fortress-like houses, which overlook the swift, smooth, coffee-brown stream of the Nile. But on entering the city the filth and disorder characteristic of all Arab towns become glaringly apparent, while the high blank walls that surround the numerous gardens give to the whole place a somber, prison-like aspect. Many of the clumsy Arab boats and rafts used on the Nile are built here, and among the native carpenters thus employed the self-styled Mohammedan messiah formerly worked under his own name of Mahmoud Ahmed, although it would seem that he too, like O'Donovan Rossa and company, has since found the pretense of "a great public mission" more profitable than honest every-day labor. Immediately to the north of Dongola lies the long, narrow, wedge-shaped island of Argo, several miles in length venerated by the natives as the scene of one of those terms of prophetic seclusion which the Mahdi has copied from his namesake and prototypes Mahommed.

OLD HICKORY'S WIFE.

How She Kept Him from Whipping an Editor.

When Gen. Jackson was a candidate for the Presidency, in 1828, not only did the party opposed to him abuse him for his public acts, which, if unconstitutional or violent, were a legitimate subject for reprobation, but they defamed the character of his wife. On one occasion a newspaper, published in Nashville, was placed upon the General's table. He glanced over it, and his eyes fell upon an article in which the character of Mrs. Jackson was violently assailed. So soon as he had read it, he sent for his true old servant, Dunwoodie.

"Saddle my horse," said he to him, in a whisper, "and put my holsters on him."

Mrs. Jackson watched him, and, though she heard not a word, she saw mischief in his eyes. The General went out after a few moments, when she took up the paper and understood everything. She ran out to the south gate of the Hermitage, by which the General would have to pass. She had not been there more than a few seconds before the General rode up with the countenance of a madman. She placed herself before the horse, and cried out:

"Oh, General, don't go to Nashville! Let that poor editor live."

"Let me alone," he replied; "how came you to know what I was going for?"

She answered: "I saw it in the paper after you went out; put up your horse and go back."

He replied furiously: "But I will go—get out of my way."

Instead of this she grasped his bridle with both hands.

He cried to her: "I say, let go my horse! The villain that reviles my wife shall not live!"

She grasped the reins the tighter and began to expostulate with him, saying that she it was who ought to be angry, but that she forgave her persecutors from the bottom of her heart, and prayed for them—that he should forgive if he hoped to be forgiven. At last, by reasoning, her entreaties and her tears, she so worked upon her husband that he seemed mollified to a certain extent. She wound up by saying:

"No, General, you shall not take the life of my reviler—you dare not do it; for it is written, 'Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord!'"

The iron-nerved hero gave way before the pleading of his beloved wife and replied:

"I yield to you; but, had it not been for you and the words of the Almighty, the wretch should not have lived an hour."

Profit on Cabbages.

That some profit may be made by the culture of cabbage is shown by the following statement of the results obtained from one acre: Plowing and harrowing cost $10.50; planting, $6; cultivating, $15; marketing, $20; total, $45. The results were 5,400 marketable heads and 400 heads which did not fill well. Sales amounted to $145, and enough cabbages were left to supply the stock and for home consumption. The 400 imperfect heads were worth about one and one half cents each, making total receipts from one acre, $151; or, after deducting expenses, $106. This does not include cost of plants. No other vegetable responds more promptly and satisfactorily to good treatment than does the cabbage. A sprinkling of salt on the leaves will help to obtain good, solid heads. The soil should be very rich and mellow to give the best results, light loam or sandy soil being the best for the production of cabbage.

Athletics at Harvard.

It is agreed on all hands that the increased attention given to physical exercise and athletic sports within the past twenty-five years has been, on the whole, of great advantage to the university; that the average physique of the mass of students has been sensibly improved, the discipline of the college made easier and more effective, the work of many zealous students been done with greater safety, and the weak and sickly youth into one well-formed, robust and healthy. It is also agreed that athletic competitions, though necessary to the maintenance of a proper interest in the general subject, may easily run into excess, and on that account need to be kept within discreet limits; and that the whole spirit of college sports and contests should be that of amateurs who are amusing themselves, and not that of professional players, who are earning a living and seeking a reputation for its pecuniary value.—President Eliot.

Spring Styles. 1885.

Merchant Tailoring.

KENDALLVILLE, INDIANA.

"ONLY ONE TREATMENT ON ALL DAYS, and THAT THE FAIREST."

THE ENCOURAGEMENT we received the past year from the best trade of this and adjoining counties for the superior qualities, style and make of our goods, convinces us that the trade requires a better class of clothing than formerly. Having that aim in mind, we have for the spring trade even improved on our styles, make and trimming, besides introducing such novelties as no other house can equal, and while it is our aim to introduce to the trade a superior class of goods, we also keep in mind that prices must be such as to meet the favor of all.

We are fresh in the field with the handsomest, complete and most attractive line of spring piece goods, consisting of the very latest importations for Suitings, Coatings and Pantings.

Employing none but skilled and proficient mechanics, we can guarantee better fitting garments than ever.

Spring Style Hats.

Are already on exhibition at our store. Call and see the latest novelties.

Thanking our patrons for past favors, we hope to merit an increased continuance of the same.

The Washington Post says that if there is any doubt about the prostitution of the pension office to political purposes, all one has got to do is to glance at the testimony taken before the house pension committee. The evidence given is conclusive that, in pursuance of instructions given before the October election, claims were passed upon or rejected, or defined, as the case might be, on purely political considerations. The bureau was run solely as a party machine with only one object in view and that to make republican votes or estopping the manufacture of democratic votes. One instance is cited where a meritorious claim was temporarily set aside on the grounds that Representative Holman had interested himself in it. Such perversion of official duty was the rule and not the exception. No defense can be set up for such gross corruption, and there is at present no way to prevent their occurrence. The law will not reach them. The bureau needs a thorough purgation. Dudley, a commissioner of pensions and other employes of the bureau, ran the Ohio campaign with the worst lot of scoundrels, thieves, cut throats and thugs, as the testimony taken before the house committee appointed to inquire into Lot Wright's corrupt administration of the marshal's office at Cincinnati during the late campaign, will bear us out in thus calling these imps by their correct names, their aliases having escaped us at the present time. The murders and other outrages committed at Cincinnati during the election day, was the work of Commissioner Dudley's hirelings. All of this was done in the name of the law or the republican party's version of it. Corruption lurking in the pension bureau, corruption in the treasury, corruption in the department of justice, corruption in the marshal's offices and corruption in every branch of the government will be ferreted out and exposed under the incoming administration.

Dr. Strong and wife, and Mr. Carl and wife, started last week on their southern trip. A postal card received by Mr. Imus announced the arrival of the party at Cincinnati, with the the prospect of a pleasant journey southward.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

A court decision compels Senator Sharon to pay Miss Hill $3,500 a year.

EIGHT cases of dynamite have been stolen from the factory in New York.

IT is feared that the propeller Michigan, with a crew of thirty, is lost on Lake Michigan.

JOHN and Abram Johnson, Finlanders, perished in the snow at East Tawas, Michigan.

FOUR sailors in an open boat were picked up at sea, and have arrived at New York.

THE town of Alta, Utah, was destroyed by a snow slide on the 14th. Sixteen persons were killed.

THE Russian government has ordered 2,000 Krupp guns to strengthen its position in Central Asia.

A LONDON dispatch of the 16th says an explosion in a powder magazine at Gibraltar killed seventeen men and injured many others.

Two hundred sheep, eighty hogs and a number of horses, were killed in a wreck of a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad, near Birmingham, Pa.

JACOB GLASSMAN, the 20th victim rescued from the burning almshouse at Philadelphia, died last Tuesday.

AN unknown man while trying to board a moving Nickel Plate train at Fort Wayne, on the 14th, fell under the car and was instantly killed.

Dr. Leopold Damrosch, the noted musician, died in New York on the 15th. Dr. Damrosch was a native of Posen, Prussia, where he was born October 22d, 1832.

THE Grant retirement bill did not pass last Monday because not enough members would vote to suspend the rules. But the bill will probably pass before the end of the session.

COLONEL Thomas Buford, the slayer of Judge Elliott, died in a lunatic asylum in Kentucky a few days ago. Buford was a brother of General Buford. He killed Judge Elliott because he rendered a decision against his sister.

Another insane asylum has burned like tinder—the insane department of the Blockley almshouse, Philadelphia. Eighteen inmates locked in their cells were burned to death. The coroner's jury will probably "censure" somebody, and that will be the end of it. Men will go on locking other men in fire-traps and letting them burn to death.

THE last cold wave seems to have been the worst yet. It has been accompanied by heavy snowstorms all through the West, with fierce winds and the temperature ranging from zero to thirty below. Trains have been blockaded and in many places coal famines are threatened.

MORE recent and reliable reports from the Soudan do not confirm the first accounts of the massacre at Khartoum. It appears that Gordon was betrayed by a man who had been a slave and who had been freed by Gordon and placed in command of troops. He opened the gates and admitted Mahdi's men, who killed Gordon contrary to the Mahdi's orders. There was no massacre of women and children as first reported, and El Mahdi hanged the man who betrayed General Gordon to his death.

A Texas paper comes out with a story of a blacksnake that swallowed a gory gun-barrel on a battle-field many years ago and lugged it around until captured by a hunter the other day. And yet Texans shoot men for calling them liars.

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP.

Some Facts which will Cost Nothing to Substantiate, and which, Properly Considered, may Prove Profitable.

There is almost everything done two ways of doing it—one cheerfully and unreservedly, the other grudgingly and conditionally. Mark the exemplification of this in the course pursued by the two roving connection with Washington, the one direct and the other roundabout. The direct line, which it is needless to remark is the Baltimore and Ohio, in making the great reduction on the fare to Washington for the inauguration, announced no exceptions to the privileges accorded to holders of such tickets, but to the contrary, threw open its entire service, limited express as well as other regular trains, to the low rates. No lying around the B. & O. depot waiting for slow trains; no programme of travel rudely destroyed by refusing acceptance of inauguration tickets on fast trains. How strong the contrast on the other road! When forced to follow the lead of the Baltimore and Ohio in making the reduction in rates, it was done after a characteristic fashion of affected exclusiveness. On the other road inauguration tickets are good only upon certain trains (slow trains), for, upon so-called limited trains of the would-be rival line to Washington, the low-rate tickets are not good; and more than this, the straight full-fare ticket is not good on such trains without extra fares and compulsory paying for sleeping and parlor-car accommodations, whether wanted or not. To talk about something, the indirect line refers to New York and the privilege of stopping off in Washington and then going on to the metropolis. This can be done by anybody on the tickets issued by any line, provided the time announced is within the limit of the ticket.

The B. & O. is the only direct line into Washington, and the passengers from the West, who go to the National Capital to witness the inauguration ceremonies by any other line and thence to New York, have simply to double the track for considerable of the distance, or going twice over the same line, as against going direct by the B. & O. Then, too, the other line dwells upon the special feature it proposes to adopt in running solid trains to Washington for the particularly occasion. That this is an acknowledgment of making a special schedule for Washington business, and that it would be a roundabout route to get into that city, is evident upon its face. It is a fact that solid trains are run regularly through Washington, between the West and the East, only on one line, and that line is the B. & O. It is a fact also that the Baltimore and Ohio is the only line in Washington having and using different divisions for its Western and its Eastern business, and is not forced, as is the other line, to concentrate all its trains from all points of the compass, forty-odd miles away from the city, and then bring them all in on one track. More than this, the B. & O. is the only road which can furnish track room for sleeping cars, so that they can be occupied during the stay at the capital. The B. & O. has provided space for fifty extra cars within a short distance of the depot in Washington, with broad board walk, and the whole place illuminated by electric lights, so that there can be no difficulty in getting about at any time of the night.

THE Mansfield (Tex.) Advertiser has the following Munchausen yarn: A short time ago, while H. T. Whitcomb was hunting for woodcocks with Mr. Williams, his dog made a fuss near a large pine tub, inside of which a noise was heard, and upon cutting it down a large live blacksnake was found inside of which was a gun-barrel, well preserved over four feet in length, and upon which 1777 is plainly to be seen. The barrel is supposed to have been on Sullivan's battle-field, near here, and, while all gory, was swallowed by his snakeship, who, descending the hollow, could not turn about or digest it; so the snake has remained these many years, living on mice, rats, etc. The barrel can be seen at Mr. William's relic-room on his farm here.

Odd Names Among the Coal Miners.

A man at Ellangowan Colliery flourishes under the name of Paul Whygo. The Christian name as a Polish look, but an unmistakably English sound. Another working at the same place is named Peter Mosquito, and as he is the father of quite a large family there is no lack of Mosquitos there, even in winter. "Cabbage" is a favorite affix. There is Matthew Morecabbage, for instance, and Simon Dabelcabbage, Stony Ballcabbage and Peter Yesyoucabbage. Igo is quite a common name in the region, but Whygo is seldom met with. Among the other odd names might be mentioned Luci Cusecabbage, Varonst Mehigh, Auberry Ymush, Youmanick Augrew, Mycate Powat, Phelix Cowtcouski, John Crowbait, Emmanuel Nitchikouski, Chas Cheek. Ed Bytheway also works at the Ellangowan, and so does Patrick Brotherboom. Bill Overcoat lives at Mount Carmel. When he signs his name he signs it Overcoat Bill. He has never disclosed his reason for so doing, and so far as known has not attempted to have the idea patented.—Allentown (Pa.) Register.

Australian Convicts.

It was noted in Australia, in her convict days, that the ticket of leavers who went into trade were much more punctiliously honest than the average tradesman. They felt that they were the objects of jealous notice, and that numbers were waiting to catch them tripping, and exclaim, "Didn't I tell you so?" Looking at the heavy percentage of these men who become exemplary citizens and fathers of worthy families, it is a matter for profound regret that the system had to be abandoned. The convict in England today is, as here, continually driven back against his better self into crime and breeds a criminal family. Australia today has thousands of citizens wealthy, honored and highly educated, who but for their fathers having been sent to the antipodes would be thieves and outcasts.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The sudden death of Representative Logan, of the Illinois House Thursday morning, gives the Democrats a majority, and will doubtless defeat Senator Logan and elect Morrison.

The letters of General Gordon setting forth his desperate condition and pleading for assistance will have a very powerful effect upon the English mind. It is evident that some tall lying has been done, and that at the very time when assurances were sent out that General Gordon was in no danger, the government was in possession of his dispatches, saying that he could not hold out more than forty days. There is something pathetic in the message of Gordon sent out from the beleaguered city: "The men's hearts have become weary with the delay. While you are eating and drinking, and resting in good beds, we are watching night and day trying to quell the Mahdi."

They watched and waited in vain. Before the expedition sent out after months of delay and vacillation could reach Gordon, he and the men whose hearts grew weary with waiting were slaughtered by the Mahdi.

The sentence of the court martial in the case of General Swaim is not very severe. It provides that Swaim shall be suspended from rank and duty for twelve years and to lose half his pay As Swaim gets $9000 a year, this simply means that he is to do nothing and be plain Mr. Swaim for twelve years and get $4,5000 a year for it. This sentence ought not to make General Swaim feel very bad.

The Washington monument, dedicated Saturday, cost altogether $1,187,710 of which congress contributed $900,000, and the rest was raised by popular subscriptions. At its base the obelisk measures 56 feet square and the walls are 15 feet thick and at the roof 7 inches thick. The pyramidal top begins at the 500 foot mark, where the dimensions are 34 feet 6 inches. The roof is 55 feet high, the weight of the crown prince is 3,300 pounds, and the weight of the entire shaft is 82,000 tons. The area covered by the foundation is 16,002 square feet.

A BEAUTIFUL POME.

One year ago tonight I remember,
That night you know in days of yore;
It was twilight in cold December,
When I sadly lingered at the door.

'Twas bitter cold, the snow was falling
On verdant lawns and leafy nook I knew,
And from the tree, bird to bird was calling,
With words of love that each other knew.

You said no word when I started,
To cheer me on my lonely way;
Nor gave one sigh when we parted,
Nor had you "one little word" to say.

"Oh, agony of lives that part;"
Oh, love that you and I
Had died together, heart and heart,
The night that we said good-by.
—Taylorville (Ill.) Journal.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Henry Delong, a farmer living about one and one-half miles east of Corunna and one mile west of Sedan, met with a serious accident on Saturday, 14th, under the following circumstances: He concluded to patch up an old abandoned log hut on his place as a shelter for stock, and accompanied by his children went out to the cabin for that purpose. While removing some of the logs the structure suddenly gave way, the heavy timbers falling upon and pinioning him to the ground. He was rescued by his neighbors amidst the debris in a condition almost unconscious. Dr. Mercer was summoned as soon as possible and upon examining the wounded man found one of his legs terribly crushed near the ankle, and that he had received a serious fracture of the spine, a heavy log having fallen across his back. Other injuries of an internal nature makes the case quite serious; in fact at the time it was feared that the accident would prove fatal, but under the skillful treatment of Dr. Mercer the patient bids fair to recover in due time. The children luckily escaped with a few bruises.

The Elkhart Independent of last week says: "Now comes the accomplished daughter of the superintendent of the L. & W. railway, Miss Lizzie H. Bogart, who elopes with a brakeman, the whole scheme having been concocted and matured at a skating rink. These rinks are the breeders of more evil than all the whisky shops on earth, but then if people will patronize them there is no one to be blamed but themselves."

A protracted meeting is being held at the U. B. Church in this village. The meetings have been in progress for nearly a week and attract considerable interest.

A correspondent in La Rassegna, says the London Times, expresses the opinion that the possession of Tripoli is indispensable for Italy's future as a great Mediterranean power, but expresses the conviction that one other African district would be still more useful to Italy, and that its acquisition must not be condemned on the mere supposition that the government and the country, satisfied with it, might renounce Tripoli. The district which this writer has in view is the triangle having its vertex at Cape Guardafui and the island of Socotra, and extending southward along the shore of the Indian ocean to the River Juba, and northward along the Red Sea coast as far as Massowah. This would include the important cities of Massowah, Zeila, and Berbera, on the gulf of Aden; and as the Juba, navigable for 150 kilometers from its mouth, flows through the fertile territory of the Gallas, the writer expresses the opinion that this country would be an admirable colonial possession, and might well be described as a little Congo.

The weather clerk is prepared to show almost any kind of goods called for. The sudden transition from a thaw to a first-class blizzard, and vice versa, is not an unlooked for occurrence just now. For several days week before last the weather was as severe as any we have experienced this winter. As we go to press on the last day of February but one, there are indications of a thaw and general break-up.

Senator Garland says that President Cleveland will not search the political graveyard for cabinet material. "Mr. Cleveland's idea," says the senator, "is not the rehabilitation of the old democratic party—a sort of furbishing up of the old machinery for new uses. On the contrary, Mr. Cleveland proposes to organize a new party—not a democratic party nor a republican party, but a party founded on democratic principles, as enunciated by the convention of 1884, in their letter and spirit, and not according to the obsolete doctrines of the past, and he asks the cooperation of all good citizens, North or South, East or West, in placing the nation on a higher plane of politics and public duty."

Albert Buchanan, of Hillsdale, Mich., is in town superintending the packing and shipping of hay from his farm north-east of the village.

Mrs. Harriet McDonald, the wife of Lewis McDonald, formerly residents of Corunna, died at Wawaka, Noble county, Tuesday, 17th inst. The remains were brought here for interment.

A Massachusetts legislator proposes a law to prohibit the opening of roller rinks to persons of different sexes at the same time, and a Pennsylvania town refuses to license them to be established on the grounds that they are nuisances.

Our friend "Cill" Helmer, whom a a gentle Western zephyr wafted this way recently, has invested some of the boodle that we presume he acquired in Dakota speculations, in a roller skating rink at Corunna. It's a mighty cold day when "Cill" can't find a place to put a penny where it will do the most good.

Dr. Mercer concluded to improve the fine sleighing, and last week accompanied by his family visited friends in the St. Joe River country.

Moody, the great evangelist, lectured the other day at Fort Wayne and naturally attracted a large number of visitors from the surrounding country.

The fourth regular institute of the teachers of Richland and Keyser townships was held at the village school building in Corunna, on Saturday, 14th instant. The session proved of more than ordinary interest and quite a number of visitors were present. Trustee Franks, who has done much toward advancing the cause of educational matters since his election to the office of Trustee, being now nearly at the close of the first year of his second term, was present and as usual contributed to the interest of the session. The proceedings of Saturday's institute which we give elsewhere were kindly furnished by Miss Mary Topping, the secretary, and who is the present efficient teacher in the primary department of our school.

Corunna ★ Headlight.

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

Entered at the Postoffice in Corunna, Indiana, as Second-class matter

SATURDAY .....FEB 28, 1885.

On next Wednesday Grover Cleveland will become president of the United States, when the country will be in possession of the democracy in all that pertains to its administrative affairs. The inauguration ceremonies proper will be simple and unpretentious and will follow the precedent set by inaugurations heretofore. The civic and military parade in the evening and the inauguration ball and fireworks, are enterprises gotten up by private parties, and with them the new president has nothing more to do than any other private citizen. These will be on a scale of elaborateness and grandeur exceeding anything ever before attempted on a similar occasion.

The pastoral of the recently deceased Cardinal McCabe prepared on the very eve of his death was read in the Catholic churches of Ireland on the 15th. It expresses in ignant repudiation of the dynamite doctrine. "God knows," says the cardinal, that the record of Ireland's wrongs forms the blackest page in European history, but surely savage vengeance is not calculated to win God or man to the side of that poor afflicted country."

The B. & O. rates for the round trip to Washington are lower than ever made at inauguration time. Less than half fare in many cases, and no extra charge for the unparalleled time made by its unlimited trains.

Charley Moses, one of the B. & O. time engineers, lightened the burdens of the printer man last week by presenting us with a big bundle on subscription.

People are going to the capital of the nation to witness the inauguration of a President of the United States—not going to a court of royalty to behold the crowning of a king. It is the great American privilege to go as one pleases, and not have to stand around and wait the pleasure of anybody as to the train to depart in. At the B. & O. depots, it is needless to remark, the great American custom is still in vogue.

Engineer H. F. Sembower is just now nursing one of those unwelcome pets which commonly afflict the wicked, called a felon, but which are known in old Mazzoora parlance as a "risin' on the arm." Allee samee Melican man.

With its own depot in Washington, and different tracks to receive its western and its eastern business upon, the B. & O patrons will be able to get into the city by rail, and not have to walk in from the suburbs.

Judging from the throng of customers seen at N. W. Blackburn's, that place is in fact as well as in name "The People's Grocery." Mr. Blackburn is as popular there as he was at B. & O. station headquarters.

When the B. & O. makes a reduced rate, less for the inauguration in many instances than one for the round trip, it throws open its entire line with every train included in its schedule to its patrons, not as on some other lines, debarring passengers from fast trains, and exacting not only full, but double fares. In other words, those who buy their tickets for Washington via the Baltimore & Ohio road get "the very best the Company has in the shop," as the saying goes, for the reduced rate.

The dwelling of Mr. William Stahl, situated north of Sedan, was burned together with the contents during the absence of the family one night week before last. The house was new and had but recently been occupied. We did not learn the origin of the fire.

Mr. E. B. Alsbaugh, our enterprising jeweler, not long since hied himself away to the classic precincts of Newcastle to eat a square meal once more with "the old folks at home" and to circulate among the boys and girls for a brief holiday. A Newcastle paper has the following facetious mention of his visit:

[illegible] Mr. Alsbaugh was [illegible] the appearance of a [illegible] its reported business in his line as prosperous, and his dog, which wore a blanket inscribed "Patronize Alsbaugh, the Jeweler," a valuable assistant. Everybody was glad to see Elmer back again, and most people admired the dog, which was one of the breed denominated Coach, and is very speckled. Mr. Alsbaugh and his dog returned to Garrett on Tuesday, both promising to return during "dog days."

Circuit Court

Convened on Monday. In the absence of Judge McBride John W. Baxter occupied the bench and discharged the duties of a Judge with the dignity and dispatch of an old stager. The first two days were taken up in assigning cases for trial. Judge McBride arrived from Washington Wednesday when the court machinery was got under full motion. The grand jury devoted the latter part of the week to finding indictments under the criminal code. The Courier says the session promises to be a lively one.

The Corunna wheat market remains steady at 79@80c. for No. 1. The receipts for the past week have fallen off from the week previous. Prices paid for other produce as follows: Corn, 40c; oats, 31c.; potatoes, 30c; flour, $4.80, butter, 18c., eggs, 20c.

Unhappy Marriages.

A man should marry, by all means; yet I am convinced that the greater part of marriages are unhappy, and this is not an opinion I give as coming from myself; it is that of a very excellent, agreeable and sensible lady, who married the man of her choice, and has not encountered ostensibly any extraordinary misfortune, as a loss of health, riches, children, etc. She told me this unreservedly, and I never had any reason to doubt her sincerity. For all this, I am convinced that a man cannot be truly happy without a wife. It is a strange state of things we live in. A tendency so natural as that of the union of the sexes ought to lead only to the most harmless results; yet the reverse is the fact. There is certainly something radically wrong in the constitution of society. The times are out of joint. It is strange, too, what little real liberty of choice is exercised by those even who marry according to what is thought their own inclinations. The deceptions which the two sexes play off upon each other bring as many ill-assorted couples into the bonds of Hymen as ever could be done by the arbitrary pairings of a legal matchmaker. Many a man thinks he marries by choice who only marries by accident. In this respect men have less the advantage of women than is generally supposed.—One of Lord Byron's Letters.

President elect Cleveland will soon draw $137 each day in the year for the next four years.

Not the Studies but the Bad Methods.

The dangers which threaten from undue application to study are not diminished by simply reducing the number of subjects. Pupils can be crammed to death on three subjects as successfully as they can on thirty. The abuse lies in the methods of study, and not in the character or number of the branches studied. Indeed, within reasonable limits, the greater the diversity of occupation the more favorable are the conditions for mental healthfulness and symmetrical growth.—New York Tribune.

Hamlet and Yankee Doodle.

While Barry Sullivan was traveling in this country a few years ago and playing "Hamlet," a member of his company who played Guildenstern was, or imagined himself to be, a first-class musician. Hamlet asks him: "Will you play upon this pipe?" "My Lord, I cannot." "I do beseech you." "Well, if your Lordship insists upon it, I shall do as well as I can." And, to Hamlet's confusion and the audience's amusement, he played "Yankee Doodle." It was all he knew.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Troy Times: General Swaim, judge advocate general of the army, who has been on trial by court-martial for falsehood, fraud and other conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and was convicted, gets off with a very light sentence, indeed, considering the nature of his offenses.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Two years ago the Courier-Journal said that iron could be made in the South at from $9 to $12; these figures are now accepted without question. Now we wish to say that within the next three years iron will be made in the South at from $8 to $10.

Chicago Herald: Dudley's case is a sad one, but it is nevertheless instructive. There is just one way in which a public officer can escape criticism and avoid misrepresentation. He is appointed and paid to perform certain duties by all the people. Let him attend to them faithfully, leaving political dirty work, if it must be done, to others. If Dudley had followed this plan he would have been much better off to-day. He is covered with political mud just now because he voluntarily left his post to wallow in it.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is hardly possible that any of the senatorial complications will result in giving the democrats a majority in the senate. The United States senate has now forty republicans and thirty-six democrats. In the next congress it will have forty-two republicans and thirty-four democrats, provided that republicans should be chosen in New Hampshire, Oregon and Illinois. But if the senators from those three states, whose terms expire March 4th, should have no successors ready to take their seats in the special session, there would still be thirty republicans and thirty-four democratic senators, assuming that Mahone and Riddleberger, the Virginians, will vote with the republicans. Even if both of them should go over to the democratic side, the republicans would still have a majority of one, unless the democrats should succeed in electing a senator in Illinois. In that case, if there should be no senator from New Hampshire or Oregon, and Mahone and Riddleberger should act with the democrats, the two parties in the senate would be equal in number.

New York World: Somebody wrote to the editor of the Chicago Tribune the other day inquiring whether Cleveland or Blaine had a plurality of the popular vote. The answer as given was "Blaine." There is no reason why Mr. Blaine's organs should go on perpetrating this falsehood, the more especially seeing that the New York Tribune has issued an almanac in which the figures are given as follows: Popular vote for Cleveland, 4,874,986; for Blaine, 4,851,981; for Butler, 175,370; for St. John, 150,369. According to Mr. McPherson's figures, as above quoted, the plurality for Cleveland on the popular vote was 23,005.

Chicago News: It will doubtless be of interest to the silver men in congress who have antagonized the letter of the president-elect in favor of the stoppage of silver coinage to learn that some of the ablest financiers in France are calling attention to the piling up of unused silver in the Bank of France. The interest of our silver members of congress in this whole subject must necessarily be enhanced by the circumstance that in their letter to Mr. Cleveland they have called attention to France as a country which enjoys all the benefits of a double standard. A cablegram says that Barons Rothschild and Soureyran consider the proportion of silver to gold in the bank as dangerously large; and that the latter has brought the subject before the chamber of deputies, although himself a double-standard advocate. The last return of the Bank of France showed the specie reserve to be about 2,040,000,000 francs, of which nearly 1,040,000,000 francs was silver. Intelligence by mail is to the effect that the bank keeps as tight a hold as it possibly can on its gold, and deals it out quite parsimoniously to its customers.

AND DEMOCRACY IS TRIUMPHANT.

Scenes and Ceremonies at the Capitol —President Cleveland's Inaugural Address—Brief, Pointed, Patriotic and Sensible—Full Account of the Proceedings.

Cleveland Plain Dealer Special.

Washington, Mar. 4.—This morning at a very early hour the streets were filled to overflowing by the largest crowd ever seen in Washington. Trains that have been arriving for the past three days have been crowded, bringing military and civic societies from almost every state in the union.

This morning the sky is clear, though hazy, and at this hour nothing indicates other than a galay time. The streets are one mass of houses being entirely hidden in some instances by the bunting that has been used to cover the brick walls. Since President-elect Cleveland's arrival in the city he has been busy receiving callers and dispatching, such business as was connected with the ceremonies today. His secretary, Col. Lamont, announced last night that would not be made public until the names were sent to the senate. Mr. Whitney is on the slate, though it is not known what place has been assigned him.

Military organizations are now proceeding to their places for the formation of the line of parade, and one of the most extraordinary scenes is being witnessed by those who are on the streets that has ever been seen anywhere. The parks and all other places along the avenue where stands could be erected with gaily decorated platforms, seats upon which have been sold at prices ranging all the way from $2 to $5. Not a single accident has occurred up to this hour to mar the pleasures of the day and the order preserved by the great mass of people is most excellent.

Plain Dealer Special.

At 10 o'clock this morning Senators Sherman and Ransom went to the Arlington hotel and escorted President-elect Cleveland to the White House. Vice President-elect Hendricks was also escorted thither, and both were met by president Arthur. At 11 o'clock, headed by the Marine band and escorted by the military of the city and the regular troops here, the carriage containing President Arthur, President elect Cleveland, Vice President elect Hendricks and the congressional committee proceeded to the capitol.

A dense crowd packed the avenue and cheers arose from thousands of throats as the presidential carriage proceeded along the way. The carriage was open and the president elect removed his hat and bowed to the people along the route. The carriage proceeded to the Capitol and the presidential party got out and went to the president's room in the senate wing.

IN THE SENATE.

At 11 o'clock the doors were opened. The senators were already present, as were also the senators elect and business was proceeding in the usual manner. In the diplomats gallery were the families of the diplomats the diplomats themselves being seated on the floor of the senate to the right of the president. Families of the president pro tem of the senate, the president-elect, vice-president-elect, ex-presidents and ex-vice presidents, occupied the gallery next to the diplomats. At twenty minutes past 11 the justices of the entered wearing their black silk gowns of office with Chief Justice Waite, Walking arm in arm with Justice Miller in front. They took seats on the right of the chair. During the next few minutes entered Lieutenant General Sheridan in gorgeous uniform, and following him, retired generals of the army, Admiral Porter of the navy in uniform. They took seats on the left of the chair. Then came members of the cabinet, judges of the district court and court of claims and various government officials. At 11: 45 the was announced, and entered headed by Speaker Carlisle and old Judge Kelley, of Pennsylvania, the oldest member. The members found seats back of the diplomatic corps.

SUPREME COURT

THE PRESIDENT ENTERS.

In a few minutes there was a stir about the door leading to the president's room and a buzz of excitement ran through the chamber. Then entered the gaunt form of Senator Sherman walking with President Arthur, and followed by Senator Ransom with President elect Cleveland and Senator Hawley with Vice President Hendricks. The arrival of the party was greeted by clapping of hands all over the chamber and the galleries. They took seats reserved for them in front of the presiding officer, the committee of arrangements sitting on their left.

THE INAUGURAL.

A few minutes before the hand of the senate clock touched the hour of twelve, President pro tem. Edmunds arose very solemnly, and rapped for order, and Vice President elect Hendricks arose and stood before the president's clerk. President pro tem. Edmunds then administered to him the oath of office as vice president pro tem. Edmunds

...en made a few remarks and declared the ...enate adjourned without a day, adding that ...e new senate would immediately convene. ...ice president Hendricks then took his place ...s presiding officer amid much cheering, and ...alled the senate to order. The roll was ...alle l, and the new senators presented themselves to be sworn. After the oath was administered a procession was formed and marched to the platform on the central portico of the capitol. There the president and president elect took their seats near the center of the platform, with Chief Justic White on one side and the sergeant at arms of the senate on the other. All in front was a dense mass of people, who rent the air with cheers as the procession arrived. When quiet was restored the chief justice administered the oath to the president-elect, who when the reading was finished, bowed his head and kissed the Bible and the applause from thousands of throats broke out again. President Cleveland then stepping to the front delivered in a loud clear voice his inaugural as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS:—In the presence of this vast assemblage of my countrymen, I am about to supplement and seal, by the oath which I shall take, the manifestation of the will of a free people. In the exercise of their power and right of self-government, they have committed to one of their fellow-citizens a supreme and sacred trust; and he here consecrates himself to their service.

The impressive ceremony adds little to the solemn sense of responsibility with which I contemplate the duty I owe to all the people of this land; nothing can relieve me from the anxiety lest by any act mine their interests may suffer, and nothing is needed to strengthen my resolution to engage every faculty and effort in the promotion of their welfare. Amid the din of party strife the people's choice was made; but its attendant circumstances have demonstrated anew the strength and safety of government by the people. In each succeeding year it more clearly appears that our Democratic principle needs no apology and that in its fearless and faithful application is to be found the surest guaranties of good government.

But the best results in the operation of a government wherein every citizen has a share largely depend upon the proper limitation of purely partisan zeal and effort, and a correct appreciation of the time when the heat of the partisan should be merged in the patriotism of the citizen. Today the executive branch of the government is transferred to new keeping. But this is still the government of the people and should be none the less an object of their affectionate solicitude. At this hour, the animosities of political strife, the bitterness of party defeat and the exultation of party of triumph, should be supplanted by ungrudging acquiescence in the popular will and sober, conscientious concern for the general weal. Moreover, if from this hour cheerfully and honestly and distrust, and determine with manly confidence one another, to work out harmoniously the ...vements of our national destiny, we shall ...re to realize all the benefits which our happy ... government can bestow.

In this auspicious occasion we may well renew ... pledge of our devotion to the constitution, which, ...ched by the founders of the republic and consecrated by their prayers and patriotic devotion, ... almost a century borne the hopes and aspirations of a great people through prosperity and peace, and through the shock of foreign conflicts and the perils of domestic strife and vicissitudes. As the father of his country, our constitution was commended for adoption as "the result of a spirit of ... and mutual concession." In that same spirit ... should be administered, in order to promote the lasting welfare of the country, and to secure the full measure of its priceless benefits to us and to those who will succeed to the blessings of our national life. The large variety of diverse and competing interests subject to federal control, persistently seeking the recognition of their claims, need give us no fear that will fail to be accomplished, if, in the halls of national legislation, that spirit of amity and mutual concession shall prevail, in which the constitution had its birth. If this involves the surrender or postponement of private interests and the abandonment of local advantages, compensation will be found in the assurance that thus the common interest is subserved, and the general welfare advanced

In the discharge of my official duty

I SHALL ENDEAVOR TO BE GUIDED

by a just and unstained construction of the Constitution, a careful observance of the distinction between the powers granted to the states, or to the people, and by a cautious appreciation of those functions which, by the Constitution and laws, have been especially assigned to the executive branch of the government.

But he who takes the oath today to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, only assumes the solemn obligation which every patriotic citizen on the farm, in the workshop, in the busy marts of trade and everywhere, should share, with him. The constitution which prescribes his oath, my countrymen, is yours. The government you have chosen him to administer for a time is yours. The suffrage which executes the will of freemen is yours. The laws and the entire scheme of our civil rule from the town meeting to the state capitals and the national capital is yours. Every voter as surely as your chief magistrate, under the same high sanction, in a different sphere, exercises a public trust. Nor is this all. Every citizen owes to the country a vigilant watch and close security of its public servants, and a fair and reasonable estimate of their fidelity and usefulness. Thus is the people's will impressed upon the whole framework of our civil polity—municipal, state and federal—and this is the price of our liberty and the inspiration of our faith in the republic.

It is the duty of those serving the people in a public place to

to the actual needs of the government, economically administered, because this bounds the right of the government to exact tribute from the earnings of the laborer and the property of citizens and because public extravagance begets extravagance among the people. We should never be ashamed of the simplicity and prudential economies which are best suited to the operation of a Republican form of government and most compatible with the mission of the American people. Those who are selected for a limited time to manage public affairs and may do much by their example to encourage consistently with the dignity of their official functions that plain way of life, which among their fellow citizens aids integrity and promotes thrift and prosperity. The genius of our institutions, the needs of our people in their home-life and the attention which is demanded for the development of the resources of our vast territory, dictate the scrupulous avoidance of any departure from that foreign policy commended by the history, the tradition and the prosperity of our republic. It is the policy of independence, favored by our position and defended by our known love of justice and by our power. It is the policy of peace suitable to our interests. It is the rejecting any share in foreign broils and ambitions upon other continents and repelling their intrusion here. It is the policy of Monroe and Washington and Jefferson. "Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none." A due regard for the interests and prosperity of all the people demand that our finances shall be established upon such a sound and sensible basis as shall secure the safety and confidence of business interests and making the wages of labor sure and steady, and that our system of revenue shall be so adjusted as to relieve the people from Merchant Tailoring.

ARE STILL OF THE PEOPLE

KENDALLVILLE, INDIANA.

"ONLY ONE TREATMENT ON ALL DAYS, and THAT THE FAIREST."

THE ENCOURAGEMENT we received the past year from the best trade of this and adjoining counties for the superior qualities, style and make of our goods, convinces us that the trade requires a better class of clothing than formerly. Having that aim in mind, we have for the spring trade even improved on our styles, make and trimming, besides introducing such novelties as no other house can equal, and while it is our aim to introduce to the trade a superior class of goods, we also keep in mind that prices must be such as to meet the favor of all.

We are fresh in the field with the handsomest, complete and most attractive line of spring piece goods, consisting of the very latest importations for Suitings, Coatings and Pantings.

Employing none but skilled and proficient mechanics, we can guarantee better fitting garments than ever.

Spring Style Hats.

vested and workingmen employed in American industries and preventing the accumulation of a surplus in the treasury tempt extravagance and waste. Care for the property of the nation and for the needs of future settlers require that the public domain should be protected from purloining schemes and unlawful occupation. The conscience of the people demands that the Indians within our boundaries shall be fairly and honestly treated, as wards of the government, and their education and civilization promoted with a view to ther ultimate citizenship; that destructive of the family relation and offensive to the moral sense of the civilized world, shall be repressed. The laws should be rigidly enforced which prohibits the immigration of a servile class to compete with American labor with no intention of acquiring citizenship, and bringing with them and retaining habits and customs so repugnant to our civilization. The people demand reform in the administration of the government and the application of business principles to public affairs As a measure to this end,

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM

should be in good faith enforced. Our citizens have the right to protection from the incompetency of public employes who hold their places solely as the reward of partisan service, and from the corruption of those who promise, and the vicious methods of those who expect, such rewards and those who worthily seek public employment have thought and insist that merit and competency shall be recognized instead of party subserviency or the surrender of honest political belief in the administration of a government pledged to do equal and exact justice to all men; there should be touching the protection of the freedom in their rights or their security in the enjoyment of their privileges under the Constitution and its amendments. All discussion as to their fitness for the place accorded to them as American citizens is idle and unprofitable except as it suggests the necessity for their improvement. The fact that they are citizens entitles them to all the rights due to the relation, and charges them with all its duties, obligations and responsibilities. These topics and the constant and ever varying wants of an active and enterprising population, may well receive the attention and the patriotic endeavor of all who make and execute the federal law. Our duties are practical and call for the industrious application of an intelligent perception of the claims of public office, and above all a by the united action to secure to all the people of the land the full benefits of the best form of government ever vouchsafed to man, and let us not trust to human effort alone but humbly to acknowledge the power and greatness of Almighty God who presides over the destiny of nations, and who has at all times been revealed in our country's history; let us invoke His aid and His blessing upon our labors.

CLOSING SCENES.

Success Crowns the Ceremonies on Every Hand—A Great Day in the Nation's History.

Washington, D. C., March 5—Yesterday, one of the greatest days that ever dawned upon the Capitol, ended with a brilliant display of fireworks. In character it was like most other displays, but in volume and variety it excelled any former pyrotechnical exhibition on this continent, and was successful to the minutest detail. The scene of the exhibition was the White lot, an area of two or three hundred acres, sloping gently away from the south fronts of the Treasury, Executive Mansion and State Department.

Rockets, baloons, mines, fountains, bombs, batteries and shells were sent heavenward in volleys for half an hour, filling the air with showers of fire. Explosions sometimes half a mile above the earth took place and constellations numbering thousands of beautifully tinted stars floated away over the Potomac borne by the gentle northern breeze.

Three set pieces of mammoth proportions were among the last and grandest features of the entertainment. The first was the face of Jefferson; the second represented the National Capitol, with excellent portraits of the President and Vice President, flanked by mottoes and emblems. This piece was 160 feet long by 75 in height, the largest set piece ever fired in America.

The flight of 5,000 rockets at once, forming a vast floral boquet on the heavens, terminated the display terminated the ceremonies of the inaugural, and was the most brilliant affair of the kind ever seen in this country. The decorations presented a wealth of richness and gorgeous beauty.

The night parade of the Flambeau club, of Topeka, Kan., which took place at the close of the fireworks, attracted much attention.

THE GRAND BALL

The Germania orchestra, of Philadelphia, gave the music for the dancing, which did not begin till after 11 o'clock, when Vice-President Hendricks' smiling face appeared, then ex-president Allan Arthur, the Attorney-General and Mrs. Hatton, Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. Frelinghuysen.

As the party came in the band struck up "Hail to the Chief," and the President, with his sisters, Mrs. Hoyt Mrs. Bacon and Miss Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Manning. Miss Hastings and the Misses Youmans, entered the room. Others were Col. and Mrs. Vilas, Mr. and Mrs. Leiter.

The President, attended by the reception committee, joined the promenade shortly after entering the ballroom, and he was greeted with continued applause. Altogether it was an immense success.

SUNDAY.....MARCH 15, 1885.

DAWN OF THE DEMOCRATIC ERA.

On the 4th instant the republican party turned the reins of government over to the democracy and passed out of power. For a period of twenty-four years the republican party has had uninterrupted control of this government. Starting with many ennobling principles it had much to command the respect of the people, and for a a time it ruled acceptably and its course was onward and upward. But it must be admitted that the later years of its reign have proved anything but creditable, and it passes into history with a record that sadly dims its former well earned glory.

The people have long decreed that the republican party must go, but like the "Old Man of the Sea" it seemed to stick, and entrenched with spoils the hope of ever displacing it seemed forlorn. But at last the republican party has gone, and let it be devoutly hoped that it has gone to stay.

The elevation of the democracy to power is the dawning of a new era in the nation's history, an era of great promise. The people have abundant assurance that it will be a propitious one and that brighter days are in store for the republic of Washington.

President Cleveland combines the elements of a man of the people; plain, honest and patriotic, and he will administer the laws to the best interests of all the people. His inaugural address foreshadows this in plain, unmistakable terms.

Firm in this belief, and as an event for the consummation of which we have contributed our humble energies, The HEADLIGHT proudly hails the democratic regime.

THE INAUGURATION.

The inauguration of a democratic president, being the first in the lapse of nearly a quarter of a century, proved quite an event in the nation's history and Washington presented the appearance of a grand galay day. It is correctly estimated that the cowd in attendance on the 4th numbered one hundred and fifty thousand. The inauguration ceremonies proper were impressive and of the established custom, unattended with any unusual display of pomp or circumstance, and partook of a character befitting a democratic government. But the closing scenes were conducted on a scale of grandeur more magnificent than ever witnessed on a similar occasion. On another page we give a full account of the proceedings, including President Cleveland's inaugural address.

THE CABINET.

President Cleveland's cabinet is about the same as that given to the public a few days prior to the inauguration, and consists of the following:

Secretary of State—THOMAS F. BAYARD, of Delaware.
Secretary of the Treasury—DANIEL MANNING, of New York.
Secretary of War—WILLIAM C. ENDICOTT, of Massachusetts.
Secretary of the Navy—WILLIAM C. WHITNEY, of New York.
Secretary of the Interior—L. Q. C. LAMAR, of Mississippi.
Postmaster-General—WILLIAM F. VILAS, of Wisconsin.
Attorney-General—A. H. GARLAND, of Arkansas.

There are some objections to the cabinet on account of location. We believe about every state in the union had a favorite for a cabinet position, Indiana not excepted, whose people would liked to have seen ex-Senator McDonald represented, but the President could not please everybody, and naturally enough disappointments are now in order. The President decided in the matter of his constitutional advisers not until after careful and mature deliberation, and we trust and believe that he has made no mistake.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Stryker cor. Toledo Ree: Mrs. J. M. Carens and Mrs. C. P. Utle, of Corunna, Ind., were the guests of W. H. Vaus and family Thursday and Friday.

The item in our last stating that our village school closed that week, was a little too previous. The school closed last Friday for a vacation of two weeks, after which the spring term will commence and continue three months.

The Corunna band concert and ball, given at Auburn recently, for band benefit, we learn did not prove a financial success.

Cyrus Baun, son of 'Squire Baun, of Auburn, and at one time night policeman of that town, died at St. Louis on Sunday, 1st instant.

The U. B. protracted meetings which were commenced at this place three weeks ago, and conducted by Rev. Lilly, of Waterloo, were discontinued last Monday night. These meetings have been well attended and we hope productive of much good. The result is quite satisfactory to the pastor who seems to be an indefatigable christian worker.

Chester Allan Arthur retires from the Presidency with the good opinion of a large portion of the American people. Considering the very trying circumstances under which he was called to the chair of the Chief Executive Arthur has certainly done well.

Henry Delong, the particulars of whose sad accident we gave in our last, we learn from Dr. Snyder, the attending physician, is slowly improving, but his permanent recovery at the present outlook is by no means conclusive as the case is a serious one

Frank McCullough and Ed. Brumback, of this village, started last Monday to see the wonders of the World's Exposition, and to eat bannanas and dance with the dark-eyed southern belles in the orange-groves of the Crescent City.

George Buchanan has pulled out of Tennessee, whither he emigrated two years ago, and returned to his farm in Fairfield township.

T. D. Gross has taken possession of his hotel stand known as the Central house, at Auburn. Tom is not a novice as a hotel manager and the Central will again be a favorite resort.

Mrs. T. C. Mays, son and daughter, of Hot Springs, Ark., are visiting Auburn, the guests of T. D. Gross and family of the Central.

An impending war between England and Russia has materially advanced the price of wheat. A Chicago broker predicts that with war wheat may go to $1 25.

The Editor of The Headlight Wrestles With a Criminal Libel.

On the 24th ult. the editor of this paper was arrested for criminal libel on complaint of W. H. Nusbaum, of this village, bail being fixed at $500 for his appearance at court which was promptly furnished.

The affidavit was founded on an editorial article in the issue of June 15th, 1884, replying to a card published in the Auburn Courier over the signature of Nusbaum denying his indebtedness on account of advertising, subscription, etc., the Headlight article including a sharp criticism on his peculiar methods of doing business, for which affiant alleged defamation of character and consequential damages.

The case was set for Monday, 8d inst., present term of Circuit Court, and at about 10 a. m. it was called and the trial proceeded occupying the attention of the court all that day. Messrs. Penfield & Shaffer appeared for the defense and P. V. Hoffman on the part of the State's prosecuting witness.

Several witnesses were called on behalf of the prosecution, but nothing of particular interest transpired until an attempt was made to impeach the defendant by the introduction of a witness who evidently wriggled himself into the State's confidence in order to gratify a personal spite against the editor of the Headlight, who had formerly exposed him for a misdemeanor under the statute. The incident created a sensational flutter, and as the witness wobbled off the stand he looked as though he had been run over by an ice wagon.

The defense rested the case upon their own testimony and documentary evidence, which had the effect to demolish the prosecution and sustain the allegations of the editorial in question, as the sequel shows.

The case was given to the jury at about 5 p. m. and after being out less than half an hour returned a verdict of acquittal.

As before stated The Headlight was represented by the law firm of Messrs. Penfield & Shaffer who conducted the case with signal ability. Mr. Penfield's beautiful tribute to the press was worthy the head and heart of the eloquent advocate, and long before the conclusion of his address the result of the verdict was foreshadowed.

No stone was left unturned to down the editor, the prosecution contesting every inch of ground with bull-dog tenacity and with a vindictiveness born as it were of the Spanish Inquisition and fostered and matured in a relentless crusade of long standing against the personal integrity and business interests of the editor of this paper. Such was the true animus forming the basis of this prosecution. Our acknowledgments are due the honorable State's Attorney and his deputy who, during the trial did not forget that to truly represent the bar, either as an advocate or counselor, one should command the manners of a gentleman and not a bully.

Thus endeth the Nusbaum libel, an action apparently conceived in malice and fought to the bitter end under that banner, and like other persecutions of a similar nature it has "gone where the woodbine twineth."

It is well known to the public that we have an action for civil damages against Nusbaum which is now pending in the Noble circuit court, and this action for libel was evidently brought as a "counter-irritant" to the civil suit.

In the course of his address to the jury as the hired attorney of Bill Nusbaum, "Lawyer" Hoffman attempted to score a point by attacking the editorial fraternity on general principles, and the editor of The Headlight in particular, whom he singled out for unsavory compliments, conducting the entertainment somewhat on the Chinese plan. The incident leads us to infer that possibly at some time in his eventful career "Lawyer" Hoffman carelessly monkeyed with the devil's tail of the printing press.

The verdict as returned reflects the high personal character of the gentlemen composing the jury. It was an honest vindication of the press, the great promoter of civilization and champion of individual liberty and law, and we thank them, not on personal grounds alone, but for the principle involved.

Nusbaum's memory seemed to be very defective for a "Doctor," respecting what transpired on a certain journey during which the writer paid the score, unless the quality of that one glass of beer, the only one that he drank, (?) according to his testimony, had the effect of muddling his ideas.

President Cleveland will not listen to the importunities of office seekers. All applications must be heard by heads of departments.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Commissioners court convened on Monday, week before last, and continued during the greater part of the week.

Gill Helmer this week returned to the West to look after his Dakota patch and other western interests. They say Gill has a soft snap out there.

The backward tendency of the season is not encouraging for a good maple sugar crop and many farmers will not open their camps.

Cal. Houser again announces his withdrawal from the Auburn Republican. As this occurs periodically we suppose Cal. has his very able editorial farewell address stereotyped for the occasion.

It seems from the following that The Headlight is not the only newspaper in the libel business: Henry W. Moore, managing editor of the St. Louis Dispatch, was put on trial in the court of criminal correction at St. Louis, Missouri, on the 6th, for criminal libel. The Dispatch racket also grew out of a financial difficulty.

Congress adjourned on the 5th. The closing scenes, culminating in the passage of the bill placing Gen. Grant on the retired list of the army, were exciting in the extreme. The bill went thro' with a rush and a hurrah. There will be no extra session of congress.

The editor of the Press tries to be funny by allusion to a Standard Oil Pipe Line running into Washington during the inauguration for liquid purposes, a fanciful creation of his fertile brain. The freshness of the gullible editor of the Press concern is like a spring daisy when we reflect on the bacchanalian revels at the White House under the Grant and Arthur regimes.

The "Old Peoples' Mutual Benefit Society's of Elkhart, Ind., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is working up a large membership in this section. The Old Peoples' Mutual was organized under the Act approved March, 9th, 1883, and is rapidly gaining public confidence for strict integrity and the faithful performance of its obligations. Its plan is simple and a membership costs but a small outlay of money compared to the older insurance companies. Each person joining will be required to pay in advance a membership fee as follows: For each policy for $1,000, ($10) and for each additional $1,000, ($10), the limit being $4,000. Any person, male or female, between 60 or 65 years of age, of sound mind and body and in good health may become a member of this society by making application according to the prescribed form furnished by the society. Assessments are determined by the age at time of insuring and remain the same during the continuance of the certificate. Mr. John Beights is the local agent of the society and he will be pleased to attend to all applications for membership. His address is Corunna, Ind.

A flood is imminent if the thaw comes on us speedily. Toledo is menaced by the ice gorge in the Maumee river.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The inaugural celebration cost $50,000.

Four hundred coal miners on a strike at Staunton, Illinois.

Monroe, Mich., and the railroads will unite in blowing up the River Raisin to prevent a blockade.

A man in Troy, N. Y., died recently from the effects of a bite on his little finger made by a pet cat.

Ten thousand miners are on a strike in the Pittsburg district. A bitter contest is predicted.

At Jackson, Michigan, Saturday, James Murphy dropped dead in a saloon after taking a drink of whisky.

The oath of office was administered Saturday to the members of President Cleveland's cabinet. The several secretaries have actively entered upon their duties.

It is probable that an extra session of the Indiana legislature will be called by the governor, the appropriation bills not having been passed before adjournment, which was effected by the state constitution Saturday.

The strike on the Missouri and Texas Pacific railroad (Wabash system) continues and travel is demoralized, in many cases only mail cars being allowed to run. One hundred and fifty officers and men of the Missouri State militia have gone to Sedalia to aid in repressing the trouble.

It was a long time to wait, but we got there.

The Republican party was dethroned and hurled from power for the same reason that Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed.

President Cleveland was sworn on the Bible that his mother gave him when he left home a boy to seek his fortune in the world.

There was great rejoicing by Democrats last Wednesday, in many towns and cities, over the inauguration of a Democratic President.

The Oklahoma boomers who have stood on the border of the coveted land waiting for the coming of March 5 may as well disperse. President Cleveland has spoken in no uncertain language.

The new administration starts off well. Democrats are delighted and even republicans are pleased. The only unhappy persons are a few howling Blaine editors who expected foreign missions, and the Mormons.

Secretary of Interior Lamar tendered the appointment of Commissioner of Pensions to Gen. J. C. Black, of Illinois, a brave soldier of the union army, and he has accepted the same. The appointment was made at the suggestion and by the advice of President Cleveland and is classed as the eight portfolio under the administration. The appointment is received with general satisfaction.

Those who were fortunate enough to see the inauguration say it was one of the grandest affairs of the kind ever seen in this country. A grand outpouring of the people filled Washington to the utmost and the larger portion who remained away were absent in body but were present in spirit.

The Kendallville Standard's Corunna correspondent says "Nusbaum sued the editor of The Headlight for malicious libel." If the writer had simply reversed the sentence quoted above and said, "Nusbaum maliciously sued the editor of The Headlight for libel," the statement would read more correctly, although the motive that prompted the suit was twofold. We don't know who the ass-ite scribbler of the Standard is, and we care less, but we presume he has a Headlight bullet-hole somewhere in his anatomy, which will account for his lop-sided view of the matter. P. S.—How does the verdict strike you?

The incoming president is quoted as paying the outgoing president a very high compliment in these words: "I shall be satisfied if at the close of my administration, I retire with the respect and good will of my countrymen, north and south, in the degree accorded President Arthur."

Auburn Courier: Work is going on at a lively rate. The grand jury is kept busy with various cases, and many of the boys, and other ones too, have been called up to answer to various charges. These include gambling, betting on elections and similar offences. Leb Anderson, of Waterloo, was fined for betting on the election, but for some cause we do not understand, the man who bet with him got off. Archie Sinclair of the same place, was let off on a similar charge, although he had made a bet of $2. Charley Beugnot, of this place, was assessed a fine for the same purpose. Wm. Till was fined $1 for malicious trespass. In the case against W. S. Maxwell for cruelty to animals, he was found not guilty. State vs. Nusbaum for assault and battery, was dismissed, and in the case of state vs. Loveland for libel, he was adjudged not guilty. The case against the Bowlby boys was dismissed, as it will remain as found in justice's court. D. Slippey was sent up two years for forgery. Isalene League was divorced from Patrick League. Mary, from James H. Mills. The Rogers drain has a meeting of Drainage Commissioners in Garrett, March 9, and the Rowley drain has a meeting at his house, April 14. [illegible] Frances E. Drew was divorced from Geo. H. Drew, and the Brandaberry case is now being tried.

Senator Riddleberger, the Virginia readjuster, showed his teeth when President Cleveland submitted his message to the senate for cabinet confirmation by refusing to vote for Bayard, for Secretary of State, alleging that he was too much of an Englishman. Mr. Bayard having denounced the dynamiters in a set of resolutions some time ago no doubt was the prime cause of Mr. Riddleberger's opposition. After a brief halt in the proceedings the Virginia kicker submitted and the business proceeded without further interruption. The discourteous treatment of the President by the Virginia apologist of dynamiters and vitoral throwers, a thing unheard of ever before in the annals of an incoming administration, has brought upon him the contempt of the entire senate and the whole country.

The Grant retirement bill meets the universal approval of the whole country.

Tom Kinney and Ed. Hamman contemplate taking a trip to Southern California in the near future.

If it be true that the Germans hauled down the British flag in the Cameroons territory and hoisted the German flag in its stead, Germany will have to apologize or fight.

M. M Pommeroy has removed his United States Democrat newspaper office from New York to Washington, D. C. We have received the initial number of The Democrat, and it is as spicy and brilliant as ever.

The report comes from Washington that ex Senator McDonald will be offered the mission to Germany or Russia. Ex Senator Thurman is also mentioned as minister at either Paris or London. Carl Schurz is also suggested for the Berlin mission.

Gen. Grant's condition is still reported precarious, and he is said to be afflicted with a complication of troubles. Rev. Dr. Newman, now in California, at the General's request has been urged to visit him as soon as possible.

Society at Washington has been startled by the revolution President Cleveland has made in the White House. "Simplicity" seems to be his motto. The household rises about 6; breakfast at 9, or a little before, lunch at 1 P. M. and dine at 6 o'clock. By 10 o'clock all is quiet and peaceful about the premises.

There may be a good many office seekers at Washington now, but they are not so numerous nor so clamorous as they were when Garfield became president, when there was only a change of one Republican administration to another. Garfield was overwhelmed with office beggars and the row over the offices developed extraordinary bitterness.

With El Mahdi and the kamein destroying English soldiers in Egypt, France overhauling English vessels in Chinese ports, Russia preparing to make war on the English in Afghanistan, the Irish dynamiters threatening to blow England into the sea, and even Manitoba talking of seceding, Queen Victoria's reign is naturally supposed to be one of peace and prosperity.

Speaking of the existing great strike on the Wabash road, the Chicago News says:

No wonder they strike. The managers of the Gould system of railways, besides proposing to reduce the wages of good mechanics to $1.80 per day, are in arrears to their employes over two months. Of course, under these circumstances, the actual wages paid these men does not amount to over 75 cents per day, even if it does reach this miserable pittance. Under the circumstances, it is a matter of wonder how these people have been able to obtain sufficient means to support their families. That the striking employes have the sympathy of the people residing on all these lines goes without saying.

The wheat market is looking up. Yesterday wheat sold in this market at 81c.; oats at 31½c.; butter, 13c., and eggs, 18c.

Professor Wiggins, the weather prophet, has been moved to utter another prophecy, undismayed by the utter failure of his previous predictions to come to pass. Referring to the great storm which he has predicted will take place on the 18th inst., Professor Wiggins states that it will be mainly an Atlantic storm, but will be as heavy in the North as in the South Atlantic. Its main force will be on the meridian of London, but it will be there thirty-six hours before it will reach America. He hopes no vessels bearing troops to the Soudan will be out in it, especially in the Bay of Biscay. He says that when the storm strikes this continent it will rise and will not be felt very heavily. The storm will be accompanied by earthquakes, which, however, will only be slightly felt on this side of the Atlantic. They will appear much stronger in Western Europe. The earth, he says, has been passing through a serious crisis the last three years, on account of two of the greatest planets in the solar system moving so near to the sun. He claims to have predicted all the heaviest earthquakes that have occurred since 1842.

Camping Out.

We had camped out often enough to have the rough edge of our desire for such dissipation worn off. We knew that camping out meant a saddle for a pillow, for a bed "the yielding earth" that always develops extraordinary solidity and sharp-cornered stones during the night; for a covering "the star-besprinkled dome of night" and an old horse-blanket full of holes. We knew that it also meant getting up at about midnight, untangling your horse from the rope wound all around his legs; turning out again at 2 a. m. and prowling around in the dark looking for wood to renew the fire and keep from freezing to death. It meant getting ants in your ears, creeping things up your trousers legs, and finally getting up at daybreak sore and bruised, shivering over a camp-fire, getting smoke in your eyes, overturning the coffee-pot and getting cussed by all the rest of the party.—Texas Siftings.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Detroit Free Press: A lady in Washington has been commented upon this winter for having "nothing to wear." By this they did not mean that she was "in full dress" —below the waist—after Washington style, but that she wore the same pink gown at every reception. "Here comes the lady in pink," Mrs Blaine is said to have remarked with a slight sneer; to which the lady in pink returned: "Mrs. Blaine, when my husband has been as successful in office as long as yours, I shall have more dresses than the one pink dress." Whereupon Mrs. Blaine became "the lady in scarlet."

New York Herald (Ind.): President Cleveland's address is a document that every citizen should ponder for himself. Many good bits of common sense and sound political philosophy are scattered through it, and as the democrats are now to try their hands at the wheel in giving practical effect to those views because the people wanted it, would it not be well for the republicans to heed the President's appeal and sacrifice their spleen to the patriotic thought that whatever party is best for the country is at least best for us all, and that it is at least time for an experimental change?

Washington Letter: The White house covers about one-third of an acre and it has cost up to the present time about $2,000,000. It is modeled after a castle in Dublin, and the architect, who was a South Carolina man named Hoban, got $500 for drawing the plans. When it was first built, away back in the nineties, it cost $300,000, but the British burnt out its insides and its cost has since added to that sum about $1,700,000. In it all of the Presidents since Washington have lived, and each has added to its beauties and its expenses. I think it was John Quincy Adams who bought the first billiard table which was used in it. But in John Adams' time it was only half furnished, and Abagail Adams used to dry her clothes in the big east room. Year by year, however, the furnishing has gone on, until now it is a sort of a museum of art and beauty.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Not o[n]e did the last republican administration [e]nd its last hours in consummating a steal [o]f one hundred thousand acres of public [l]and for Jay Gould's benefit, but no sooner d[o] new heads of departments get into their [o]ffices than they strike evidences of rascal[ity].

Secretary of the Navy Whitney had [n]ot been in his office thirty minutes when he [w]as asked to sign a draft for five hundred th[ou]sand dollars. Not being in the habit of s[ig]ning away half a million dollars without kn[ow]ing what for or to whom it was to go, [t]he secretary made inquiry and was informed that the amount was to be sent abroad to "pay the naval service." The secretary remarked that he guessed the naval service could wait a few days until he could look into the matter.

He looked into it and learned that a few of New York bankers had a contract for handling money for the navy department, paying the secretary of the navy four per cent on balances and charging five per cent when the balance was on the other side. Among the inquiries that Mr. Whitney will probably make is one as to where the interest on balances has gone—whether into republican campaign funds or the government treasury. It was thought strange by him that if a $500,000 draft was necessary for the naval service abroad Secretary Chandler had not attended to it before going out of office.

It was also developed that one of the chiefs of a naval bureau had been paid $12,000 for some kind of a sweltering machine and a court-martial will be called to inquire into the matter. It also seems that Ben Butler was paid $28,000 or $50,000 for some kind of a patent to preserve wood, but what became of the patent or why it was worth so much money nobody seems to know, and there is a good deal of suspicion that much of it was used to keep the republicans party in power. Secretary Whitney will investigate these things, and will doubtless discover more and more rottenness the deeper he digs.

That is what the people want. They have waited long for the light to be let in on the dark places of republican administration. Now the time has come. Let the light [in]

The "Decoration" Delusion.

The amount of variety and rubbish that people will put into their houses nowadays is marvelous. To the rich folk, whose idea of "decoration" is to make their rooms look like a Fifth street shop at Christmas time, the waste of money upon tasteless ornaments does not matter. If they like to buy china roses and brass trays and such like extravagances there is no harm done, except that they might make better use of their money. But one does feel some compassion for the modest people who are trying to "make home beautiful" by the aid of cheap upholsterers and some hack-writer's hand-book, and waste not only their money but their time on silly placques and velvet frames and painted satin abominations that give their nice little rooms the aspect of a fancy fair.

These things, too, it may be said, are harmless. So they would be if the poor little people invented them for themselves and put on no more airs about them than their mothers did about their fancy-work. The trouble is that the young women are deluded into the belief that all this silly stuff is "art work"—heaven forgive them!

One can have pity for these young people, but only indignation for the charlatans who mislead them with their pretentious clatter about "art." An outline of a teapot copied with transfer-paper upon linen and stitched over with crewels is called "art needle-work." It is a very nice and harmless way to ornament a napkin, but it has no more art than a book-mark worked in zephyr upon perforated card-board, though upon this the "art-worker" will look with contempt.—Cincinnati Enquirer

A Canadian Joke.

At the Assize Court Mr. Osler, Q. C., was cross-examining a witness—a clergyman—in a case where a horse had stepped into a hole in a road and thrown its rider. The witness said he could not see a well or hole in the ground when twenty feet away from it.

This led Mr. Osler to remark: "You are looking too much away from the earth to make a good witness in this case."

"It is better to look that way," replied the clergyman.

"Not when you are walking on a holy road," said Mr. Osler, with a smile.—Toronto Mail.

The Coming Age of Intuition.

We hide our best selves, lest we be not understood. Had we more faith in, and less distrust of our fellows, we might often find a comrade in spirit, where now we gaze askance and disconsolate, cherishing our dumbness in an agony of soul.

Each soul as it comes in contact with others is cognizant of a feeling of attraction or repulsion; could we but realize that this subtle, yet potent, influence, that speaks to our inner consciousness, is the witness that giveth the soul's true measurement of its environments, we would lean upon its councils in all trustfulness, rather than upon the admonition that comes from the intellect alone. But excessively worldly wisdom, based upon a narrow circle of so-called facts, tends to warn us continually against our better selves. Our intuition is, I apprehend, our reason blossomed out, and too long has this higher power been subject to a lower; too long has our ideal been snubbed by the so-called real.

The coming age is one of intuition. Therein will woman assume something of her natural prerogative, reigning queen among those who have styled themselves her lord. Our poets, philosophers, seers and sages have each in their turn been styled fools and maniacs, because, forsooth, their mental processes were not so cumbersome as that of their fellows. But mankind will ever cultivate and cherish whatsoever is held in high esteem and valued most among their fellow men.

Says Lewes: "Intuition is the clear vision of relations." And again: "All great discoveries were seen intuitively long before it was possible to exhibit the correctness of their ground or disentangle the involved data." When, therefore, these truths shall be fully accepted in the lives of men; when the intuitive faculties shall be trusted, honored and valued, not only for their beauty but for their utility, then will they be cultivated; and mothers will feel honored in handing down to their sons an inheritance heretofore despised; for, "like father like son," is not half so true as "like mother like son." And woman from time immemorial has been sneered at as illogical, because of the superiority of her intuition; but the time is near at hand when this item in the category of heredity will be thought of paramount importance—at least, to the cultivation of a certain variety of fantailed pigeons!

MONDAY.....MARCH 30, 1886

At Rest.

[Communicated.]

Died at Spencerville, in this county, February 25, 1886, Samuel Rudolph Shutt, of brain fever, aged six years and ten days, the only child of Samuel S. Shutt.

For one so young this little boy had manifested many noble qualities seldom exhibited in one of his tender years. He was manly, generous, kind, truthful, tender and warm in his affections, and respectful and considerate to his comrades. To such a degree were these qualities exhibited that he became a favorite and friend of all, regardless of age or surroundings. Too young to have had the benefit of the public schools, he almost without assistance had advanced himself in his studies, creditable to one of greater years.

In this sad affliction, the parents who had so properly and tenderly centered all their affection and love upon their son, do have, and are entitled to the deepest sympathy and condolence of all who knew them. Hitherto their lives, energies, efforts and hopes for coming years were for, and clustered around the life and well-being and society of their little boy; but now all to them is apparently gone, their energies of no avail, and their life's hopes blasted—truly, terribly true is their bereavement sad.

The funeral services were held at the Lutheran church on the 27th, the Rev. Mr. Baker officiating, and the remains were followed by a large concourse of citizens and friends to the beautiful cemetery near the village, there to remain and mingle with the "clods of the valley" until time shall be no more.

Commissioners' Court.

[Auburn Courier, 12th.]

All were present last week. O. H. Wildney, Joseph Sewell and Henry Probst. The usual routine of work made a busy week. George Beerer, of Butler, Wm. Groscup, of Auburn, and Geo. Beeler, of Garrett, received license to sell liquor. The reports of the following ditches were received and established: The A. Boyer ditch, A. Krabill ditch, the Daniel Baker, the L. D. Haynes, the J. C. Cramer, the W. H. Speer, the J. N. Clark, the Wesley Jackman, the Amos Rakestraw and the Joe Rechtenwalt ditch. Petitions for drains: J. F. Delong, Richland; viewers, C. Rugmen, H. Harvey and W. Merica; to meet at source March 22. The John Dowend ditch; viewers, G. Helmuth, J. Ervin and Sollenberger; meet at source of ditch April 1. Joseph Hoover, Richland, ditch; viewers, G. I. Patterson, D. Thomas and A. J. Balliet; meet at source April 6. Harvey Moody ditch in Keyser; viewers, G. Helmuth, Joseph Leeson, Joseph Haag; meet at source April 5. Wm. Fountain ditch, a joint drain for DeKalb and Noble; viewers, Wm. Merica, Frederick Smith and Milton Clark; meet at source April 2. New viewers were appointed for the J. C. Cramer ditch; W. W. Simonton, Moses Ashelman and J. Walborn. Petition for highway in Newville township, viewers appointed were: E. J. Boyle, J. Henderson, J. B. White; meet at office of G. W. Woodcox, in St. Joe, March 28. On the Franklin Ocker change of Highway in same township, viewers are W. L. Blair, C. S. Story, A. J. Mason; meet at office of A. J. Sloe, in Butler, March 28. Viewers for the J. Carnahan highway are Isaac Hague, M. Houston and J. Walborn; meet at and that office April 18. On the George Bryan highway; reviewers, E. R. Shoemaker, Freeman Kelly and F. Gfeller; meet at the office of O. P. Smith, in Waterloo, March 21. The Commissioners visited the poor farm Tuesday of this week and adjourned Wednesday. They found the allowances for the quarter just past were much lighter than usual.

Court Items.

[Auburn Courier, 12th.]

The court has been very busy for the last week. A large number of cases have been disposed of, in spite of the time taken by the Brandaberry case. The case was quite long, but was decided against the plaintiff. For betting on election, Arthur Aldrich, John Jenkins, Wm. Kennedy, Aug. Stutz, T. H. Tomlinson, G. H. Yeshera, D. S. Oner, Charlie Wood and Daniel Tomlinson were fined each $5. W. H. Kiblinger and Wm McIntyre will fight the cases against them for betting, and they will come up next term. J. W. Boyle was assessed $1 for provoking assault and W. L. Penfield for $5 for the assault mentioned last week. Loda Randall was divorced from W. A. Randall. The matter of the Rogers drain comes up next term of court, as does also the J. D. Rowly drain case. John Ward and Susan Stockly have been declared to be now of sound mind. The case Lockwood vs. A. S. Leas estate was tried with Judge Morris on the bench, and was given to the jury Wednesday; result not yet known. We begin to think the election bet cases are taking a more sensible turn and we believe that since the matter has begun the Prosecutor will see that all are served alike, regardless of politics of "previous condition of servitude."

BASE-BALLS.

The Making of the Spheres Used in the National Game.

"Base-balls are like human beings—you never know what's in them until you cut them open," said a base-ball manufacturer to a Philadelphia reporter, as he placed a ball before a circular saw, and, after some little trouble, halved it. "There! What do you think of that? A great deal of science and hard work is required in the manufacture of balls. For instance, the ball is patented. In the center is a round piece of the best Para gum. Then there is the best stocking-yarn. This is stretched first by machinery to its utmost tension. Then it is wound by hand so tight that, as you see, it resembles one solid piece of material. The winding is done by single strands at a time. This makes it more compact. A round of white yarn is now put in, and the whole covered with a rubber plastic cement. When this becomes hard it preserves the spherical shape of the ball, and prevents the inside from shifting when the ball is struck. You have seen some balls knocked egg-shaped the first blow they are struck. Well, with this cement covering that is impossible. Then comes more yarn, and finally the cover. The covering for all the good balls is made of horse-hide. Long experience has shown this to be the best. Cow or goat-skin will become wrinkled and wear loose. Why, there is as much change in the making of base-balls in the last ten years as there is in the game itself. The sewing on of the covers is done by hand, and the thread used is catgut." No one man makes a ball complete. One person becomes proficient in the first winding, then some one else takes it; another man will fit the cover, but there are very few of the workmen who become proficient in the art of sewing the cover. A dozen men in the course of a day will turn out about twenty-five dozen first-class balls, and as a rule they make good wages. Some manufacturers put carpet list in the balls, but can easily be detected when the batting begins, because the ball soon loses its shape. Of course, for the cheap balls, such as the boys begin with, not so much care is exercised in the manufacture. They are made in cups, which revolve by fast-moving machinery. The insides are made up of scraps of leather and rubber, and then carpet listing is wound around the ball. It takes a man about ten minutes to turn one of these out complete. The professional ball weighs from five to five and a half ounces and is nine and a quarter inches in circumference. It is calculated that about 5,000,000 base-balls are made each year, and these are not extravagant figures when it is considered that upon every vacant lot in the large cities and upon every village green in the country there are crowds of men and boys banging away at the ball whenever the weather permits. And yet people say the national game is dying out.

A Light-House Keeper's Life.

The keepers of the light-houses lead, as a rule, very monotonous lives. Their duties are to see that the lights are carefully trimmed and cleaned every day, and to repeat this operation as many times during the day as the case may require. In stormy weather the lights must be trimmed more frequently than in fine weather. Some of the smaller lights have but one keeper each. He is expected to sit up till 11 o'clock at night, in which case, if the weather is good and the light is working properly, he is allowed to lie down for three or four hours' rest. After examining the light at about 3 o'clock in the morning he must be up and extinguish the light. At 10 o'clock he is expected to begin cleaning up the light and putting things in order for the ensuing night. In some of the large light-houses four keepers are employed. When there is more than o keeper the men divide into watches, and at least one of them is always on duty during the night. When the light-house is on some reef, surrounded by deep water, the lonely keepers are often worried with a fancy that the foundations are crumbling beneath them. This is more apt to be the case during the prevalence of a heavy storm, when the furious gusts of wind make the tower seem to rock on its foundations. The men can occasionally obtain a few days, leave of absence. The keepers are paid in proportion to the importance of their lights and the amount of labor required. Their wages range from $25 per month upward, and they are also supplied with food.—New York Times.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

St. Patrick's day was celebrated in America by all true Irishmen who revere the memory of the great patron saint.

On Monday, 16th, the eclipse of the sun occurred, and the day being bright and clear in this locality, the eclpse was favorable for observations by the smoked glass process.

Our Waterloo correspondent has something to say this week respecting the postoffice controversy in that bailiwick. It seems that the present amiable rivalry over this coveted slice of official cake is concentrated in two aspirants, viz: General Blair and Ab. Kelly. While it is conceded that the General proved himself a soldier of the line by doing considerable energetic campaign work on the stump, the fact must not be overlooked that Ab. at least "fessed up" in handsome style at the Waterloo jollification over our grand victory. But the longest pole brings down the persimmons.

The Chicago Herald puts it as follows: "The republican press in this country has been made strong by the party taking care of its rural editors. There has been a premium on printing republican newspapers and they have multiplied and prospered. Democratic weeklies have had great difficulty in maintaining themselves. With no patronage of any kind they have dwindled in numbers until now there are throughout the west three republican weeklies to one democrat. Wherever there is a postoffice paying anything there is a republican weekly. The assistance of this great mass of newspapers has been very beneficial to the party. They have been powerful in circulating campaign material and in arousing public interest. In return they have become rich by office and patronage while their democratic competitors have starved. If the democratic party would continue in power it must do something toward building up its rural press. Let the democrats try it."

The Fort Wayne Journal advocates in strong terms the candidacy of Harry Francis for an appointment as a Mississippi River Commissioner, and in doing so it pays this high compliment to the democratic press of Indiana:

"Now that the democrats are in power it should be their aim to strengthen the party press by throwing as much of the patronage to newspaper men as would be practicable and wise. Indiana is not surpassed by any State in the Union in the efficiency and ability of her democratic country press, to which fact, more than to any other cause can be attributed the grand victory won in this State last November. This is an important fact that the present administration cannot well afford to overlook. It is but simple justice that this should be done, besides the best interests of the party demand it, for a proper recognition of the press would add materially to its present proficiency. It would instill new life and zeal into the educators and teachers of democratic philosophy which would result in a wholesome and vigorous growth of the party. The time to prepare for war is in time of peace; therefore let the party guns (the newspapers) be put in position for active and effectual duty. The party press stood by the party through a quarter of a century of adversity and defeat, without reward or favor, but came up smiling each successive campaign as pert and saucy as ever, always ready to stake reputation and time, and now that the victory, for which both party and press so assiduously labored for twenty-five years, has been won, the party cannot afford to desert the press."

The ★ Headlight

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

Entered at the Postoffice in Corunna, Indiana, as Second-class matter.

MONDAY.....MARCH 30, 1885

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

As the result of Rev. Lilly's labors at the late revival meetings in this place, 20 new members have been added to the U. B. church.

The severity of the past winter will have a disastrous effect upon the great fruit growing country of the Lake Erie Islands and the lake region. The Toledo Evening Post says: Reports indicate that the coming fruit crop will be almost a total failure. The Cleveland Plain Dealer has ascertained that in Sandusky and Island region fruits will experience almost a total famine, and small fruits are said to be killed throughout the entire lake region. The interior of the state reports better prospects.

Some of the boys in town have been putting in their time this winter where it will do the most good. Among the industrious ones we notice Frank Mercer, Al. Williamson, Tommy Reynolds and Ed. Wright who, together have harvested nearly 300 cords of wood for next winter's use.

On the 17th the Cleveland Plain Dealer came out with its promised morning edition, and will hereafter be enabled to supply a long felt want of the Northern Ohio democracy, and in fact of the state at large, viz: by giving them a live, true-blue aggressive and progressive democratic morning daily, an index of which we find in the initial number before us. By a consolidation of the three morning dailies of Cleveland, the Herald, Leader and Plain Dealer, the latter secures the presses, type and good will of the former and has removed into the old Herald building. The evening edition will be continued as usual. The democracy should now put their shoulder to the wheel and give their favorite organ a hearty support.

The following hint if heeded might save those desiring government positions much vexation and trouble: President Cleveland says he will not be governed, in the matter of appointments, by the length of the petition of the applicant. There is nothing easier in this country to procure than names to a petition of any kind. Most of people sign petitions without reading them, or just because a friend invites him to write his name. The President says there are better methods of arriving at the fitness of a man for a place than judging by the number of names he can procure.

The Headlight is indebted to Hon. D. D. Moody for a copy of the report of the special committee appointed by the House of Representatives to investigate the hospitals for the insane, of which Mr. Moody is chairman. The report is quite elaborate, covering seventy-one pages of closely printed matter, and throughout it shows the handiwork of our indefatigable representative.

In the history of a nation inclined to crazes, probably none has taken such a hold upon people of all classes as that for roller skating. It has reached such importance as to require an organ, "The Rink and the Roller," which is said to have a very general circulation

The magnitude of the business and the great demand for skates is probably best shown by the number of the treacherous little playthings which are manufactured. In Richmond, Ind., nineteen factories employing upwards of a thousand men are engaged in the manufacture, while in many other places throughout the country the business is carried on to a greater or less extent. Boxwood, from which the rollers are made, has greatly increased in price, and one skate factory, it is said, has just imported 180 tons of it from Turkey. The durability of the material is illustrated by the fact that a roller is capable of traveling twenty thousand miles before it is worn out. There are in New York two bureaus or agencies for the engagement of star skaters, some of whom make a great deal of money. The female skaters, of whom there are many, travel with a skating maid and a costumer, and some few have elegant outfits. Miss La Fave, a Boston skatress, is said to be the happy possessor of a dress which cost $1,000, and it's not as extensive as it might be by any means.

Our southern tourists, Messrs. Frank McCullough and Ed. Brumback, returned last week after a two weeks' sojourn in the land of cotton and corn. The boys report a pleasant trip but Frank says southern beauties are at a discount when compared to hoosier girls.

Merchant Tailoring.

KENDALLVILLE, INDIANA.

"ONLY ONE TREATMENT ON ALL DAYS, and THAT THE FAIREST."

THE ENCOURAGEMENT we received the past year from the best trade of the and adjoining counties for the superior qualities, style and make of our goods, convinces us that the trade requires a better class of clothing than formerly. Having that aim in mind, we have for the spring trade even improved on our styles, make and trimming, besides introducing such novelties as no other house can equal, and while it is our aim to introduce to the trade a superior class of goods, we also keep in mind that prices must be such as to meet the favor of all.

We are fresh in the field with the handsomest, complete and most attractive line of spring piece goods, consisting of the very latest importations for Suitings, Coatings and Pantings.

Employing none but skilled and proficient mechanics, we can guarantee better fitting garments than ever.

Spring Style Hats

Are already on exhibition at our store. Call and see the latest novelties.

Thanking our patrons for past favors, we hope to merit an increased continuance of the same.

"Uncle Henry's" faithful and patient jackasses will now get a rest.

The Auburnites rejoice over the possession of a $3,500 fire engine, recently purchased by order of the town council.

Our esteemed but somewhat disgruntled friend, "Lawyer" Hoffman of the DeKalb county bar, is just now sitting out on the back steps of his office meditating upon the agonizing subject, "How it Feels to be Pulverized by a Pile-Driver."

President Cleveland has appointed ex-senator Pendleton, of Ohio, Minister to Germany. The editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer will now proceed to kick himself into kingdom come.

The Langham hotel, the most popular resort of the European plan in Chicago, burned down last Sunday evening and five or six lives were lost in the conflagration.

General L. J. Blair, who has been at Washington since the inauguration, returned home last week with $2,500 pension money and with a pretty fair prospect of the Waterloo postoffice being added to his good fortune in the near future. Now the fur will fly.

Sandusky Register: One fish firm in this city has paid over $500 for fish caught thro' the ice with hook and line during the present season.

Prof. Kibbie, for several years principal of the Kendallville schools and a leader in the Methodist church, who sometimes filled the pulpit in the absence of the regular pastor, is in disgrace and has skipped the country leaving a family in destitute circumstances and broken hearted. To be plain about it the Prof. became too intimate with some of his lady pupils and hence these tears.

T. F. Jordan, ex-Trustee of Richland, but for two years past engaged as bridge builder on the B. & O. railroad with headquarters at Hicksville, Ohio, was in town Tuesday and made The Headlight office a pleasant call. Tom, while a resident of Richland, took an active part in local politics, and as a leader in the democratic procession made things hum. As a matter of course, in common with all democrats, he is highly pleased over the election of a democratic President, and he thinks we have got there to stay.

A large number of democrats throughout the state favor the renomination of Governor Hoadly, of Ohio, for a second term.

The civil damage suit of the editor of The Headlight against W. H. Nusbaum, which was carried from the Steuben court to Noble on a second change of venue, and set for trial at the present term of the same, was satisfactorily adjusted through our attorneys, Messrs. Penfield & Shaffer, on last Monday, the defense complying with all demands stipulated in the terms of settlement, The Headlight adhering to an old time-honored custom of journalism, as iron-clad and uncompromising as the famous recapitulatory pronunciamento of the illustrious hero of Appatomax, "Unconditional Surrender."

This scores a second victory for The Headlight. Now that our enemies have been knocked out of time in the second round we presume that they have got enough of the racket. If not, and there are any lame ducks wobbling around itching for another whack at us, we would say to such that we are always prepared to accommodate customers.

The result points a moral, in that it will undoubtedly convince a certain class of corn-crackers whose chief recommend to public notice is a swelled head mounted with adamantine cheek, that they are very small factors in the world's great busy hive of humanity.

We are inclined to be charitable and have no desire to pursue Nusbaum into blissful retirement, but by way of a parting admonition we respectfully suggest that if he still feels a yearning ambition to blossom and ripen and shine as a cross-road politician, that the road to fame will be a hard road to travel if sought by antagonizing the local newspaper.

The Hillsdale Road Cart is a new and novel vehicle which will soon be introduced in this county by O. M. Folger, of Auburn, who has the exclusive right to sell the same. The Hillsdale Cart possesses many improvements on the old style of road cart and is just the thing on the road for single driving. The vehicle can be seen by calling on Mr. Folger at the Tarney ment market stand in Auburn.

Spring term of village school commenced last Monday, the former teachers, Mr. John Stahl as principal, and Miss Mary Topping as assistant, being retained for the ensuing term.

Wm. M. Clements, general superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has resigned.

THE APRIL MAGAZINES.

THE APRIL CENTURY.

In the April number of THE CENTURY Admiral David D. Porter contributes to the War Series a striking paper on "The Opening of the Lower Mississippi." While Admiral Farragut led the men-of-war past the New Orleans forts, Porter paved the way for and supported the attack with the Mortar-fleet. At the beginning of his paper Admiral Porter speaks of the New Orleans Campaign as "the most important event of the War of the Rebellion, with the exception of the fall of Richmond." He writes from a knowledge of the secret history of the campaign and has made graphic descriptions of the many stirring incidents which befell the fleet in its memorable battle with Forts Jackson and St. Philip. Accompanying the article are portraits of Admiral Farragut, Admiral Porter, Captain Theodorus Bailey, General Butler, who was in command of the land forces, General Lovell, the Confederate commander, and other leading participants in the conflict. Besides the portraits there are more than twenty-five maps plans and pictures of incidents, most of the latter being after designs by Admiral Porter. George W. Cable, in a brief article, gives a spirited description, from personal observation, of New Orleans before the Capture."

The fiction of the number includes the sixth part of "The Rise of Silas Lapham," by Mr. Howells, the third part of "The Bostonians," by Henry James, and a humorous short story by Colonel Richard Malcolm Johnson, entitled "The Meditations of Mr. Archie Kittrell" accompanied by character-sketches by L. W. Kemble.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR APRIL.

opens with a frontispiece illustration, by W. St. John Harper, of "The Gilded Boy," a true story of a Florentine pageant in 1469, indeed the romance of history forms a prominent feature of this number. In the "Historic Girls" series E. S. Brooks tells the story of the girlhood of "Zenobia of Palmyra," as based on information recently brought to light by Eastern school rs, which is timely, in so far as it shows a presentiment of the events of to-day—a mighty European power humbled and held at bay by the Arabs of many centuries ago. Coming to more modern days, there is a sketch of Bach, which forms the first of a series of brief biographies, by Agatha Tunis, of the great musicians "From Bach to Wagner."

What will greatly interest many readers is the announcement of the names of the winners in the prize-story contest for girls.

The April number is as [illegible] a pleasant mid-Lenten indulgence. The number is an excellent one, embellished by a suggestive frontispiece, "At Prayer," and many other attractions of the usual character. A very winning story, called "Beauty's Child," opens in this number and "Janie" is brought to a conclusion. Next month we are to have from Gertrude's new story by Christian Reid, called "An Instrument of Separation," which promises to be very interesting. Published by J. H. Houlenbeck & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Several petitions for postoffice appointments come from the wives of recent postmasters. The wives say that, while their husbands are republicans and should be removed, they are democrats and should be appointed. Still there are people who think they were not intended by nature for political officers.

MONDAY.....MARCH 30, 1885

"The President," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "has given the Senate to understand that he can get along without it after this week. What appointments he has to make that it is essential the Senate should concern itself about will be sent in within the next few days.

The adjournment of the Senate will not necessarily put an end to the making of appointments. The President can appoint just as well when the Senate is not in session as when it is. Wherever vacancies occur the President can fill them and wait until the Senate meets to pass upon them, and in the meantime the officers so appointed will enter upon and discharge their duties.

If the President sees fit to remove officer for cause that seems sufficient to him, he can remove him and appoint some one in his stead. The Senate may or may not confirm the appointment, but the old officer cannot have his place again in any event.

The President will probably proceed slowly in making appointments, as he has done hitherto, but the people are satisfied that whether he moves slowly or swiftly in the matter he will act with wisdom. The Democrats are entirely satisfied with the situation. The change will proceed quietly and there will be none of the dissensions that rent the Republican party four years ago."

General Graham expects to fight Osman Digna to-day. The previous engagements show that the Arabs are desperate fighters although poorly armed and equipped. Osman Digna is said to have twenty-five thousand men at Tamai, where General Graham expects to give him battle.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette says the democracy moves to slow and solemn music. Perhaps that's because the republicans are doing the fiddling.

His wife also received a beautiful nut cracker and picks. Everybody present enjoyed themselves.

George K. Otis, of Hicksville, Ohio, was in Garrett Tuesday last with blood in his eye. It seems that Mr. Otis having some business in Garrett in a land trade, came for the purpose of adjusting some difficulty in the matter, and brought a lady with him by the name of Mamie Cowhie expecting to use her evidence in the matter. He went to the DeKalb house and registered in their names, Mr. Otis occupying room 9 and Miss Cowhie room 7. Now what George is mad about is that some son of a quill-driver of Hicksville being bent on taking George's scalp, reports to some Toledo paper that George and Miss Cowhie occupied room 7 in conjunction. George demurs and is now hot on the trail of his traducer. You may look for seven kinds of hair darkening the heavens when George overtakes his man.

We notice that some of the papers in the district are disposed to unfairly criticise Judge McBride for prosecutions that have been brought before him for violations of the statute in betting on elections, and their remarks would impress the unsophisticated reader with the idea that Judge McBride is running the circuit court of the 35th judicial circuit solely in the interest of the republican party and to vent a personal spleen on the now victorious legions of the democracy. The Headlight is about as acute of discernment wherein democratic prerogatives are endangered, as any of its argus-eyed contemporaries, and this talk about unfairness is full of sound and fury and signifies nothing. Our esteemed contemporaries in their blind haste to attribute partisan motives stupidly overlook the real facts and fail to consider that these prosecutions are brought by the grand jury, a power delegated for the finding of indictments through and by warrant of the State's attorney, and not by the Judge on the bench. The Judge is commanded by virtue of his judicial authority to present the law governing such cases to the grand jury, and if he were to do less he would be derelict in the discharge of his sacred obligations as an upright and conscientious jurist. It is not to be expected however that an editor hewn out of the stone age would cross the borders of the present century in pursuit of a progressive idea.

Newspaper Libel.

[Auburn Republican.]

Every now and then we learn of some country paper being sued for libel. The prosecutors in the case are invariably persons who have cut up some monkeyshine and are caught at it by the keen eye of a reporter. The Corunna Headlight, under the management of J. C. Loveland, has just undergone a suit for "libeling" Dr. Nusbaum. Mr. Loveland is very much elated over his success in gaining the suit and writes up the lawyers and jurors with many compliments.

Valued His Rep. at $500.

[LaGrange Democrat.]

The editor of the Corruna "Head-Light" has just won in a lible suit bro't against that paper, by Dr. Neusbaum, formerly of South Milford. The Head-Light said some naughty things about the doctor, which the latter thought worth at least $500, but the jury took a different view of it.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, APRIL 15, 1885.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Toledo Bee: An old voter, in the New York Sun, who boasts that he never voted a democratic ticket in his life, now comes forward proffering his advice, unsought, to President Cleveland. Some folks do possess the unadulterated cheek of a brass statue.

Chicago News: The London newspapers think that if England-Russia come to blows the peace of the world will be broken. Oh, no. Your Uncle Samuel will sit back with his feet on the mantel and sell his corn at $2, and peace will be spread over his features a foot thick.

St. James Gazette: There died lately one of the most unique characters of the French Capital. It was M. Bauer, a very eccentric old gentleman who enjoys the distinction of being, so far as is known, the only tamer of sparrows the world ever produced. The sparrow is a most suspicious little bird, both shy and pugnacious, and is never known to make friends to any extent. But this old gentleman was in the habit every morning of going into the gardens of the Tuileries and feeding the sparrows there. The little birds knew him by sight, and would flock around him, perch upon him, let him catch and handle them and would follow him from place to place. He must have had a mysterious power for he is the only sparrow-tamer upon record.

Chicago News: If Secretary Lamar really means to enforce his edict in relation to the senatorial cattle companies which have so long and impudently squatted upon the Oklahoma territory there is danger that he will get himself disliked in the senate chamber. It is stated that Senator Toller is interested in the Malaly Cattle company, which occupies 564,450 acres of land illegally leased from the Cheyennes and Arapahoes. Senator Ingalls is interested in the Denham company, which occupies 175,000 acres. Senator Plumb is said to be connected with the A. G Evans and L. M. Briggs companies, the former occupying 456,960 acres, the latter 318,720 acres. Yet they must go. In the language of a previous unfortunate, "it is hard." Secretary Lamar will need to look out lest between the officials of his department, who, by his orders, can no longer ride in chaises, and the disgruntled cattle speculators in the senate, he be ground as between the upper and the nether millstone. But for all that the people will praise him as a new broom which starts out uncommonly well.

Detroit Free Press: The Cleveland Leader and Herald thinks France is having "too much protection." "While we believe," it says, "in the doctrine of protection, it is questionable whether it is good policy for any country, incapable of wholly supplying the food necessary to its people, to raise the price by means of excessive duties. * *

* The new tariff can only be designed to enrich the few at the expense of the many." As this is just the design and effect of the tariff in this country, which the Leader and Herald upholds, why should it begrudge France a similar luxury?

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The railroads have learned that public opinion is a powerful arbitrator, more potent in fact than an army of soldiers, and the strikers have learned that, to have its support, they must not only make out a good case, but press it in a strictly law-abiding manner.

Indianapolis Sentinel: We trust that the disposition to give the democratic party "a chance" continues so prevail in impertinent republican circles. The old ship is taking the chances at all events. Every sail is set and her flags are flying. Commodore Cleveland is on deck.

April Showers.

Wild March winds across the moorlands
Swept at their own bitter will;
Wild March winds against the forelands
Waited 'mid wave-crash keen and shrill;
April showers
To the flowers
Whispered lowly 'mid the strife:
"We are coming with warmth and life."

Sliding down the south wind's pinions,
Glimmering 'neath the glimmering skies,
As the tears and smiles of welcome,
Meeting, shine in loving eyes,
April showers,
Soft sweet showers,
Call to hill and glen and plain:
"Spring and we are back again."

And the east wind, black and sullen,
Shrinks before her balmy breach;
Crouches in his gloomy cavern,
Fierce as hate and cold as death.
April showers,
Bright quick showers,
Gem the grasses, feed the buds,
Free the leaflets in the woods.

And the mourner's heavy eyelids
Lift to meet the genial ray;
And the dull, black frost of sorrow
Melts beneath its smile away.
April showers,
Wakening flowers,
Typing God's dear promise given
That hearts laid waste and pure ties riven
Live and love and wait in heaven.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The customary "Easter snow" came along the week preceding Easter Sunday.

Alleged that John B. Stohl, of The South Bend Times and The Ligonier Banner, has the inside track for appointment of Government Printer.

The North Chicago rolling mill, employing eighteen hundred men, will start up in full blast. And so we go along under a democratic administration.

The "Ferret" is exhibiting a patent baby-jumper. Now, in the name of the great horn spoons, what use can the "Ferret" have for such a contrivance?

The old carbuncle continues to vent his gas in the Kendallville Standard, for the want of anything else to do we suppose, but the o. c. is as silent on the newspaper libel business as a soft-water clam in dog-days since we knocked his "pal" out and disbanded the highly perfumed mutual admiration society.

The Chickadee.

The chickadee, or black-capped titmouse, is a very small bird, with the top of the head and throat black, beneath a light ash color and brownish-white on the sides. This bird is universally known; it confines itself chiefly to the woods in summer, and in the winter pays frequent visits to the garden and orchard for certain insects which are abundant in the fruit trees. Prompted by hunger, it sometimes enters our inclosures and picks up crumbs of bread and meat from the ground. These little birds seem more numerous in winter, because hunger renders them more familiar, and the absence of the summer birds and the leafless condition of the trees make them more conspicuous and cause their voices to be more audible in the greater silence that prevails in this season.

We marvel at the power of resisting cold in birds so minute as the chickadees; but they are thickly clad in downy feathers, and constantly in motion during the day. At night they resort to the hollows that contain their nests, where they find warmth and protection; but in the daytime they seem mindless of the severest cold. They seek fatty substances, like other winter birds; and, if a piece of suet be nailed to a tree or post, the chickadees and other small birds will frequently peck from it. This contributes to their animal heat.

The benefit conferred upon agriculture by the chickadees from their consumption of insects is immense. They are exclusively insectivorous, and, being permanent residents, their good work never ceases. Each individual, according to computation, consumes annually nearly 500,000 of insects with their larvæ. This seems to me a moderate calculation. The companions of the chickadee join in the same good work, and are equally useful in proportion to their numbers. The least valuable species as checks to the multiplication of insects are the granivorous birds. The English sparrows, especially, confine their foraging to the little æsthetic mounds that temporarily adorn our streets and roads, and to those æsthetic coverings which are spread upon the inclosures of fanciful people who are especially neat in the management of their lawns.—Wilson Flagg, in the Boston Transcript.

The city of Aspinwall was destroyed by the rebels to prevent the recapture by the Panama government.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

J. L. Lanning, the grocer, has moved his stock into the Mercer building on the north side of the railroad.

A Georgia editor concentrates some ideas thus: "Gold is found in thirty-six counties in this state, silver in three, diamonds in twenty-six, and whisky in all of them, and the last gets away with all the rest."

M. Reynolds started last Wednesday night for Washington Territory. He goes hither to look up some real estate and personal interests in that locality belonging to the estate of his mother lately deceased, and expects to be absent about six weeks.

The death roll of victims to the roller skating craze is on the increase. At Newark, N. J., Josephine Osborn, aged nineteen years, became suddenly dizzy and fell to the floor. Efforts were made to revive her, but these failing a physician was called who pronounced life extinct. The ruling passion is strong in death.

According to the Auburn Republican they have a gambling "joint" in full blast at the county seat and the gambling fraternity are running a high old muck. A tender-foot got hauled in to the tune of $50 and then "squealed" about it.

This is the way the Columbia City Post talks: "This is the way some merchants talk to the printer: Printer—"I can print you 500 note heads and 500 envelopes for $4.60." Merchant—"I can do better than that with Uncle Sam, or at Indianapolis." These fellows never stop to think that the printer can also do better in Ft. Wayne or Indianapolis in purchasing his supplies. If the merchant would go away from town to save a nickle, the printer should go to save dollars. This is tit for tat, and what is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander."

An important change in the time schedule of the Lake Shore road will take place in the near future.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer is authority for the statement that the Lake Shore Railway Company contemplate adding dining cars to the limited fast trains between New York and Chicago.

The rebels down on the isthmus of Panama have burned the city of Aspinwall. The Isthmus is part of the United States of Columbia and the trouble is about the president of that country, whom some of the citizens take an objection to. They have had four presidents there since the beginning of the year, and still the people are not satisfied.

The awnings which have for so long a time hung as it were by a slender thread in front of the old buildings on saloon row, have at the critical moment been dismantled. Now tear up the old dilapidated sidewalks and pedestrianism will have a new lease of safety.

The showing of recent gains in temperance sentiment all over the country, which Miss Willard makes in the Advance, says the Chicago News, is truly a remarkable one. Perhaps the most decided feature of it is the passage of the statute requiring scientific instruction to be given in the public schools concerning the effects of alcohol upon the human system. Even if the practical result of such instruction should not be so great as the ladies expect, the passage of the law in so many states is ample proof of a public sentiment requiring it. Within the last five years such a law has been passed by Michigan, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island. To this list the last three months have added the names of Alabama, Missouri, Maine, Nevada, Nebraska, Kansas, and Oregon. The bill has also passed the senate of Pennsylvania without a dissenting vote.

The saloon question is a prominent one in Georgia, South Carolina, Florida, and in all the southern states. Local-option laws have passed in Alabama and several other states, and in at least three states the question of prohibition is expected to be submitted to a popular vote within a brief period. In addition to these really substantial advances of the movement Miss Willard, woman-like, takes account also of their success in establishing a temperance booth at the New Orleans exposition, in which the display is one of the most instructive and attractive of the whole affair. This, however, we think to be no more than could have been expected. She also prides herself upon the fact that for a year now the organ of the movement, the Union-Signal, has been self-supporting: but this, again, is no more than the natural result of the extent and perfect organization of the movement. The legislative gains, however, are unquestionably substantial. If they do not transform the alcoholic devil into an angel of light, they will at least curtail his operations in a way that he will despise.

Native Home of the Potato.

Hon. John D. Caton, in a communication to the Farmers' Review, writes: The impression is very general that the only home of the potato is in South America. This is an error, and arose no doubt from the historic fact that it was first brought to the notice of civilized men from that country. No doubt it was the cultivated tuber that Raleigh took from there to Europe, and I lack evidence to prove that it was ever found there in its wild state. Authors seem to have taken little interest in the inquiry as to where is its native home, but I have abundant evidence to prove that it grew wild high up in the northern temperate zones. More than thirty years ago Mr. Forsyth, of St. Louis, who had been several years a hunter and trapper in the Rocky mountains, told me that he once camped in a sheltered valley in the mountains, a considerable distance north of the line of New Mexico, and that he soon discovered that his camp was in the midst of a considerable field of vines, which he readily recognized as those of the potato and with his hunting-knife he dug a good supply, which he boiled, and found them a rich accompaniment to his venison, which was his almost exclusive diet when in the mountains. As this camp was on a fine beaver stream he remained in it some time, subsisting largely on the wild potatoes, which he found both nutritious and healthy. He described them as small, the largest not bigger than a hazelnut and attached together by short connecting cords, a considerable number in a string. We sometimes see several of the cultivated potatoes thus connected. About 1850 I was shown some potatoes near Lisbon, Kendall county, in this State, which, I was assured, were grown from wild potatoes found in the Rocky mountains, west of Tucson, brought by volunteers on their return from the Mexican campaign. They had been grown for several successive years, increasing in size every year till now they were of a fair size and good flavor. I procured a bushel, which I planted with fair results, but as they were not as good as the pink-eye, which was then the favorite potato throughout this country, I did not continue their cultivation. I investigated the origin of that potato and became satisfied that its claim was well-founded. The late Col. W. B. Warren, of Jacksonville, Ill., assured me that about sixty years ago he had found the wild potato growing on the banks of the Ohio river, and described them as much the same as those observed by Mr. Forsyth.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

It has been decided at Des Moines, Iowa, that under the pharmacy law a druggist cannot sell liquor without permission from the county supervisors.

The insurgents took possession of the town of Battleford, in Manitoba, and the inhabitants were obliged to seek refuge in the barracks.

Another long list of nominations was sent to the senate. Henry G. Pearson was named to succeed himself as postmaster at New York.

Reports from correspondents of the Plain Dealer indicate that the wheat crop in Ohio will be about a million bushels less than that of last year.

On March 31st one hundred mechanics were discharged from the Baltimore and Ohio machine shops at Mount Claire, Md. In the last three months the force has been reduced about a thousand men.

Osman Digma, under cover of a white flag hoisted over Hasheen, surreptiously evacuated his quarters there, and deserters from his army reported that his force was in full retreat.

Battleford, the center of hostilities in Manitoba, was pillaged and burned by the halfbreeds and Indians and afterward deserted. The inhabitants are still safe in the barracks.

Latest advices from Tonquin do not materially change the situation of the French army. Another encounter was had with the Chinese troops, but the French were compelled to retire.

A pitched battle was fought on the borders of gun Salvidor between the troops of that country and Barrio's army, resulting in a total defeat of the latter.

Sylvester Osborn, hero of the Bucyrus roller skating sensation, was sentenced at Upper Sandusky to three years in the Ohio Penitentiary on a plea to the charge of bigamy.

Bowen county, Ky., is experiencing a reign of lawlessness. All but one of the county officials have been murdered or driven out of the county. Armed bands at intervals terrorize Morehead, the county seat.

The Pall Mall Gazette states that Russia has acceeded to all England's demands, with slight exceptions, and that further trouble is not expected. Russian movements on the Afghan frontier do not agree with this view of the subject.

A cashier of a St. Catharines, Quebec, bank eloped with the president's wife, but left the bank's funds intact. The erring wife was finally induced to return to her husband's roof and the cashier was forgiven and reinstated in his position.

The French Chamber of Deputies, in consequence of the recent reverses in Tonquin, refused to support the ministry on a motion of urgency for a new credit of $40,000,000, whereupon Prime Minister Ferry announced the resignation of the entire Cabinet, which President Grevy at once accepted. Ferry was denounced by many of the Deputies in unsparing terms and the populace hooted at him as he left the chamber.

RUSSO--BRITON.

A BATTLE BETWEEN THE BEARS AND AFGHANS.

GREAT INDIGNATION IN ENGLAND OVER THE AFFAIR.

England Regards it as a Declaration of War. The Stock Exchange in a Panic.

LONDON, April 8.—The Standard has a telegram from a correspondent in Russia stating that a battle has been fought on Murghab River, and that it is reported 500 men were killed. The dispatch was in cipher in order to escape the vigilance of the Russians, and the Standard refrains from mentioning its source, but says it is entitled to the highest credit.

LONDON, April 9.—St. Petersburg dispatches confirm the reports of a battle on the River Kooshtk between the Russians and Afghans, in which 500 of the latter were killed and wounded, and about 100 of the former.

LONDON, April 9, 2 p. m.—The stock exchange is almost in a panic. The fight in Afghanistan is regarded as equivalent to a declaration of war.

LONDON, April 9.—The latest news says the Russians have pushed forward and occupied Pendjeh, a strong Afghan garrison. There is the greatest excitement and indignation all over England because of Russia's duplicity is now shown to be to gain time.

LONDON, April 9.—The Russian force ready for battle in Afghan is placed at upwards of 95,000 strong, is reported already in motion, with faces toward Chamenibed. The remainder are advancing south along the roads bordering on the Persian frontier east of Sarakhs.

LONDON, April 9, 5 p. m.—Excitement continues to grow and war is now absolutely inevitable.

The receipt of the war news on 'Change at Chicago produced a panic in the grain market. May wheat closed at 82 on the 8th and rapidly advanced until it touched 88¼, amid the greatest excitement, and then fell back to 86¼. It is now (April 1) 86¼, and other commodities advanced in sympathy though more moderate. Many heavy dealers were on the floor who are not often seen here.

The Fort Wayne Journal editor has got well along in his Arithmetic. He says, "If President Cleveland were to make a hundred appointments every day, six days in a week, it would take him three years and a half to fill all the offices with Democrats. There is a chance for all of us yet.

THE APRIL ELECTIONS.

An Overwhelming Democratic Victory in Michigan.

DETROIT, Mich., April 8.—The election today in this state passed off quietly. Besides city and township officers, the electors voted for justice of the supreme court and regents of the university. Less than half of a full vote was polled throughout the state. In this city, Morse, Democrat, candidate for justice, received a majority of 5,296 over Judge Cooley, Republican and Prohibitionist, with one precinct to hear from, which is strongly Democratic one hundred and eighty four precincts heard from in the state, outside of Detroit, give a Democratic majority of 4,807. At the elections last fall the same precincts gave a Republican majority of 2,225. At midnight tonight the Free Press, Democrat, claims 10,000 majority, and the Post, Republican, concedes a Democratic victory.

A Democratic Mayor in Chicago.

In Chicago, Carter Harrison, the old Democratic Mayor was re-elected something less than 500 majority. Devine, for Treasurer, received a majority of over 1,000. The balance of the ticket is divided up between the democrats and republicans.

The Election in Toledo.

A DEMOCRATIC MAYOR AND POLICE COMMISSIONER ELECTED.

The Post of the 7th sums up the result of the election in Toledo as follows:

According to returns now received and believed to be substantially correct, Dr. Forbes is elected Mayor by about 250 majority, and Walter Pickens Police Commissioner by over 1,100 majority. The Republicans take the balance of the general ticket, with the exception of one constable elected by the Democrats, while the Republicans elect three.

The Republicans seem to have a clear majority of the Common Council on joint ballot.

At Cincinnati, Columbus and Cleveland, the Republicans seem to have been the winners in Monday's elections. Speaking of the vote in the State, the Plain Dealer says: So far as election returns from over the state have been received, they show that a light vote was polled and party lines were not very much regarded. The disposition to disregard party nominations and to go for the best men seems to have been generally prevalent. Everywhere party tickets were scratched, and Democrats were elected in Republican strongholds, and vice versa. Hardly anywhere was the entire Democratic or Republican ticket elected, but voters appear to have exercised a wise discrimination in making up a ticket out of those presented by the respective party conventions.

The result cannot be claimed as a party victory either way, and there is no special political significance in the result. It only shows that in municipal elections the people sometimes, and perhaps wisely, determine to have their own way and elect good men, without much regard to their politics.

Triumphantly Acquitted.

We congratulate Charlie on his military advancement as well as on his prospective honors at the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Voss, of Stryker, O., were visiting here last week with their daughter, Mrs. J. M. Carens.

The hold of the demon upon the minds of men is illustrated in the downfall of men once prominent in civil affairs and respected above their fellows. One of these, once a millionaire, vice president of the Harlem railroad, was recently arraigned in a New York court, his four millions of wealth squandered and himself a common drunkard. Another, a contemporary of his, once the possessor of $2,000,000, was brought before another New York court charged with being a vagrant. His clothing consisted of rags, confined to his waist by a rope. Not yet 60 years of age he was bowed as with the weight of years. None would recognize him as an exceptionally gifted graduate of Yale college—a financial agent of South Carolina in the palmiest days of carpet bag rule. In the vast army of tramps, whose meandering cover the length and breadth of the country, are found many men of once brilliant intellect, whose downfall may be traced to the demon drink. With the loss of wealth and position came the loss of self respect and the loss of friends. Then downfall was rapid and to the depths.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

A CINCINNATI special of the 7th says: A fearful tragedy was enacted at 6 o'clock this morning at the Newport entrance to the Cincinnati and Newport bridge. At that hour John L. Cummings, a young man of 23, clerk in the First National bank of this city, was boarding a car for Cincinnati, when James McMullen, a prominent citizen of Newport, came rushing toward him exclaiming, "D—n you, I have you now," and began firing on Cummings with a revolver, shooting him three times. The victim fell and died in a few minutes. McMullin put up his revolver, turned back and went to the station house and gave himself up. It is alleged that Cummings ruined McMullen' sixteen year old daughter, and refused to make reparation. There is the utmost excitement concerning the terrible affair, as both men were members of the best society of Newport, and well known in Cincinnati socially.

NOTWITHSTANDING the opinion of his friends to the contrary, there seems to be no good reason for doubt that President Barrios of Gautemala died on the battlefield of Chalchuspa, where his broken sword was found. President Zaldivar of San Salvador confirms the report of his death, and the congress of Gautemala has revoked the decree proclaiming the Union of the Central American states, from which action it is evident that the death of Rufino Barrios to make himself an arbitrary dictator over a Central American confederacy.

Barrios, with all his faults, was the ablest soldier and statesman, and, when the peculiar conditions of Central American civilization are taken into consideration, the ablest ruler, that Central America has produced. To unite the five warring states of Central America into one republic was no unworthy ambition, and if Barrios sought to accomplish this arbitrary end by the sword it may well be doubted if this union can be accomplished and made to hold by any other means. An authority that is not arbitrary and that does not proceed by methods more or less despotic is too unstable in Central America to accomplish much, and is less advantageous to the people of these states than the military dictatorship that Barrios aimed to establish.—Plain Dealer.

From all points of the south messages of sympathy come to General Grant like that sent by Mr Davis. And yet there are a few Republicans, bloody shirt shakers—let us be thankful they are so few—who still shout the old sectional war cries and insist of having somebody hanged.

Gavit & Goodwin expect to have their new foundry in working order in about three weeks.

We understand that the new meat market that was to be started in the Eaton building will not materialize.

One day last week Lew Voss helped to affix an old tomato can to the western extremity of a dog going east, and then became highly indignant when the affrightened brute ran under his team and nearly caused a runaway.

The official report of the Russian commander in the Afghan battle indicates that the latter forces were acting under suggestions of the English, and that the Russians were first attacked. While war has not been declared, preparations for a conflict are being hurried forward in both England and Russia, and there seems little prospect of a peaceable settlement—especially as the war sentiment is now strong among the people of both countries.

Barrios is undoubtedly dead. This fact having been reiterated daily for about a week, it is to be hoped that Barrios will stay dead.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Chicago Tribune: All things are relative. El Mahdi and the Illinois Legislature have almost disappeared in the rush of war news on a grander scale.

New York World: If England and Russia intend to go to war they ought to leave "their damnable faces and begin." The people are getting tired of the farce.

Louisville Courier-Journal: New York women put tissue veils on their poodles to protect them from dust. Nobody will blame Grover Cleveland for remaining a bachelor in the state of New York.

Chicago News: Not long ago we heard much about the "smashing" of the mahdi, but at present writing it looks as if the mahdi would have to go off and step on himself or never be smashed.

Utica Observer: The case of Pearson, we repeat, was isolated and exceptional, and republican postmasters outside of New York might as well accept the consequences of their recent defeat, straighten out their accounts and be ready to pack up.

Chicago News: R. B. Hayes, of Fremont, O., came to Chicago last Tuesday and attended the operatic performance in the exposition arena night before last. We asked him how he liked Mme. Adelina Patti, and he replied that she was prettier than a speckled pullet.

New York Sun: Was the Sun mistaken when, years ago, it set up the stirring cry of "Turn the rascals out?" We don't think so. They ought to be turned out; and, besides, there are lots of 'em. We hope that, in spite of everything, the worst will get turned out before the play is over.

Toledo Bee: President Cleveland is doing the country most admirable service in breaking down the prevailing despicable system of office brokerage. The people rejoice thereat, while professional politicians are chagrined that their manipulation is shorn of its power.

Chicago News: There is a vague suspicion that old Charlie Foster may come to the front as a powerful senatorial candidate. What gives color to the suspicion is the fact that a state which has been guilty of Ohio's record is liable to condescend to the petty meanness of foisting Charlie Foster on the public service.

New York Graphic: A letter written by General Grant in April, 1861, shows that he, like all other respectable democrats, was prepared to drop all party lines as soon as the rebellion began. There never was a more loyal party than the democratic party, and many of the best generals and bravest men in the war were men who had acted with the democratic party all their lives.

Referring to the fraud yelp of the republican press, the Chicago Times paralyses it as follows: "It is an old trick of the pickpocket to yell 'stop, thief!' The republicans here seem to appreciate the usefulness of that method of diverting public attention from their own frauds. In half a dozen wards where they have the control they kept their vote in the spring election nearly up to the figures of last November, though there was only 80 per cent. of the whole November vote cast. In one precinct where they return about 200 more votes than their proper proportion in the ward, the ballot box has mysteriously disappeared. The democratic vote in the city fell off about 10,000, while fine work or something of the kind made the republican loss only half that. Yet all the time the republican organs yell 'fraud!' and ask the public to believe that the cheating has been the work of democrats. It is time now to hunt down the real criminals—the fellows who are trying to escape in the crowd by shouting 'stop, thief!'"

A New England Husking Bee.

When the guests have all arrived, the boys go to work and pull great armfuls of hay from the mow, which they spread around the heap of corn. Then each seats himself by his favorite girl, draws a bundle of husks into the hay between them, and the husking begins. Work is by no means suffered, however, to interfere with play. The merry joke goes round; the stolen mitten travels about the circle and back to its owner at last. If a girl happens to pull the husk from a dark-red ear, she must forfeit a kiss to the lad nearest or quickest to snatch it. As fast as the ears are removed from the husks they are thrown into separate piles, one for each party, on opposite sides of the heap; and there is sure to be a deal of pleasant rivalry to see which will have the larger heap of corn when the husking is done. It is wonderful to see how fast the mountain of unhusked corn is lowered, though the farmer and his boys keep bringing fresh basketfuls and piling them on the heap. A perfect storm of the golden ears keeps raining on each pile of corn. As the supply of material fails, the contest waxes warmer. The girls throw off their hoods and shawls, and the boys fling aside their overcoats. The warm blood of health rushes to each cheek, and the faster the hands fly the brighter do the faces grow, and the last few ears are scrambled for by the contending sides, and with shouts of merriment the husking is finished. The victorious side is first furnished with refreshments. Great platefuls of doughnuts and "fritters," and slices of snowy cake, pie cut in generous pieces, cider and apples, nuts and home-made candy are passed around. The "old folks" come stamping in by twos and threes, and are immediately assailed with conflicting stories of individual prowess and associate achievement, and then stuffed with good things to stop their laughing. By 11 o'clock the festivities are over, and the merry company disperses, two and two. The farmer takes down the lantern, closes the big barn, and retires to the kitchen to smoke his pipe and calculate how many bushels of corn he will have when it is "off the ear."—Troy Times.

Galveston News: What has become of that vigorous and healthy campaign lie that a Democratic victory would disturb, disarrange and play havoc with the business interests of the country?

Dealing in Fiddles.

Charles Reade tells one tale of the romance of fiddle-dealing which is charming. There was a certain precious violoncello at Madrid. It was a genuine Stradivarius. The local maker, one Ortega, had put in a new belly and sold it, keeping the old belly in his shop. M. Chanot, "the best judge of violins left, now Tarisio is gone," lighted upon the old belly and bought it. Tarisio then discovered it and pestered Chanot till he sold it for 1,000 francs, and told him where the remainder was to be found. The owner was persuaded to part with it for 4,000 francs, and Tarisio "started exultant for Paris with the Spanish bass in a case. He never left it out of his sight. The pair were caught by a storm in the Bay of Biscay. The ship rolled; Tarisio clasped his bass tight, and trembled. It was a terrible gale, and for one whole day they were in real danger. Tarisio spoke of it to me with a shudder. I will give you his real words, for they struck me at the time, and I have often thought of them since: "Ah, my poor Mr. Reade, the bass of Spain was all but lost." Was not this a true connoisseur? A genuine enthusiast? Observe! There was also an ephemeral insect called Luigi Tarisio, who would have gone down with the bass, but that made no impression on his mind. De minimis non curat Ludovicus. He got it safe to Paris. A certain high priest in these mysteries, called Vuillaume, with the help of a sacred vessel, called the gluepot, soon rewedded the back and sides to the belly, and the bass, being now just what it was when the ruffian Ortega put his finger in the pie, was sold for 20,000 francs (£800). I saw the Spanish bass in Paris twenty-two years ago, and you can see it at any day this month you like, for it is the identical violoncello now on show at Kensington, numbered 188. Who would divine its separate adventures, to see it all reposing so calm and uniform in that case? Post tot naufragia tutus."

April is dotted heavily with Grant anniversaries. April 1, 1865, Grant turned Lee's right at Five Forks; April 2, assaulted and carried the lines at Petersburg; April 3, he entered Petersburg and Richmond. April 6, 1862, the battle of Shiloh opened; April 7, Grant drove the rebels from the field; April 8, 1865, he had thrown his cavalry across Lee's lines of retreat, and April 8, Lee's army surrendered.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

Prohibition is now on trial in 105 of the 137 counties in Georgia, and will soon embrace the whole State.

Recently 376,000 acres of good land in North and South Carolina have been thrown upon the market.

The New York Evening Post says that the "vicious elements" left the Democratic party last year and voted the Republican ticket.

Now we know all about it. The doctors say that Gen. Grant had a reflex spasm in the right side of the velum; that in the vault of the pharynx the sloughy exudation disintegrates, exposing a fungoid granular surface; the glandular swelling, difficulty in deglutition and loss of tissue of the velum exists; granular infiltration of the palatial curtain is œdematous, the hemming cough annoyed, and six minims of Majendie's solution has been injected hypodermically daily. No wonder Grant finally got disgusted and concluded that he would get well.

There is no question that Asiatic cholera is already raging in portions of France, Spain and Russia, and it is not possible to prevent its reaching America. The road to safety, therefore, is simply through putting the country in good sanitary condition, and health authorities and citizens in all localities should improve every moment. The courts also should aid this matter by compelling obedience to the lawfully constituted health authorities. The simple fact should be remembered, that cholera cannot flourish amid cleanliness. It reaps its great harvests in the midst of filth.

Imagination..

Three or four Doctors who had heard a great deal about the Effects of Imagination in cases of Disease put up a Job on a Sailor. After he had Lodged for the Night in a certain bed they Conspired to tell him that it had Previously been Occupied by a Small-Pox Patient. Did the Bold Tar at once begin to Shake and Tremble and Prostrate himself and Develop a Genuine Case of the Disease? Not for Joseph! He at Once Shed his Jacket, gave his pants a hitch to Starboard and sailed in and knocked those Doctors Stiffer than Crowbars, and Taught them a Lesson in Physics which they Remembered all their Lives.

Baltimore and Ohio Immigration Co.

Board of Directors—Mr. John W. Garrett, President; Mr. Robert Garrett, Vice-President; Mr. Samuel Spencer, 2d Vice-President, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. Hon. Henry G. Davis, President W. Va. Central and Pittsburgh Railroad Co.; Mr. Wm. F. Burns, President Eutaw Savings Bank, Baltimore; Mr. T. Harrison Garrett, of Robert Garrett & Sons, Baltimore; Hon. Ferdinand Latrobe, Mayor of Baltimore.

Representing large ocean and land transportation interests, this Company, with its extensive European and home agencies, offers foreign and American settlers special inducements for locating upon its large land holdings adjacent to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, its branches and connections.

It acts as agent for, and gives special attention to, selling and settling lands in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois; provides tenants for desirable properties; supplies laborers, skilled workmen, &c.

It makes advances for plant, erects buildings, acts as agent for immigrants and others settled under its auspices, in marketing their products, etc.

It encourages the establishment of manufacturing industries and gives substantial aid to the development of dormant resources.

Its primary objects being to stimulate local settlements, foster local industries and to develop the resources of the country tributary to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, this Company enjoys liberal concessions from the B. & O. and other companies in whose territory it operates. Its thorough organization, commanding influence and superior opportunities for selecting lands admirably adapted by physical characteristics and situation for agricultural, manufacturing and other industries, will strongly commend its agency and liberal policy to those desiring to purchase lands for estates and homesteads possessing the advantages of an old civilization, for vineyards, for sheep and cattle grazing, for lumbering, manufacturing and mining purposes.

Correspondence from land and emigrant agents especially invited.

For prospectus describing advantages of climate, soils and their products and markets, etc., and full information, address DR. W. T. BARNARD, Secretary and General Manager, B. & O. Immigration Company, Baltimore, Md.

FROM AN OLD NEWSPAPER.

The following is copied from an old Nashville paper:

"Mr. W. S. Williams, of Illinois, announces that his wife, Ann Eliza, having left his bed and board without cause, he will not be responsible for any debts she may contract.

"Ann Eliza, Ann Eliza,
Once I loved, but now despise her,
And as I no longer prize her
I will go and advertise her,
For although I'm not a miser
I won't pay for what she buys her."

Love on His Skates.

See the maiden with her skates,
Dainty skates!
What a world of coquetry her manner indicates.
For her lover gazes at her,
And he joins her on the floor,
And they chatter, chatter, chatter,
All unheedful of the clatter,
All unmindful of the roar;
Floating light as any feather,
Till they both sit down together,
With a haste involuntary.
And a grip that thrills!
'Twas the skates, skates, skates, skates,
Skates, skates, skates,
Love, alas! is too unwary
On his skates.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

An unfinished wreck of last Wednesday attracted a crowd to see the sights.

Five thousand applications for post-offices already filed with postmaster-general Vilas.

It is estimated that the present crop of wheat is short of the last crop to the extent of forty millions of bushels.

The dude harness maker will probably have an opportunity to tell the grand jury, "What I Know About Sunday Cock-fighting."

J. W. Smith, confidential clerk at St. Helena Mint, Las Delicias, Sonora, has skipped the gutter with a gold bar worth $18,000.

Mr. Benner, the piano tuner of Wolcottville, was in town for a short time one day last week.

Frank McCullough carries the latest description of the once fashionable grecian-bend, which he clipped from Billy Bean's Goshen Democrat.

A wild eyed man hailing from Kendallville was in town the other day, circulating around "like a hen on a hot gridle." He was on the hunt of his "boy" aged 19 years.

The judge before whom Cunningham and Burton, the men charged with blowing up London tower, were examined has charged the grand jury to find an indictment against the prisoners. The court describes it as a strong prima-facie case against them.

Rev. J. L. Ramsey, having been assigned to the pastorate of Hamilton, Steuben county, by appointment of the Methodist Conference, left last Wednesday with his family for that place. They have the best wishes of our citizens for their future welfare.

A Cincinnati special of the 19th says: On Monday a new schedule will go into effect on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad by which the time from Cincinnati to Baltimore will be reduce forty minutes, and the return by twenty minutes.

James Miller, a fisherman, on Easton river Maryland, laid his seine recently, in Skepton creek that enters into the river, and caught in one haul five thousand pounds of rock fish; he sold the proceeds of this one catch for five hundred dollars.

Some horse doctor—says Pomeroy's United States Democrat—should present the jackass physicians of eminence who have been cancering Grant with a large leather medal. When a physician can't tell the difference between a sore throat and the piles, he should be honored in some way.

Here's a chance for Dr. Solomon H., the snipe-bag holder for the late g. o. p. of Richland.

The fast freight express No. 42, which passes Corunna at 3:30 p. m., was badly wrecked last Wednesday about a mile east of Moody's Crossing. The section gang were working at that point and had several rails displaced which caused the accident. A flagman was sent forward to flag the train, but by some oversight the signal was not placed at the proper distance from the break in the track, and the train moving down grade at a high rate of speed could not be checked in time to prevent the plunge. As the engine left the track it remained upright and sustained no material damage. Two or three of the forward cars were ditched and two of them were demolished. The engineer stuck to his post but the fireman jumped. Neither were injured. By midnight the track was made clear and put in shape so that trains could move.

Mr. Cleveland remarked the other day to an Indianian: "Young man, you will never see the end of democratic administrations in this country. The democracy are here to stay." The President wished to give the idea that the administration of the government will so thoroughly command the admiration and respect of the people that they will never want the republican party in power again. Consent.

Editorial Notes & Comments.

The Indianapolis Sentinel pays the following high compliment to the representative from the Twelfth district: "Hon. Robert Lowry, congressman from the twelfth district has well earned for himself the esteem of the people who continue him in congress to represent their interests. An able lawyer, a profound thinker whose judgment is accurate and reliable, a hard worker, and one who proposes to achieve success in whatever he undertakes, Mr. Lowry is justly popular at his own home and wherever well known. His constituents are fortunate in their selection of a representative whose ability and worth do credit to the position he fills. Faithful to the interests of his district, he remains at Washington to accomplish all the good he can in the public service. Mr. Lowry is emphatically the right man in the right place."

A shower of featherless birds is about the only thing of importance the state of Mississippi has to report. We await with considerable anxiety the bulletin from Georgia, hoping and believing that that state will sustain her well-earned reputation by reporting that the feathers belonging to the Mississippi birds came down in Georgia made up into pillows and feather beds.

A messenger who witnessed the Duck Lake fight between Riel's half breed rebels and the whites says that both "armies" together numbered only about eighty persons, the rebels being only thirty in number. About 500 shots were fired and only six persons killed. This account brings the "desperate battle" down to the level of a street brawl in Cincinnati.

The Prohibitionists are preparing for the next presidential campaign already and, with their usual sublime faith, are expecting magnificent results. The secretary of their national committee gives out the information that they have already picked out their candidates —one to be taken from the strongest state. Judge Hopkins of New York is to be the candidate for president and Senator Colquitt of Georgia the candidate for vice president. St. John, it seems, is to be given no chance to vindicate themselves.

Glittering generalities, says the Atlanta Constitution, stand no chance in the face of statistics. For years the northern papers represented the average southerner as a man in a slouch hat. It took a long time to convince them that the derby and the tall hat were not altogether unknown in this section. Southerners were also shown up as profane swearers, whisky drinkers and outlaws. Gradually, however, the country has come to the conclusion that there is more lynch law out west than in the south, and that the average southerner does not do any more swearing than his northern brother. As to whisky drinking, the facts show that the south is the most temperate section in the union. Mississippi has 930 saloons; Minnesota, with about the same population, has 1,344 saloons; California, with about the same population, has, 9,369 saloons; old bourbon Kentucky has 4,461 saloons, and Ohio 15,390. Startling as the statement may be, in proportion to the population, the north has twice as many saloons as the south. All this is very gratifying, and the good work will be complete, when we establish the fact that the negro has a better showing in the south than anywhere else.

Penjdeh is accurately written and pronounced Punjdeh, and means "Five villages."

Senator Vance, of North Carolina, is said to be afflicted with a throat trouble that may develop into a fatal malady.

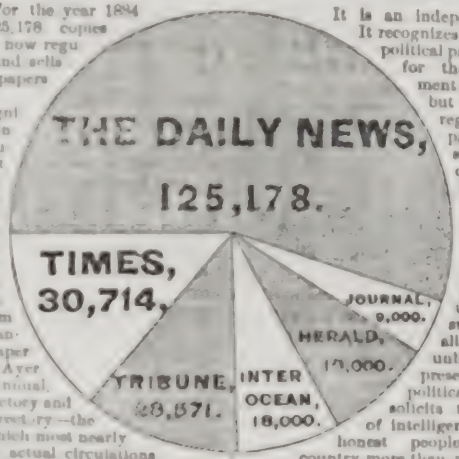

One cubic inch of gold is worth $210; one cubic foot $312,380, and one cubic yard $9,796,762, counting the ounce at $18.

General Grant has been rapidly improving since last week and is now said to be convalescing. The doctors now disagree as to disease; and it will not be at all surprising if the old war horse be himself again before many weeks.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Has the Largest Daily Circulation in America.

Its issue for the year 1884 averaged 125,178 copies daily, and it now regularly prints and sells over 130,000 papers a day.

The magnitude of this unequaled circulation is best appreciated when it is said that it exceeds the circulations of all other Chicago dailies combined. Taking from the three standard newspaper directories—Ayer & Son's Annual, Rowell's Directory and Hubbard Directory—the quotations which most nearly represent the actual circulations of the Chicago press, the accompanying diagram correctly illustrates their relative positions as to extent of circulation. From these figures it appears that the circulation of THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS exceeds the combined circulations of all the other Chicago dailies by 18,000 copies daily. The POST OFFICE REVIEW says: "Nearly everybody who reads the English language in, around or about Chicago reads THE DAILY NEWS." The reasons for this phenomenal success are obvious:

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the best type of American journalism.

It is a member of the Associated Press, and is the only 2-cent paper in the West that possesses this first essential to a complete news service. In addition, it has its private wire (by lease from the Western Union Telegraph Co.) connecting its Chicago office with New York and Washington, at both of which points it has its own news bureaus. Special correspondents represent it at all other important news centres throughout the country. THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS prints ALL the news.

It is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political parties as means for the accomplishment of proper ends, but it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is not an organ, and therefore escapes the temptation of condoning the questionable under the pressure of partisan allegiance. It is unbiased in its presentation of all political news. It solicits the patronage of intelligent, thoughtful, honest people, who love country more than party.

Its staff of writers in charge of the departments of art, literature, music and the drama is unquestionably the ablest of all the Chicago press.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is a "short and to the point" paper. It believes that newspaper reading is but an incident of the day, not its chief business. It accordingly leaves to the "blanket-sheets" the monopoly of tiresome and worthless amplification. It seeks to say all that the reader should care to read, and to say it in the shortest possible manner. It is a busy paper for busy people.

It is a clean paper, fit for the family circle. It is a cheap paper—2 cents per day, 12 cents per week, 50 cents per month, $6.00 per year. Sold by all news dealers throughout the Northwest. Mailed to any address, post paid, upon receipt of price.

Where the facilities of a daily mail are not enjoyed THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is recommended as "the next best." It is a large 8-page, 64 column paper, carefully made up to meet all the varying needs of the family circle. It is the largest "dollar weekly" in America. It is equal to the best.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The itinerant photographer has again pitched his tent in town.

Ligonier Banner: "Pluck" Welsh, a well known Goshen tough, was sentenced to a two years' term in prison last week for taking money out of the pockets of a drunken companion.

The damage sustained by the Lake Shore company, in consequence of the wreck east of town, last Wednesday afternoon, will amount to about $250.

Ligonier Banner: A black bass weighing 8¼ pounds was caught in Waldron's lake, west of Rome City, a few days ago. It was expressed to the Courier club of Cincinnati, which offers a premium of $100 for any bass caught in an American fresh water that weighs seven pounds or better.

Under a strict interpretation of law, the standard silver dollar is not a legal tender, as each side of the coin is defaced by a small letter M, the cleverly worked-in initial letter of Morgan, the man who made the die in which the dollar coin is minted. It is technically a case of mutilation, as the law does not permit anything of that kind on a coin, any more than it does a man's pedigree. The M may be found at the base of the neck of the Goddess of Liberty and at the left hand side of the knot which centers the sheaf of wheat.

The Fort Wayne Sentinel: Nearly all the city papers have made the statement that the French bill, allowing county treasurers 7 per cent. for collecting delinquent taxes, has become a law, but such is not the case. It was passed by the house, and the senate made an amendment to it, and the house late Saturday night refused to concur in this amendment by a vote of 34 to 33, and the bill, on motion of its author, was indefinitely postponed. It was a measure in which the treasurers of this and other large counties in the state were particularly interested.

The North Indiana Methodist appointments were made on Tuesday, 14th instant, and for this district are as follows: Presiding Elder F. T. Simson; Goshen, C. Skinner; Albion, M. S. Marble; Bristol, F. M. Stone; Butler, W. S. Stewart; Corunna, A. C. Gerard; Elkhart, C. E. Driebo; Elkhart Circuit, J. N. McCurdy; Hamilton, J. L. Ramsey; Kendallville, D. C. Woolpert; LaGrange, J. B. Carns; Lima and VanBuren, O. S. Harrison; Leesburg, L. H. Mott; Ligonier, H. M. Lamport; Middlebury, S. Light; Milford, G. M. Carpenter; Mishawaka, E. F. Hasty; Nappanee, to be supplied; New Paris, W. R. Wones; Osceola, J. D. Belt; Valantine and Ontario, to be supplied; Waterloo, W. D. Parr; Wawaka, J. W. Pashchal; Wolcottville, C. H. Wilkinson. The next conference will be held at Warsaw.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Webster was found guilty of murder in the first degree at Jefferson, O.

A heavy storm passed through Sterling, Kansas, Tuesday of last week, and did much damage to the property.

C. A. King & Co., of Toledo, have received 900 reports, covering 400 of the principal wheat counties in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, Kansas and Missouri during the past five days. One-third report prospects better than a fortnight ago; one-third as well, and one-third worse.

Six executions and a lynching took place in the United States Friday. Thomas Samon, the triple murderer, was swung off at Laconia, New Hampshire, and two Italian railway laborers at Thomaston, Maine. William Phillips was hanged at Fort Smith for the murder of his father-in-law.

Maxwell, who is supposed to have murdered the man found in a trunk in a St. Louis hotel, is believed to have sailed from San Francisco to Australia. It is known that Maxwell was in need of money, and also that Preller, the victim, sympathized somewhat with the dynamiters, while Maxwell was their bitter opponent. The stomach of Preller was found to contain poison.

Late accounts from Riel's War are contained in a Battleford dispatch which says: "The country north of Winnipeg was burned on the 15th for miles by the Indians traveling westward. All farms on both sides of the river were raided and the horses and cattle driven away. In view of the large quantity of arms and ammunition the Indians have been found to possess the government has decided to bring down measures immediately prohibiting the sale of arms and ammunition to Indians under the penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment."

The twentieth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln (April 15) was commemorated at Springfield, Ill., in a solemn and impressive manner. Owing to rain the procession was necessarily abandoned. At the State House a welcoming address was delivered by Gov. Oglesby, who was followed by Gen. Logan, Gen. Sherman, the Hon. J. C. Conkling, and Dr. Starkloff, of St. Louis. Each paid an eloquent tribute to the martyr's memory. In spite of the rain a thousand people participated in the formal exercises at the tomb, which was elaborately decorated with flowers. Singing societies and Grand Army posts were present from many places.

The ★ Headlight

BY J. C. LOVELAND.

Entered at the Postoffice in Corunna, Indiana, as Second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....APRIL 30, 1885.

The President has lately been called upon by several delegations of colored men, who are anxious regarding the position to be taken by the administration toward their race. Mr. Cleveland in each instance gave them to understand that their rights would be carefully guarded and that the representative men of the race would be recognized.

Guess our friend J. W. Helmer has reconsidered the matter and concluded not to emigrate to "a foreign shore" since the advent of a democratic administration, as we notice that he is painting his house. John will yet join the procession and become a good mugwump.

We clip the following from the Indianapolis Times: "Representative D. D. Moody, of DeKalb, is still in town, but will leave tonight for New Orleans, accompanied by Hon. John W. Kern, Reporter of the Supreme Court. The Shelbyville Democrat is evidently pleased with Mr. Moody's legislative career. It says that he was "one of the popular, level-headed and efficient members of the House," that he was "always in his seat, voted right and spoke ably on all propositions;" that "he is well deserving of his party." It is suspected that Mr. Moody has designs upon a State office."

It seems to be a plain case that Russia wants to fight whether England does or not.

It seems to be a plain case, also, that England must make up her mind to fight or surrender Afghanistan and eventually her Indian empire.

Russia has everything to gain by a war and very little to lose. England has little to gain and everything to lose. She must fight, if she fights for her own.

Gladstone might be willing for the sake of peace to consent to the dissolution of the Indian empire. He may, as the cable reports, "not think the preservation of India worth going to war with Russia for."

But the English people will not follow him in that. They will fight for India.

It must come to that at last. England must fight for India or surrender it.

Following are texts of the most important bills passed at the last session of the Legislature:

Regulating weights and measures.

Prohibiting gambling on fair grounds.

Gerrymander of the Congressional Districts.

Fixing time of holding court in the Thirty-fifth Judicial Circuit.

Providing for the removal of obstructions from highways.

Providing for the enrollment of late soldiers, their widows and orphans, by Township Assessors.

Prohibiting forced contributions of money or property from employes by corporations or their officers.

Prohibiting Sunday base ball playing where a fee is charged, and prescribing a fine of not more than $25 for violation.

Requiring the full monthly payment of employes engaged in manual or mechanical labor, and making the claims of such employes preferred claims.

Regulating the practice of medicine, surgery and obstetrics, and providing for the issuing of licenses to practice by the county clerk.

Proposing an amendment to Section 1 of the Constitution so that no county officer except surveyor shall be eligible to a re-election for the term of office immediately succeeding a term already served by him.

Reorganizing the apportionment of shorthand reporters for courts of record in counties of 10,000 or more inhabitants, and fixing the compensation at not more than $5.00 for each day actually employed.

Giving all people, without regard to race or previous condition, the advantages of restaurants, inns, eating-houses, barber shops and all places of public accommodation and amusements, providing penalties for violation.

Amending Section 5,306 of the revised statutes of 1881 so that claims not exceeding $50 for work performed at any time within the previous six months, by laboring men or mechanics, shall be treated as preferred debts against any corporation or persons failing, assigning or having his business suspended by creditors.

THE MAY MAGAZINES.

For special reasons in the May CENTURY, more space than usual is devoted to the War Series, and sixteen pages are added to the regular number, 160, in order that other subjects of public importance should not be slighted. Of superior interest is General Adam Badeau's anecdotal paper on "General Grant" as a soldier. General Badeau's article covers the whole period of General Grant's military experience, from his brilliant services in the Mexican War to the surrender of Lee at Appomattox.

The frontispiece of the number is a striking portrait of General McClellan, engraved from a photograph taken especially for this purpose. General McClellan contributes a graphic account of "The Peninsular Campaign," and makes a special reference to his official and personal relations with Secretary Stanton and President Lincoln.

Of fiction the May number contains a brief story by Helen Jackson (H. H.), entitled "The Prince's Little Sweetheart;" the seventh part of Mr. Howell's novel, "The Rise of Silas Lapham," and the fourth part of Henry James' serial, "The Bostonians."

ST. NICHOLAS for May opens with an amusing and characteristic story by Frank R. Stockton, entitled "The Tricycle of the Future," with strikingly descriptive illustrations by E. B. Bensel. A timely paper on the New Orleans Exposition, from the stand-point of a boy and girl who have lately visited it, will interest their compeers: illustrated.

In addition to the foregoing there is a great deal more that is interesting, beautiful, and instructive.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: President Cleveland and his cabinet will get around to all the rascals in due time. Any one who supposes that he will not does not know him. A common sense interpretation of civil service rules demands that many more changes be made.

Another battle between the native troops in Afghanistan and the Russians resulted in a victory for the former, in which the Russians lost nearly 1,400 killed. The war cloud over England and Russia is deepening and the clash of arms cannot much longer be averted.

At a recent fire in Vicksburg, Miss., which broke out during a fireman's parade, thirty-seven persons were buried beneath falling walls. It is believed that many more have perished as the city was full of strangers to witness the parade, but this number of bodies have thus far been recovered from the ruins.

The Quacks Must Go.

COMMUNA, Ind., April 30.—To the Editor: The Physicians' bill passed by the last Indiana legislature, which will become a law on the first of next September, is designed as we understand to prevent itinerant quackery for which our State is famous. It is to be hoped that this law together with the laws already on the statute books regulating the practice of medicine and defining its misdemeanors, will have a tendency to prevent an unnamed crime that is too frequently practiced, if common report is correct; elevate the profession, and rid the state of the vampires and human vultures who thrive and fatten on the cupidity of the people.

CORUNNA, DeKALB CO., INDIANA, MAY 15, 1885.

DRIFT OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Indiana State Sentinel: The President says that "offensive partisans" must go. The work will begin soon in dead earnest, says our Washington special.

Kansas City Journal: A picture of Miss Ada Sweet is going the rounds, which has a look out of the one eye it shows which, if Gen. Black had ever encountered, he might have known she would not if she didn't want to.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Judge Wylie of Washington is an honored jurist who retires full of honors from the bench. Judge Wylie of Columbus is accused of being a drunkard and an effort is making to drive him from his court.

Chicago Herald: It is a pity that the President could not have stretched his formal reprimand of General Hazen enough to have included the latter's brother-in-law, Johnny McLean, also. He needs a reprimand with a pile-driver about as bad as any man on the western hemisphere.

Philadelphia Record: A democratic administration seems to have fluttered the Mormons in Utah in eight short weeks considerably more than republican administrations have done in three times eight years. And this without making any fuss about it.

Chicago Herald: Military critics used to argue that Gen. Grant's tactics were unprofessional. The same was said of Napoleon. What must the sticklers for professional etiquette in the medical profession now think of him? A man who insists on getting well after he has been condemned to death cannot be said to have much respect for his doctors.

New York Journal: "Mr. Moody says that if a person prays while roller skating he is all right," said a little Brooklyn girl to her mother.

"Well, my child, did you ever hear anybody pray while at the rink?"

"Oh, yes! Papa did last night when he sat down so hard that the gas went out."

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'merciful heavens!' and lots of other things just like a minister does when he pounds the pulpit."

A Toledo, O., special to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, presents the following temperance lesson in real life: At an early hour yesterday morning the body of a man was found floating in the river opposite Bailey's shipyard. It was very badly decomposed and was turned over to the undertaker for immediate burial. Subsequent investigation of articles found on the body led to his identity, showing that the unfortunate man was Charles E. Whitney, who at one time was employed by Mr. James Melvin as clerk in the Boston square dealing store. Whitney was 39 years of age and belonged to a Boston family of the highest respectability. His parents were dead, and, in the hopes of reclaiming him from a mania for strong drink, his elder brother induced him about two years ago to accept a position as clerk in the employ of his friend, Mr. Melvin, in Toledo. He soon, however, formed bad associations and became as dissipated as ever. Last summer he was discharged and became a sort of wandering vagrant. A short time afterward he was discovered, ragged and penniless, in the act of forging orders on Mr. Melvin and obtaining goods on the representation that he was still employed at the square dealing store. He was arrested and sentenced to the workhouse for forty-two days, Judge Lorens suspending the sentence at Mr. Melvin's request, on condition that he left the city within twelve hours. This was on November 7th last. The poor fellow complied promptly with the requirements of the court, as he evidently went soon afterward to the river and plunged into the cold current and thus he left the city and the world.

A Beggar's Ruse.

A man of genius, but somewhat seedy and negligent of apparel, called on an old friend, an insurance agent down town, whom he had not seen for several months, and after the usual greetings the conversation, by mutual consent, dropped into matters of literature and philosophy.

"By the way," remarked the genial visitor, "here's a good thing from Emerson. You know, when a good thing strikes me, I jot it down. It exactly fits my case in the present instance."

Taking a scrap of paper from his pocket, he read:

"If you visit your friend, why need you apologize for not having visited him, and waste your time and deface your own net? Visit him now. Let him feel that the highest love has come to see him in thee—its lowest organ. Or why need you torment yourself and friend by secret self-reproaches that you have not assisted him or complimented him with gifts and salutations heretofore? Be a gift and benediction. Shine with real light and not with the borrowed reflection of gifts. Common men are apologists for men; they bow the head, excuse themselves with prolix reasons, and accumulate appearances because the substance is not."

"How keen, how philosophic, how true!" exclaimed the visited.

"The genius of truth!" added the visitor.

Then, buttoning his coat, he arose and prepared to go. As he approached the door he turned back, and, with a nonchalant air, remarked:

"Oh, I forgot. You haven't a dollar about you, you are not going to use for an hour or two, have you?"

"O, certainly; come again," was the sympathetic answer. — Indianapolis Herald.

He Talked United States.

As Chicago and I were strolling down the Louisen Strasse we heard rapid footsteps behind us, and suddenly a young man ranged himself up alongside of us and said:

"Beg pardon, gentlemen, I heard you speaking English, didn't I?"

Although somewhat astonished at the suddenness of the attack, we hastened to assure him that he did, if he heard us speak anything. Drawing a long sigh of relief, our accoster said:

"I'm mighty glad to hear that, you bet. I'm an American. Name's Armstrong. I'm from Kansas. Came here to enter the University. Been wandering around for two days trying to find out something about things. Can't speak the lingo. Mighty glad to have found you, gentlemen. Americans ain't you? Thought so. Here's my card."

He looked like a pretty decent sort of a fellow, so we exchanged cards with him, and asked him if we could help him in any way.

"Yes," said he, "you can do me a great service. I've been here two days, and stopping at a hotel; and I want to get out of it and hire a room. I tackled three or four old women, but we couldn't seem to make much out of each other's talk. And I'd about give it up for a bad job. I'm awful glad to have met you two. I haven't heard a good, honest American word for nearly a week. I tell you what, a man doesn't really appreciate how good his own language is until he don't hear it for a while. Then he just lays awake nights and talks to himself; it sounds so good after hearing nothing but a confounded lingo he can't make head or tail of."—Berlin Correspondence.

Had Thrown Out Hints.

When a Vermont father found out that his son John had been sparking a certain farmer's daughter for a year without settling any question he took the boy out behind the barn and said:

"John, do you love Susan Tinker?"

"I guess I do, dad."

"And does she love you?"

"That's what I dunno, and I'm afraid to ask her."

"Well, you'd better throw out a few hints to-night and find out. It's no use wearing out boot leather unless you are going to marry her."

That night at 10 o'clock John came home a wreck. His face was all scratched up, his ear bleeding, his hat gone and his back covered with mud.

"John! John! what on airth is the matter?" exclaimed the old man as he laid down his paper.

"Bin over to Tinker's," was the reply.

"And—and—"

"And I threw out a few hints to Susan."

"What kind o' hints?"

"Why I told her I'd been hoofing it two miles four nights out of a week for the last year to sot up with her, while she chawed gum and sang through her nose, and now I reckoned it was time for her to brush her teeth, darn up her stockings, cure the bile on her chin and let the old folks know that we're engaged."

"And her father bounced you?"

"No, dad, no, that's where I'm consoled, and glad on it. It took the whole gasted family, including Susan, two hired men and three dogs, and even then I wasn't more'n half licked; I guess we moved on 'em too soon, dad—I guess it wasn't quite time to throw out hints!"

"I am soon to be your wife, Henry," she murmured, holding his hand and looking tenderly into his eyes—"your own wife. I will have perfect confidence in you, but if I ever find you speaking to that white-faced Anna Maria Smith I'll tear her eyes out."

Miss Cleveland has not lost faith in humanity. She says she believes "most men act out what they are."

Russia first takes what she wants and then asks England what she is going to do about it. Possession is nine points in her favor. The single point that is left England is hardly worth fighting for.

Professor Swing, the noted Chicago preacher, is in favor of not allowing anybody to vote who cannot show up at least $500 worth of property. This—says the Plain Dealer—would have ruled out Christ and all the apostles except Judas.

Fred Douglas has excited considerable consternation in republican circles at Washington by a bitter arraignment of the republican party and an earnest eulogy of President Cleveland. The words of the President's inaugural he characterized as equal to the utterances of Lincoln and Garfield.

Fort Wayne Sentinel: Hon. W. G. Colerick Monday retired from the supreme court commission, as the term of office has expired. He will at once engage in the practice of law here with his brother, Mr. P. B. Colerick. Judge Colerick leaves the supreme bench but his work will live after him and ever do him honor. Although comparatively a young man, he has earned a state reputation as a conscientious, keen and brilliant judge and his fellow citizens are proud of his career.

The Ligonier Banner says: "We are in receipt of a letter from a prominent Indiana democrat, written at Washington, which assures us that Hon. Robert Lowry, our congressman, is doing all in his power for his constituents of the 12th district. Our informant says, 'All must abide their time and all will be well. You may rest assured that Judge Lowry will do all in his power for the very best interests of the whole people of the district which he so faithfully represents.'"

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Has the Largest Daily Circulation in America.

Its issue for the year 1884 averaged 125,178 copies daily, and it now regularly prints and sells over 130,000 papers a day.

The magnitude of this unequaled circulation is best appreciated when it is said that it exceeds the circulations of all other Chicago dailies combined. Taking from the three standard newspaper directories—Ayer & Son's Annual, Rowell's Directory and Hubbard's Directory—the quotations which most nearly represent the actual circulations of the Chicago press, the accompanying diagram correctly illustrates their relative positions as to extent of circulation. From these figures it appears that the circulation of THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS exceeds the combined circulations of all the other Chicago dailies by 19,893 copies daily. The POST OFFICE REVIEW says, "Nearly everybody who reads the English language in, around or about Chicago reads THE DAILY NEWS." The reasons for this phenomenal success are obvious:

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is a complete newspaper in all that constitutes the best type of American journalism.

It is a member of the Associated Press, and is the only 2-cent paper in the West that possesses this first essential to a complete news service. In addition, it has its private wire (by lease from the Western Union Telegraph Co.) connecting its Chicago office with New York and Washington, at both of which points it has its own news bureaus. Special correspondents represent it at all other important news centres throughout the country. THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS prints ALL the news.

It is an independent paper. It recognizes the utility of political parties as means for the accomplishment of proper ends, but it declines to regard any mere party as a fit subject for unquestioning adoration. It is not an organ, and therefore escapes the temptation of condoning the questionable under the pressure of partisan allegiance. It is unbiased in its presentation of all political news. It solicits the patronage of intelligent, thoughtful, honest people, who love country more than party.

Its staff of writers in charge of the departments of art, literature, music and the drama is unquestionably the ablest of all the Chicago press.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS is a "short and to the point" paper. It believes that newspaper reading is but an incident of the day, not its chief business. It accordingly leaves to the "blanket sheets" the monopoly of tiresome and worthless amplification. It seeks to say all that the reader should care to read, and to say it in the shortest possible manner. It is a daily paper for busy people.

It is a clean paper, fit for the family circle. It is a cheap paper—2 cents per day, 12 cents per week, 50 cents per month, $6.00 per year. Sold by all news dealers throughout the Northwest. Mailed to any address, post paid, upon receipt of price.

Where the facilities of a daily mail are not enjoyed THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is recommended as "the next best." It is a large 8 page, 64 column paper, carefully made up to meet all the varying needs of the family circle. It is the largest "dollar weekly" in America. It is equal to the best.

No more with cold the small boy's nose
At early morning tingles;
And, as the weather warmer grows,
His hair his mother shingles.
Soon to the placid pool he hies,
Whose banks wild flowers bespangle,
And as the sunny hours glide by
For hornpouts he will angle.
Perhaps he'll of the water feel,
And where he thinks it warmest,
Upon the banks he'll quickly peel
And plunge right in had foremost;
O'er bathing suits he makes no fuss,
Their texture or their trimming;
In puris naturalibus—
That's how he goes in swimming.

Mr. Williams who has been foreman of this section for a year or more past was removed last week for non-compliance with the company's rules in giving the proper signal, which it is alleged caused the late wreck east of town. His successor, a Mr. Arens of Ligonier, reported for duty on the 27th ult.

Fort Wayne Sentinel: The physicians of the city are generally of the opinion that the new medical law, passed by the legislature, although not so strict in its provisions as they would have liked, is still a step in the right direction and toward a much needed reform.

Those wishing to take a daily paper full of vim and spicy reading, with all the news going condensed, should subscribe for the Chicago Daily News, the prospectus of which we publish on another page. The Daily News is not only a complete mirror of current events but its market reports are elaborate and perfectly reliable, and as the morning edition reaches this place by the afternoon mail, our business men could not do better than take the News.

Under the heading of court items we find the following in the Chicago Tribune of the 5th: "Judge Bunn is engaged in hearing the case of Judge R. W. McBride of Waterloo, Ind., against Samuel A. Wood to recover $1,000 for professional services. Solomon Stough was convicted some time ago before Judge Gresham of violation of the pension laws, and Wood, his brother-in-law, promised, as is claimed, to pay McBride to go to Washington and procure Stough's pardon. This was effected, but McBride charges he received nothing beyond his expenses."

The Toledo papers announce the recent death of I. L. Clark, the oldest Lake Shore conductor, and who was the first Mayor of Toledo and quite prominent in the early historical events of that city. His age was 70 years. The writer's first acquaintance with conductor Clark dates back twenty years, while we were conducting a newspaper at Clyde, O., and at which time he was running a train on the Cleveland & Toledo road before the Lake Shore consolidation. He had become too old for active duty, but he persisted in working up to a short time before his death. Although Mr. Clark had acquired a comfortable fortune by judicious investments in Toledo real estate the old gentleman had a constant fear of being reduced to poverty, and hence he died almost as it were in the harness.

FRIDAY.....MAY 15, 1885.

In a stop off between trains at the village of Bristol, Elkhart county, the other day, we had the pleasure of meeting our old time friend J. M. Cathcart, formerly station-master at this place, and who is one of the the Lake Shore's most trusted and efficient retired employes, a man of few enemies but whose friends are legion. We found him, the same affable and courteous gentleman of yore, the like of whom it is always a pleasure to meet. He had but recently returned from an extended tour south, exploring Arkansas and visiting the New Orleans exposition and he entertained us with an interesting account of the yet undeveloped country south of Mason and Dixon's line, and of the sights at the World's great show. Mr. Cathcart, in connection with his brother, is quite largely engaged in the manufacture of fruit baskets and crates, and also in the cultivation of small fruits, such as strawberries and blackberries, for which this section is quite famous. The peach growing interest, which has heretofore been another important feature, large orchards having been grown and the crop yielding a large revenue annually, he informed us will have to be abandoned as the past severe winter has entirely killed the trees and there will be no more peaches at least until the orchards can be renewed, this it will take years to accomplish, and which may never be as fruiters have about concluded owing to the continued severe winters to devote their entire attention to the cultivation of berries.

Whilst in town we also found another acquaintance in the person of Dr. Dodge, an ex editor who was at one time connected with the Butler Record as one of its editors and publishers. He is driving away at the law, having "thrown physic to the dogs" and taken up Blackstone. The Doctor certainly possesses the right kind of material to make a lawyer, and as good common sense coupled with energy are the two requisites to insure success, our friend Dodge has a fair prospect ahead of reaching the goal of his ambition.

Bristol is a lovely village of much evident thrift and enterprise through which the romantic St Joe River wends its way—distant eight miles east of Elkhart and about seventy miles west of Toledo. It is pleasantly situated in the heart of the productive St. Joe Valley, but the two destructive conflagrations which lately visited the place, occurring but a few weeks apart, have sadly marred her former beauty, as the business center of the town was destroyed. This disaster falls heavily upon the business men, but if we mistake not she will in due time "Phoenix like from the ashes" rise again and blossom as the rose.

Bristol is somewhat historical as being the home of Mosier, who edits the Banner and sometimes plays the eminent statesman. He represented Elkhart county for two successive terms in the Legislature and then died. That Mosy made Rome howl no one will dispute, but somehow in making his exit out of the back way at the close of the last session he severely caught his coat tails in the door. Mosy gained some notoriety in the last campaign by unwittingly precipitating a controversy with Representative Moody on a question of veracity, and in the squabble the Bristol statesman went down in the first round and in the end was shorn of his hide.

During the month of April Postmaster General Vilas appointed 600 postmasters at fourth-class offices. The majority of the appointments were made to fill vacancies.

A boiler explosion at the Tremont Hotel, Galveston, Tex., shattered the building, demolished three houses, killed four people outright, and badly wounded several others.

William C. Cooke, at one time a wealthy civil engineer, but who through dissipation was reduced to a common beggar, blew his brains out Wednesday night last in a low dive at Pittsburg. Cooke was well connected and a few years ago was worth $250,000.

The corpse sent in a trunk from Chicago to Pittsburg has been fully identified as that of Pietro Corosa, a railroad laborer. Francesco Corosco, of Chicago, states that his brother left his home, No. 75 Tilden avenue, at 9 o'clock on the evening of May 1, with over $200 in his possession. Within two and a half hours his corpse was delivered at the railroad station. Nine Italians were arrested in Chicago for connection with the mystery, and one of them confessed that he purchased the money-order found on the corpse.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Under the caption of "The Juvenile Train-Jumper" the Chicago News has the following timely and suggestive remarks, which will apply to Corunna and other villages, as well as Chicago, where the practice of boys jumping on and off trains at stations is prevailant to a large degree. Station-masters and all railway officials should follow the example set by the Chicago police and give the juvenile train-jumper the collar p. d. q., as one or two examples would have the effect to put a stop to the nuisance. The News says:

"The person who has occasion to ride on railway trains in this city or to go where he can see any of the hundreds of trains that hurry into or out of the city should leave his nerves at home. If he takes them with him they will be pretty sure to be jarred out of time by the sight of swarms of boys, big and little—some of them mere tots—jumping or clambering on the moving cars.

"Every now and then a boy falls under the wheels and loses a limb or is mangled to death. But what of that? Other boys stand ready to fill the gap caused by his removal, and the nervous spectator sees no diminution in the crowd of clamberers. Every place available for hanging on a car has its juvenile occupant. He is going nowhere. He wishes to go nowhere. He jumps on the cars merely for the fun of jumping on and jumping off again.

"The railway companies have deep interest in stopping this dangerous practice, since nearly every accident to a boy makes one of them defendant in a damage suit or costs more or less for settlement; and presumably the companies try to keep the boys away. But that they fail most signally is evident to anybody who rides on the trains and uses his eyes.

"The policeman is the one authority that the small boy fears. The lad who joyfully takes all the chances of death under car-wheels turns pale at thought of a brass-buttoned policeman marching him off to a station house. Every man who remembers that he was once a boy knows this. And here is the remedy for the evil under consideration. If the authorities would post stern policemen where they might seize some of these adventurous lads the juvenile fraternity would soon pass the word along the line, and the practice would cease, at least in a happily comparative degree. One week of determined effort on the part of the police would work great reform and doubtless save many lives."

They have thinned out the rebels somewhat down on the Isthmus of Panama by hanging two or three of them. Peace therefore prevails.

A large and excited crowd, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, might have been seen a day or two ago at an humble home in the Fourteenth ward. Friends acquaintances of the man who had lived there congregated to give him a Christian burial. The solemn services had been said, weeping mourners had taken a fond farewell look and the undertaker was about to fasten down the lid preparatory to transferring the casket to the hearse in waiting, when, to the horror of the assembled throng, the corpse freely raised his right arm and stopped further proceedings of the funeral. It was a case of suspended animation mistaken for death, and the man, who is supposed to have been conscious all the time but unable to move, had managed at the last moment, by a supreme effort, to save himself from being buried alive.

The awful crime just reported from Tarstan, Mexico, says the Chicago News, puts to the severest test one's control over his rage. The 7-year-old son of a wealthy citizen named Lopez was recently kidnaped, a note being sent to the father to inform him that the child would be killed if $75,000 ransom was not paid within two days. The note did not reach the father in time, and on the appointed morning he found his child's horribly mutilated remains lying in his door-yard. At the sight the father became a raving maniac and a sister of the murdered child dropped dead. It is not probable that the devilish fiends who perpetrated this awful crime will receive anything like adequate punishment at the hands of men—man's ingenuity can conceive no punishment commensurate with so diabolical a crime. There seems naught for man to do in so inhuman a case but to resign himself to the reflection that in the broad span of eternity there is some a suitable punishment for such fiends and just reward for the indescribable suffering of the innocent child and the unoffending father and sister.

Between now and the first of July there will be a large number of republicans removed from office, which will indicate to the democracy that while President Cleveland may be a little slow he is sure and that he is determined to substitute good democrats in the place of republican partisans and incompetents.

FRIDAY.....MAY 15, 1885.

Senator Pulmb, of Kansas, at the Palmer Friday night, says the Chicago News, gave it as his opinion that the changes in the public service would continue until all the republican office-holders had been supplanted by democrats. The delay in making the changes was due to a desire on President Cleveland's part to gain a knowledge of the situation, so as to avoid bad appointments and make the best selection among the hosts of applicants. Mr. Plumb regarded such delay as the act of a cautious man, which he believed Mr. Cleveland to be, rather than a love for civil-service reform, although the delay gave rise to talk about such civil-service reform.

Asked if he thought the senate would refuse to confirm the appointees, such as the successor of Postmaster Palmer, when the changes were made on the ground of offensive partisanship, Senator Plumb said: "I believe the public service willl be alone considered by the senate. When a democratic president was elected we expected that it meant the removal of republicans, notwithstanding their efficiency, simply because they were republicans, and the appointment of democratic successors simply because they were democrats. There is no reason why the senate should hold the president to the pledges he made after election, by not permitting him to make the changes which he desires. Those pledges were made to democrats, and not to republicans, and I believe that the senate has nothing to do with them. Where there is some objectionable appointment, as in the case of Lawton, the republican senators will not confirm, but on the general principle of supplacing republicans by democratic officeholders, the senators will not quarrel with the president."

Under the heading of "Traitors in the Camp" the Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "It is currently reported from Washington that every night by 12 o'clock Mr. James G. Blaine is apprised of what has been done during the day in every department of the government. This information is imparted to him by Republican office-holders, who are retained in office. While professing nonpartisanism in order to keep their places these fellows are acting as spies upon an administration to which they are at heart bitterly opposed. The sooner the official ax is applied to their heads the better for the administration, which should be in the hands of its friends. These Republican spies at Washington frequently boast that they are quartering on the enemy," and gleefully jingle the dollars they receive from the treasury in payment of their salaries, declaring that they are pulling the wool over the eyes of a Democratic administration that was chosen in order that there might be a radical change in departments that were known to be corrupt under Republican rule.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

F. F. Hardy, a traveling salesman for the Detroit Stove Company, committed suicide in the Union Hotel, Gallesburg, Ills., by shooting; Edward Bushman, New York, by hanging; Alice Gostell, of Davenport, Ia., by poison, on a Wabash train near Lafayette, Ind.

The baggage-car of the Chicago express-train on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago Railroad was entered a few miles from Bloomington, Ind., on the night of the 29th ult. by a solitary train-robber, who, after shooting the express messenger and baggageman, secured a large sum of money from the safe and escaped.

The plague at Plymouth, Pa., was on the 6th said to be increasing in horror daily. Fourteen funerals were held on that day. Seventeen hundred persons were under medical treatment, and the physicians were exhausted with their labors. The water was believed to be impregnated with the germs of typhoid fever.

Eight persons are known to have perished in a tenement-house fire in Fifth avenue, New York, and fourteen others were injured by smoke and through leaping from the windows. Three persons perished in the flames of a burning house at Watertown, N. Y. A young woman was so badly injured that she is not expected to live.

The striking quarrymen at Lemont, Ill., backed by a number of sympathizers, came into collision on the 4th with the militiamen sent there to protect property. A resort was had to firearms and two of the strikers were killed. In a subsequent charge by the troops one man was fatally bayoneted and nearly a score of others wounded more or less severely. The militia suffered chiefly from showers of stones.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Messrs. Roberts & Hackett, of Urbana, O., representing the Straight Windmill and the New York Roofing Co., are in town working up their business.

Sensational correspondents magnified the firing of a small roman candle in honor of the president at a point between Gettysburg and Washington, into an attempt to assassinate him. In this case it was an attempt to make a sensation out of a very small matter, which fell short of the mark.

In some of the towns in DeKalb and adjoining counties we regret to say the May elections went hell-bent, which means a republican scoop. Auburn town came to the front with the old-time democratic majority.

The New York chamber of commerce is of the opinion that trade matters are decidedly on the mend and that the outlook is very favorable. "And all the people say Amen."

Mr. Kennedy, who conducts the popular Russell house, at Angola, is an old-timer. Twenty-five years ago we knew him as one of the boys and he holds his shape as plump as a spring pullet. Bart Killinger, of the same town, runs the "Baltimore Oriole," and we notice that he yet parts his hair in the middle.

The new postal card paper, under the contract of 1885, will be a delicate pink, in lieu of the cream color of the cards now issued. The texture of the paper is also to be improved. The size will be the same as those now in use.

This Section is now being worked by three gangs for the purpose of raising the track, one mile east and one mile and a half west of town, on a level with the regular grade.

There is in the United States treasury vault at Washington an old box containing a bottle of diamonds, a bottle of pearls, a bottle of attar of roses, and a lump of gold, all said to be the gift of the Japanese government to President Monroe, who placed them in the vault pending the passage of an act of congress authorizing him to accept them. The act never was passed, and the gems remain there, the property of nobody.

Jonas Engel, the Kendallville clothing merchant, passed through Corunna one day last week en route for Toledo.

Guess the robbin and the wren have found the nights of late rather cold comfort, while tucking their toes under their feathers to keep from freezing them.

Any person who owns a dog and fails to report it to the assessor is liable to a fine of $20, while the assessor is liable to a fine in the same amount for every dog he neglects to make a return.

Robert Lipsett who is stationed at Burdick, on the Lake Shore, as an operator, is in town on a visit. Despite the hard winter in that breezy section Bob has "growed" considerably.

The ideal of a perfect currency will be reached, says the report of the New York chamber of commerce, when national bank notes are replaced by treasury coin certificates, redeemable in coin on presentation at the treasury or subtreasuries. The report adds that the limit of issue should be $500,000,000 and notes be issued for less than $10. That would give more circulation to silver dollars.

Reader, if you have a good advertisement running, you have hundreds of thousands of servants out at work for you, whether you wake or sleep, whether you be sick or well. No monarch's slaves ever scattered at his bidding so fleetly, or faithfully, or in such bewildering numbers, as the literary messengers that bear your individual word to the people of this great nation.

June 1st, 2d to 3d, 1885, the Ministerial Association of Goshen District, will be held at Milford. An elaborate and interesting programme of literary exercises is laid out for the consideration of the brethren. We notice that Rev. A. C. Gerard, pastor of the M. E Church at this place, is booked for an address, subject: "How to best meet the Skepticism of the Age."

Another five-story building has gone down with a crash, through weakness of the walls, and buried a lot of people in the ruins, fire adding to the destruction. This time it was not a new building, but an old one. The New York collapse was of a structure not quite finished. The Brooklyn ruin was caused by an old building being tinkered with to keep it from tumbling to pieces some time later on, and the loss of life was due to the dangerous tinkering being done when the building was full of people.

James Till and Stephen Bowman are now making ax handles for J. A. Shull in Lockhart's Sawmill building.

Christian Luchenbill has deserted the county poor farm and his present whereabouts are unknown.

The new town board met and organized on Monday evening. W. H. Leas was elected president.

A strange dog, supposed to have been rabid, was killed in town on last Thursday, after having bitten four persons and a number of dogs.

The Methodist people have made temporary arrangements with the Prysbyterians whereby they are enabled to hold services at the latters' church every Sabbath evening and every other Sabbath morning.

The following is a list of the town officials for the ensuing year: Trustees, H. K. Leas, J. A. Shull, Wm. Wallace, W. O. Butler, S. Rickel. Treasurer, J. W. Seiler. Clerk, G. M. Crane. Marshal, Henry Vogtman.

Marshal Vogtman says he has never fired a gun. We suggest that if it becomes necessary for him to remove any of our dogs to write to Hi Leib for a recipe of his celebrated "dog buttons."

The town board held a special meeting Friday last, and passed an ordinance requiring all dogs to be muzzled within five days, under a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each offense. All dogs found running at large in violation of said ordinance will be promptly muzzled by the Marshal with a shotgun.

Tuesday there was a break in the cold wave, and it now looks favorable for a spell of real May weather.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet in county convention at the Baptist church, in Auburn, on the 20th instant.

In the hurry of make-up last week the adv. of Wolff & Grunauer, clothiers and merchant tailors, of Kendallville, was inadvertently omitted. This week they have a fresh announcement which will be found good reading.

Wesley Zimmerman has received quite a wind-fall in the way of a soldiers' back pension check, covering $900,00, "cash money."

If half what is said of the postmaster at Auburn respecting the work of his fine Italian hand in the late campaign, be true, then that official should be bounced as an "offensive partisan," p. d. q., and a good democrat put in his place.

Jonas Engel, one of Kendallville's wide-awake clothing merchants, has a new advertisement in this paper. Read it and then you will be sure to call on Jonas when you visit K.

MORE THAN HALF WAY

Are those Met who Mean Business, and would Do Something.

With spring fairly here at last and Nature in a smiling mood, the inclination to look about for ways and means to better surroundings is strong. With many last summer's action of the B. & O. in issuing Circular No. 7, with a view of promoting settlement and the establishment of manufacturing and other industries along its line, came possibly rather late for benefitting by its liberal inducements during 1894. But now, with everything ripe for advancement and improvement, the openings are most advantageous. The B. & O. offers freight transportation at half rates on household effects and building material for dwellings or structures intended exclusively for manufacturing purposes; half passenger rates for workmen employed on such improvements, and free transportation for families and domestics, first occupants of the dwellings constructed as above, on the way to them, and thereafter low commutation rates. More than this, free transmittal on passenger trains is tendered for marketing and household supplies of reasonable bulk and belonging to holders of computation tickets. These concessions apply to suburban and other country settlements, and those at all interested should secure full data—those east of the Ohio to Vice-President Spencer, Baltimore; Pittsburg Division and tributaries, to General Superintendent, Pittsburgh, and west of the Ohio, to General Superintendent Forsecre, Newark.

Special inducements beyond such as have been indicated may be given to manufacturing corporations, land and building associations, and individuals contemplating the expenditure of considerable sums in construction. In short, the B. & O. management will be found right up abreast of the times, quick to discern the benefits to accrue from energy and enterprise, and alert in affording the fullest and heartiest co-operation.

Washington clerks buy more tickets in the Louisiana lottery than any other class of people. It is said that about $20,000 per month go into the coffers of the city Dauphin of New Orleans from clerks in various departments. The secretaries intend to put a stop to this gambling if they can get the names of the clerks who won fortune in this uncertain manner.

The LaGrange Democrat, conducted by J. Frank Snyder, don't please certain politicians of the town, who undertake to dictate to the editor, and naturally he asserts his manhood and refuses to be controlled by a petty machine which seems to consist solely of Andy Ellison. The "machine" has ordered the editor to "sell out or get out" and threatens to run in another paper if he don't obey the mandate. This is an old bulldose game and it won't work. Mr. Ellison belongs to the stone age, and is generally known in the congressional district as the monumental "kicker." The difficulty at issue originated in the postoffice matter at LaGrange, the editor of the Democrat being an applicant for the place, and the Ellison gang are fighting him, insisting that he shall withdraw and turn the "goods" over to the gang. This he declines to do and hence the declaration of war. Mr. Snyder publishes a good paper which he has succeeded in building up in a county largely republican, working his way against the stream, and the democrats of LaGrange county owe it to themselves and the party to stand by him.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Gen. Grant is hard at work. His physicians are better.

The United States is paying its accumulated debt at the rate of $100 a minute.

Chicago watched 45,000,000 feet of lumber burn up valued at $75,000.

A. M. Excursion on the B. & O.

From May 16 to 22, 1885, the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co. will sell round trip tickets to Martinsburg, Harrisonburg, Hagerstown, Shippensburg, or Chambersburg, from Garrett at $13.50 for the round trip. This affords the Brethren, who will attend the annual meeting, in Pennsylvania, an opportunity to visit friends in the Shenandoah and Cumberland Valleys. Tickets will be good returning for thirty days. Those tickets will be good going or returning via Wheeling and Pittsburg, or via Grafton, at the option of the purchaser. In purchasing your tickets over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad you get your tickets for less money, have the choice of two routes, and are carried on fast express trains. For full particulars call upon or address Agents of B. & O. R. R.

In the village election the result was slightly mixed. The Independents run a ticket in opposition to the regular democratic ticket, and there being a pretty strong bourbon in the lead, the Independents swept the platter with the exception of Marshal. General Grant's throat is giving him uneasiness again. Although the general's strength has increased, his throat is no better.

HOW IT IS DONE.

And how it is not done where the truly American right to self-choice is permitted.

There has been a good deal said of late about "the fastest trains in the world," and some in an interest would have it appear that all the glory in this respect effulgated upon a single road. Indeed that one line absorbing everything there was in railroad life worth living for and all the others simply hanging upon a verge of despair as precarious as pitiable. Thus the situation, and because of it from the monopolistic standpoint, the full justification of a doubling of rates and extra charges generally anything but conducive to popular hilarity these days, when not only dollars but nickles count. In accordance with its characteristically American way of doing things, the Baltimore and Ohio long since established as an inviolable principle, the system of an entire absence of exacting extras upon any of its trains, limited or otherwise. The B. & O. does not believe in privileged classes, has never been accused of apeing exclusiveness, or in any manner whatever made it appear that there could be good and sufficient grounds for only doing its best in the matter of time and equipment when paid at double rates therefor. It is thoroughly well satisfied to run truly representative American trains, accepting for passage thereon regular tickets at the regular rates and maintaining a time schedule absolutely without parallel. A strong statement in the face of the loud boasts of competing lines of running "the fastest trains in the world," but a comparison of schedule from and to Washington proves it beyond cavil. The Chicago Limited leaving at 11 P. M., reaches destination next morning at 8.50, quicker than any limited upon any other road. The Cincinnati Limited leaving at 3:30 P. M., runs through in the wonderful time of sixteen hours, arriving 7:45 the succeeding morning, four hours ahead of any other limited. The St. Louis Limited is over an hour faster than any other limited to that city, as is also the Pittsburg Limited. East-bound from all the cities named, the B. & O. Limited trains are equally advantageously run in every instance, making time unequalled by the limited train service of rival lines, and upon which the practice of making extra charges and doubling rates is as rigidly adhered to as it is not on Picturesque B. & O. The equipment of the latter line is in every way of the finest, trains running through solid and composed of magnificent new Buffet, Family cars, Sleeping, Parlor and Dining cars and elegant day coaches. On all the B. & O. Limited trains passengers go as they please, pay their money and take their choice, and not as upon other roads running limited trains, compelled whether or no to take and pay for what may be provided by those who know more what the passenger wants than he does himself.

A certain old Skinflint swore that he would not live under a democratic administration whose president he considered an "immoral man." Bah! Mr. Skinflint had better look after his own morals which, like "the road to hell needs mending."
